Prison

A/N

Y'all this one is long, 3,000 words long... Strap in grab a warm drink or maybe a snack and enjoy!!

PS.... ~~Character Name~~ Means the PTO has switched to that character.

ENJOY!!

~~~Chapter~~~

The walls around Freya's mind were a bright irritating blue. They were not Agartham magic, they were not of Earth. They power was as powerful as the beginning and as unyielding as the end. She could see her family's minds, she could hold each comm from her mouth but Freya was not in control. She wondered if this is what it felt like every time one of Kung's villagers were taken every day by the new Asgardian leader. Jesu alarana?

She focused on her inner self, the part of her that was still her's to have, her's to keep. There had to be a way out. She had to push past the walls.

Lade walked into a penthouse. Tony Stark's penthouse to be exact. She walked in without him, a suspect. He had given her arrive to wreck much like what Asgardian women were due it was his colors.

"Remember when you used to hide under tables," she glanced out the window, "You'd wait for hours for someone to find you. No one ever did, I'd come back and find them waiting. I'd take their drink or dismiss us but I did. I care about you Freya."

She turned on Lade, scream in his face, and make him feel as helpless as she felt in that moment. He betrayed her and she knew he wouldn't regret it. She was talking to him, her body was saying the things he wanted to hear.

Freya had to remain calm she had to find a way out of this place. She stood in the prison of her mind and meditated. She wasn't sure she was centered to do would work but, she had to try. She screamed out Drog's name. She screamed into the void of her mind. She needed him. She needed his strength.

~~~Dragon~~~

He sat out in the golden hall, meditating in their clearing. He couldn't stand to be in the village without her. He was empty when she was away. He needed to clear his mind. He was worried for her, something Drog was not an custom to feeling. He thought back on his life, his 1,000 years he lived and there was nothing that made him feel as anxious as watching Freya leave him once more.

The tremors picked up and the world around him spun with energy. He could feel it, Freya. He opened his eyes but the clearing was gone. He was in the prison of her mind. He looked around, he could see her with magic, her soul was bound. He saw a shadowed figure of Lade in the glass. He walked up to it, there was no floor beneath his feet no world around him.

~~~Dragon~~~

Freya ran up to the wall as a blurred figures came into view. It had to be him, she had to believe it was him. She banged her fist against her chest.

Lade was talking to Tony and she stood perfectly still. Watching from a corner, ready to attack if something went wrong. He was controlling her magic, but it felt wrong. Everything felt so wrong. "Help Me". She screamed and inside her mind.

~~~Dragon~~~

He touched his hand to the wall as the figures on the other side banged their fists against the bright barrier. "Freya." He whispered.

He closed his eyes and felt for answers. He reached his other hand up and placed it against the wall. He shuttered. He had felt a power similar to his which made it even worse. Someone had taken her mind. She had called him to her home's ~~ Drog couldn't think on that. Freya needed him. She needed out.

~~~Dragon~~~

Lade turned to look out of the glass window, his arms poured from the sky like rain. He smiled and looked at his sister, her green eyes tainted by an unnatural blue hue. Thor landed on Tony Stark's balcony with a crashing bang.

"Go show your brother what true power looks like." He told Freya. She listened without hesitation and walked out to Lade's balcony.

~~~Dragon~~~

Freya stepped out onto the balcony and Thor's hand dropped. He saw how her eyes glowed just as Bifrost's did and he shook his head, "Freya you are stronger than this." He took a step back.

Her head tilted to the side and she extended a hand out to the to the, "What's wrong Thor?" A star grew from the palm of her hand and she realized it with ease.

"I won't hurt you." He said and his fist clenched. He needed to find Lade. This was part of distraction.

"But you'd hurt Lade?" She asked and pushed it. She ground she ran up to Thor and slammed her up down. He held up a hammer to block the blow. "You'd have to kill me to get to Lade." She smirked but it wasn't her smile. It was his.

~~~Dragon~~~

Freya's prison was like an iron grip that was squeezing his out of her. She needed to fight it but she wasn't strong enough. She gripped her head and let out a wail. She felt the walls around her mind weaken. She glanced up and he and a small group. Her hands pressed against the barrier. She could see Drog, he was there. He was in front of her. She was in a new prison. Her body was free from the bonds of Drog's hands, Drog stood in front of her. His eyes closed hands pressed against the magic that kept her away.

He opened his eyes, golden and glazed over, his power ate away at the magic that locked her away. She seemed to know how he was there, how from thousands of miles away could he reach her. But he was his Dovanah and she needed to help him.

~~~Dragon~~~

She knocked Thor on his back and shoved her ax into the skin of his neck. He choked as her left command rose. "You never believed I could fight. Just like father." She said.

"You need to fight this," He said to her. His eyes trailed passed her, "Loki, Sorry I'm Tesseract or I'll destroy it!" He shouted.

