

《I'm The supreme Fairy King》

Chapter 81: Learning The Clan Spell

Jim gave Jenny a deep glance. He didn't like this attitude especially in front of him, but the two girls made a bigger mistake and so he didn't reprimand her in public.

His warning gaze was enough and she only swallowed her throat and nodded.

"The price is nothing for us," Jim sighed, "we have more than that, but next time we might not be able to pay the corresponding price."

The girls nodded as well while everyone simply stayed silent. "Now we have less than three days from the start of the academy. I want all of you to start training."

"Training on what?" Pat asked, "our abilities are inherited by our bloodlines."

"Then keep using them all the time to hone your execution of them," Jim said before adding, "each day we will start training. I don't care, even if you have to run around in circles, I just want to see you all training."

Everyone only silently nodded despite their disagreement on his point of view. They thought he was mad at them but he wanted to do something else with the two girls.

He had a spell to give it to the two girls and he had to improvise now. He knew he would be heavily watched, so if he made his boys do something this weird, the eyes would be mainly focused over them.

"I just hope this will work," Jim stood in the early hours of the morning as his entire team was now standing in front of him yawning and half were almost falling asleep.

"Why are we waking up this early? Yawn!" Rick put his claw-like hand over his face as he was struggling like others to wake up.

"We are going to train," Jim said before clapping his hands together, "c'mon, let's have a morning run. Then everyone can go and train alone."

They gave him a sleeping glance before he clapped again and then started to run.

He first ran in circles around the mansion before he decided the next day to run in the academy for a bit.

Their run there attracted enough attention for them, but no one stopped them despite they heard loud laughters coming from everywhere over them.

"Boss, can't we limit our run inside the mansion?" Kro came to ask with a strange look over his face.

"No, we will keep running around for a couple of hours first."

Jim didn't say that just before leaving the mansion he left his token for the girls to use. They said they might need a couple of hours to absorb the knowledge in the token and so he was trying to waste time here before coming back.

After three more hours he returned to the mansion to find the two girls waiting for him at the front door with wide smiles over their faces and such excited expressions and attitudes that everyone around noticed.

"Wow, the two of you look too godly this morning," Roo moved to Saga while admiring her shimmering beauty.

"Hahaha," Saga chuckled before Tina said in a sweet laugh, "We already told you we belong to master. Stop daydreaming all of you."

She directed her words to everyone standing with gaped mouths and wide eyes.

"We know," Rick gave Jim a side glance out of frustration, "he was much quicker than us to reach you two goddesses. But that doesn't mean we can't admire your beauty."

"He wasn't the quickest," Saga chuckled, "he was the fittest. After all we are all his slaves, right?"

"Indeed that's a fact," Jim had to step in as he glanced over his team as he added while putting his arms around the waists of his girls, "and they are off limit. If you want to have fun with someone, go outside our group and seek out girls yourselves."

"That's not fair boss," Kro complained.

"And who said life is fair," Jim laughed, "after all I'm your boss and you are my slaves despite me being a human and you are mightier races than mine."

He had such a plain smile that made everyone feel irritated but they had nothing in hand to do. "Just man yourselves up and go out and seek your girls with your own efforts," he finally said this in a serious tone before turning around as he added, "I'm taking you out everyday to impress ladies but I never saw you approach any so far."

"Boss that's lame," Rick sighed, "it's not helping to run out in the academy like this."

"Yes boss it feels odd running like that," Kro said.

"Boss we need to impress girls not to make them laugh at us," Gorden said.

"Alright then," Jim turned with a big smile over his face, "make sure then to impress girls in the arena the day after tomorrow. Tomorrow is off, feel free to do whatever you want."

He went inside the mansion with the two girls. While he hugged them in front of everyone, Saga pushed the token inside his cloak without anyone noticing.

"I believe you are shining like two beautiful stars in the middle of space."

"Hahaha, this isn't bad," Saga chuckled while Tina kissed his hand as she sincerely said: "Thank you."

"No it's nothing," he shrugged as he delivered them to their room before he slipped from them as he added, "use the time to train, as I will also do that."

The two girls just nodded and their eyes told him everything they wanted to say. He stressed on the two before even coming to the academy that this would be a great secret and they shouldn't speak about it in front of anyone or even him.

And they understood perfectly why he was stressing on such a thing. After all what he gave to them was a clan grade spell and luckily it was something that suited them both.

And Jim was simply excited about testing the two girls' new spells in the arena.

'You know it's lucky for you to gain such a spell and these two girls at the same time,' the old man laughed while Jim sat in his room and started to contemplate something.

'I know,' he simply muttered, 'but it's not the time to celebrate this for now. I need to devise plans for the battles in the arena.'

'How come you will do that without knowing your enemies' powers?' the old man asked.

'I don't need to,' Jim shook his head before adding, 'I simply will use brute strength and tricks to crush anyone I face.'

'Good point,' the old man laughed, 'such the right mood and attitude to be a strong fairy king.'

'Tsk, stop the old blabber about this fairy king and that fairy king,' Jim inwardly laughed before adding, 'I want to be more prepared than others. My team grew larger than past time and these new players must be finely tuned by me so we can make a magnificent performance later on.'

Jim stayed in his room for the rest of the day and the next day as well. He was devising all the plans and strategies he could think of in his mind, and finally he was able to rest assured when the time of the kick off the academy came.

"Let's go," Jim stood in front of his mansion door as he glanced at his entire team. They were already hyped up, and despite waking up this early they didn't complain or even look sleepy.

"You seem not to sleep last night," he joked with them while moving towards the direction of the main plaza.

According to the booklets he received from the internal affairs and also the books he bought from the Goblin store, the start off the academy will be from the main central plaza which lies just in the central zone of the academy.

This was the only time where the outer disciples could lay sight over the inner part of the academy. After this, they wouldn't be able to step in here again except with the next year start.

"It's a long walk boss," Lan complained before Pat laughed, "it's really longer than I expected."

"We are almost there," Jim smiled as they walked for an hour and half so far. They were walking alone at first, but after half an hour they found themselves surrounded by many disciples who all wore different kinds of cloaks and emblems.

"This looks amazing," Tina was so excited while the boys just sighed while Jenny glared at her with fiery eyes.

"I always heard about the opening big ceremony of the academy," Saga honestly said, "never thought it would turn out to be so majestic."

"This is just the opening ceremony," Kro laughed before Roo jumped in and said, "the fighting after that would be much grandiose. Believe me, the first day of battles is just epic."

"Isn't it only fresh disciples like us fighting against others?" Ashley asked.

"No, it's a full war between the higher and lower grades," Rick laughed before adding, "it's really amazing how a grade would be bullied by those above them and they bully those below them."

"It's a world of bullies then," Jim muttered before smirking, "I hate bullies."
