

Journey to Happy Ending Chapter 262

Did he hate her? Or he couldn't accept she was the one he kissed? She probably shouldn't have come in the first place. Maybe it was time to leave. After all, her co-workers from the C Financial Group had left already. At first, she couldn't bear the thought of leaving him, and had persuaded herself to stay with all her might, but it turned out she had made a bad choice. She was still nothing to him.

They both loved each other, but a minor misunderstanding stopped them from declaring their hearts. They couldn't bridge the abyss of doubts and assumptions. Things were getting tougher and tougher for this love relationship.

Annie didn't move, face buried in her long hair, tears trickling down her cheeks. She didn't make a sound, though her shaking shoulders betrayed her sadness. Rain returned but what he saw plunged his heart into icewater. Did she hate him so much? Did the impulsive kiss make her feel so sad? Did she have someone in her heart? A million questions roared through his mind, but his voice caught in his throat. He couldn't step forward; all he could do was to turn around and walk away in silence. The abyss widened.

One quiet night was a sweet remedy for broken hearts, a lovely melody for desolate minds. It was like a beautiful song played on a flute, soundless notes floating in the air -- sad, soft, lasting but always unreachable.

Over one night, the Lin Group was about to fall apart. It had been one of the strongest companies the night before, and now it was on the brink of collapse. Thanks to its retailing business, their stocks hadn't become complete scrap papers. Edward did show them some small mercy.

Jessica's mind went utterly blank. She put her hands on her belly. This was the only thing that could bring her some happiness. Edward could be very cruel and she knew it well. For so many years he had closed his heart to all women around him. She had thought she was different and she would be the one by his side in the end. But this Daisy appeared from nowhere and took all his attention. This was unforgivable.

is she so special to you? For her, you have no qualms about destroying the Lin Group. Do you know how bad it hurts me? But what should I do then? You know what, the more you want her, the quicker I will get her out of the way. You want to tell her you have nothing to do with me, then I will let her know about our undeniable connection. Let's her contact list and dialed. If she couldn't wrath so easily just by turning off your phone? You can't turn off reputation could be recovered if they claimed that they were backed by FX International Group. He had been working on this all day but no one was buying it. Things say when they took our money. Now it's only a small problem and they just can't wait to take up arms! Great! They want an answer? I will give them one now!"

only a breeze to FX International Group. Edward couldn't be so ruthless to sit there and watch them die. After all, Jessica and Edward had a fling in whole time. You still think he will help us?" Jessica said through gritted teeth. She abandoned her dignity to love this man, trying so hard to please him. She could ignore the countless women around him, hoping one day he would finally discover how great she was, and marry her of his own accord. But she never dreamed that Edward would

He has no reason to do such a thing. Besides, Miss Jessica, you and Mr. Edward are very close, aren't you?" The secretary didn't believe Edward would do this for nothing. He didn't know what You should know how cold-blooded he is. Don't expect he will go easy on us. We should feel lucky he hasn't mounted a hostile takeover yet. I need you to leave, please. I'd like a moment alone." Jessica gestured him out with an impatient wave of her hand. She needed to think things over and hatch a plan to turn things around. Her father had built this company with his blood and sweat. She didn't