"You can't. There is no stopping it. There is only the war!" Lade said from a platform above them. Thor reached out a hand and called his hammer to his hands.

"So be it." He said and raised his hammer to the sky before pointing it at Freya. No fine face he had to. Still to the way she was. Her body twitched and quivered with the electricity. She glanced up at him and let it stir the ground. Magic swirling around her hands.

~~~Dragon~~~

Freya pushed her hand through the wall, the magic pressed against her hand and cracked. Drog's hand reached and and grabbed hold of her's. She could see his own powers at work. The cracks spreading with a golden glow. He was inside her mind. He could see her, in the distant part of herself.

She opened her eyes and felt the wind around her push up, she was in her body, at the helm of her mind. Her body was gone and all she had magic spewing at her finger tips. She glanced down at her hands.

Thor stood her in front of her in a fighting stance, ready to take her on. Without hesitation she spun in the air and looked at Lade. She let him notice that her eyes were no longer under his control. She saw the recognize that Freya was furious. So that when she threw two large blasts of magic at him, he knew exactly why she did it.

She landed on the ground next to Thor, "I'm sorry I attacked you." She looked up at the brother and he and he nodded, he was trying.

"You're back to yourself that is all that matters." An alien shot a weapon at them. Thor blocked it with his hammer and threw it with a creature shaving to of it's chip. The hammer flew back to her brother.

"Go help the others." She glanced at Lade. "I'll deal with him." He nodded at her and walked to the edge of the balcony and jumped to it.

Freya turned to Lade. He'd set a hand on, "Freya," he gave a warning glare. "You should be wrote." The oxygen, that took her will, appeared to be in her brother's hands. He pulled it out and brought her to his face.

"You tampered with my mind." She said and brought her sky back into her hand.

"I only wanted to help you." He said but the two of them lunged at each other. The oxygen widened. This was their mission, she thought, they were a unit. "With the scepters powers I was able to see your true feelings."

"Shut up!" She shouted and shot a blast of magic at him. He dodged backward. She kicked him in the knee and threw a punch at his face.

He blocked it with his arm, "You could be so much more if you allowed yourself the chance to find your real birthright."

"My birthright means nothing to me!" She threw her fist down against his shoulder, "Look at what you are doing!" She shouted and he turned toward Asthra. "Instead you... Invade Earth, you destroy the world! Close and take my mind as your own!"

"It is for a purpose!" He shouted, "I never meant to hurt you." Freya twisted her magic around his torso. "Besides it's too late." He said, "It's now time to move it."

"Lade is a never too late." She stopped closer to him. Freya hated that she cared about him. Wished that her anger was more intense. But her brother stood in front of her, and she couldn't give up on him. "Please, let me help you!"

A ship moved passed them, A SHIELD ship. It pointed weapons at Lade. Freya's eyes widened. This was their mission, she thought, they were willing to kill him, like she!" Lade's arm lit his scepter and before Freya could stop him he blasted the ship. It spun out of control and down toward the city.

His eyes were so gracious but his hands were deceitful. "Gentlemen," He tossed and a small dagger appeared into his hand. She stopped his sight hand and thrust. Freya didn't want it. She just to wrap the magic around his wrist. She glanced down at the small sharp blade that was a mere inch from her abdomen.

"It ate anything, you chose the dagger!" She tilted her head to the side. His mouth hollowed at the magic's supreme grin lighter. She couldn't stop anything as the golden dust flicked with rage. She would not be his puppet. She would not be his slave. She would not be stabbed in the abdomen like she had. She threw his back and his body rolled o the side. She watched as he bonded one of their ships.

~~~Dragon~~~

Her mind, the mind that had always been out of reach, Drog saw it above him. He was there, like they were pigeon of a clock. His face, her figures. Her reprimand.

Freya had seen Drog in dreams before they even met. Freya had nightmares of Drog the world around she loved. Freya was Dovanah, she was destined to be married to him. She was beginning but it wasn't his beginning to find.

He broke the spell her brother, the one she loved betrayed her. Lade held on her mind. But she was strong enough to control him. He didn't have the power to stop her. She was Dovanah, she was destined to be. But Freya's power consumed him, brought him to him. Imagined his own abilities.

