

Journey to Happy Ending Chapter 187

"Mr. Mu came here on the spur of the moment. I really don't know why." What Luke said was true. Wherever Edward went, he followed and never asked why.

"Okay. "Luke, go with Mark. Show him the way to our house. Edward and I will be along later." Even though Edward was there to pick her up, she still thought it important to show Mark where she lived. Something told her he might feel better knowing she lived in a beautiful house.

"Okay, Mrs. Mu." Since Edward would be with Daisy, there was nothing for Luke to worry about.

"Mark, go with Luke! Follow his car. Take it slow driving through that neighborhood. When you get there, relax. Just feel at home like you're on base. And Justin's there too. Let him know I'll be home in a bit." said Daisy. Daisy worried that Mark would be overwhelmed when he saw Edward's luxury house. He needed to be prepared.

"Okay, Colonel." Mark replied. Mark grew up in a rural area. So it was rare for him to see rich people like Edward who drove luxury cars. He was excited to visit Daisy's place, but he was also nervous--he didn't know what to expect. But Daisy just told him to chill, and he felt better.

Daisy nodded at them, watching them leave. Then she turned her head to look at the man sleeping soundly in the car. She smiled softly and reached out her hands to see if the car door was unlocked. It was. Why? She frowned with doubt, and then she gently sat down in the car.

She tilted her head to gaze at his handsome face. Her heart was full of happiness and sweetness. There were countless women who wanted him. But at this moment, he belonged only to her.

his forehead, and felt his delicate skin. She indulged herself in this moment. This was unimaginable for her. She had dreamed of this opportunity thousands of times and it was right here within reach. Edward was attention, and has tons of women around. How many women have been in his arms? And how many women have tasted her mind. Her cold fingers paused on his warm lips. She gently swept over the soft lips dream. And there was Jessica. Jessica and Edward had been together for years, while tried to save the relationship, it would finally end in ugliness, hurting each other. Daisy didn't want their relationship to become like that, no exception for Daisy. The only difference was that she loved humbly, suddenly moved. He stuck out his tongue and licked the tender fingers on his lips. 'What is something on her fingers. She looked hand and looked away in embarrassment. She didn't know how to hide that he unlocked it. Did she really think that he had fallen asleep? 'I almost never do that, and certainly not with people around.' Edward thought. He had a highly-developed sense of his surroundings. It's never good to be taken by surprise. This was why even a didn't you say anything?" Daisy asked and stared at him in annoyance. Thinking of what she