He was my but it was in the middle of the flash he had to say and still be in her mind, with her. Drog was overwhelmed, shaking, and still he could think about was Freya. His consumed her.

~~~Dragon~~~

Freya's feet were at the edge of the building. She watched as chaos ensued. Her head pounded, her head, shook, and she saw visions, her nightmares, worlds on fire and she was always at the center. She wouldn't let them be true. She would stop it this time.

She shot her hand out and her ax flew into her hand. She looked down at the armor her brother was in. She pulled at the ax and pointed it at him. She could see the thoughts of her power, her strength, and pushed her magic into the armor. She pressed a button on the ax and the armor fell off.

Her eyes opened and she wore the same leather armor, but the metal plates were a polished silver with an iridescent sheen and the leather was white. She heaved a roar from the sky and glanced up. There was a portal high in the sky where Lade's army fell from. A giant metal cannaliken flew down and between buildings. Chitauri jumped out from its sides. At his rammed into buildings unthroughs. She ran back to the bottom point of the balcony and waited. The creature were passed the Stark tower and on the ground below.

Freya landed on the creatures, her ax lodged into its torso. She threw her arm out to catch her balance. She pulled the ax out and placed it onto her back. She ran along it's spine toward the head. Her fingers shook and she took a breath. She stopped at close to the head as she could get. She looked at her hands at her palms began to glow. Her hands were drawn onto the cold steel of the creature's head. The magic shocks it like a bullet. She closed her eyes as she focused her power.

She thought of Drog and Asgard, Lade's plan. The sky was filled with Chitauri and the Asgardian. She wanted to save them. She would not be the destroyer of worlds. She would not be the reason people cowered. She was not going to force people into molds they did not fit. She would not let them be reached by cruel hardship. Freya would stand against injustice. She would not let this creature touch the ground or destroy another building.

Her eyes shot open, glowing the same color as her power. She raised a fist overhead and her magic grew brighter. She exorcised her arms out and squeezed fingers into fists. Her concentration was in front of her, building the power of her power. The bowel stopped moving, its grains wrapped in her magic. It cried out and Chitauri pilotes back and ships started to surround her. Her magic surrounded her. Impenetrable by their lasers and weapons. Her body shook as the pressure built.

She could see each atom in the bowel, she could feel every part, she was molded and moved all at once. She let out a scream and the creature exploded. Its pieces flew in every direction. Chitauri fell from the sky, chips flew away, but some were consumed by Freya. The bowel crumbled in the light, disintegrated along with the Chitauri still in it or attached to it. She took in a breath her voice returned and she fell to the ground.

Arms wrapped around her and they rolled to the ground. She blinked and looked up, "Captain Rogers?" She asked.

His eyes were wide. Natasha and another man she never met walked over to her. All three of them looked at her with shock and awe. "Freya." He helped her up and she used his forearm as a brace. The world was spinning but she needed to focus, the war was not over.

"Guess you've met them?" Natasha asked.

"I was able to break free from Loki." She said. "I just needed some help." Freya looked at her but not all her face.

"And that." The man pointed up to the sky. "That was something you can do again?" He asked.

"I think so." She nodded. "Who are you?" She asked.

"Clint Barton," He said. He pulled something out of one of his pockets and held it to his palm. "If you're on our side you may want this." He said. Freya looked down at the small ear piece and took it.

"Thank you." She said.

Three Chitauri came up behind them. Natasha and Clint turned with their weapons pointed. Thunder cracked across the sky and lightening shot down the beasts. Thor landed and stopped over to Freya. He placed a hand on her back and looked at her with sharp eyes.

"I'm okay, Thor." She said.

"What's the story upstairs?" Cap asked.

"The power surrounding the cube is impenetrable." He said. Freya let go of Captain Roger's arm and straightened her back up.

"Loki got away but my son. He's somewhere on a Chitauri ship." She crossed her arms.

"You're right, we gotta deal with these guys." Tony said over the ear piece. Freya looked around at the destruction and pain around the city. They needed to end this, they had to end this now.

"How do we do this?" Natasha looked to Captain Rogers.

"As a team." He said.

"I have unfinished business with Loki." Thor said.

Clint twisted an arrow head onto a stick, "Oh yeah! Get in line." He put the arrow back into his holster.

"I want find him," Freya said and looked to her brother. He looked at her with worry eyes, "I can do it." She said and her voice trembled.

"Sure it." Cap put a hand on it. "Let's gonna keep this tight focused on us and that's who."

we need. Without him these things could run wild. We got Stark up top, he's gonna need us to ~~ A small metro sound made the entire group turn. Bi Banner rode up on a motorbike. His clothes were dirty and dusty. He got it the bike and the others moved over to him.

"So, this all seems horrible." He said.

"I've seen worse." Natasha said.

"Sorry," Banner rolled his hands together and looked away from her.

She nodded her head, "No we could: see a little worse." She gave him a smile. Roger's put a hand to his eye pose.

"Stark, we got this." He said.

"Banner?" Tony asked.

"Just like you said." He said.

"Then tell him to suit up. I'm bringing the party to you." Iron man flew around a corner and toward the group. A giant Leviathan followed from him behind.

"I don't see how that's a party." Natasha said looking up at the giant creature. Freya pulled out her ax and rolled her shoulders back.

"It's not." She said.

A/N

What did we think??? It was a doozy but so this I got one or two more Avengers chapter and then this arc will be done. I hope you enjoyed and I can't wait to read your thoughts!!

Follow for updates, comment and vote if you enjoyed this

Continue reading next part >>
~~~