

The Love She Didn't Say by Mona

Chapter 10 Turn back the clock

Under the violent stimulation, Alston Rivers fainted at once.

When he woke up, he found himself lying in bed with bottles of alcohol thrown everywhere.

He sat up and all of a sudden felt this scene, inexplicably familiar.

He reached out to grab his phone but saw that it was a phone that he had tossed long ago, and for a moment, he had a wonderful sensation of foreboding.

When he opened his phone, the date display on it made him a little dizzy, it was actually the day after he had just married Elena Forbes.

“What what is this all about?”

Alston muttered, unconsciously hand covered his chest, then, seeming to remember something, and hurriedly unbuttoned his shirt to see.

Stroking his smooth skin Alston sighed, “Sure enough, there’s no cut.”

“Did God bring me back to redeem myself? For my previous blindness?” He has now known everything, everything that Elena Forbes had done for him, but he couldn’t figure out how she thought, did so many things, but never told him.

Even in the end, even though her life was given to him, such a woman, how should he face her.

Thought of this, he looked through his phone, from in and out, he didn’t see Elena’s number.

For a while, he was a little frozen, although he did not like Elena Forbes showing up in front – of him, the contact information of her, is necessary because her ability to work is extremely good.

In the workplace, he often needs to look up to Elena Forbes, even if he does not want to admit it at all, and even regularly disparages Elena Forbes for it back that time.

Where did the prejudice come, isn’t it because of the presence of her, that made him, Alston

Rivers, very incompetent?

Every meeting, those big-wigs’ teasing eyes, made him want to overturn the meeting table, but he had to paste the smile on his face, even if he thought he was the most capable one in the room.

His phone pinged, and after he answered, came Julia Green’s soft voice, “Alston, don’t be sad, it is Elena doesn’t know how to cherish you, you are such a good person, deserve better.”

“Why should I be sad, “Alston Rivers did not understand what the woman was talking about.

But Julia Green is Elizabeth Taylor’s bestie,after all, he still has to care about her feelings, “You have other things you want to say,right?”

Through the phone, Alston Rivers sensed her silence,and he was a little annoyed,” Julia Green?”

“Ah,sorry.” Julia Green’s panicked voice rang out,making Alston wonder.

“Alston,I know you’ve always hated me,this time,I’ll let you go,and I’ll stay away from you in the future,don’t worry.” Before he spoke again,came through a very non-soft voice.

“Elena?!” Alston suddenly became excited,the hoarseness of his tone from the hangover was obvious causing the person across the phone to pause in her breathing as if she was about to say something

But until the end,Alston didn’t hear what she wanted to say,the phone was hung up directly. He threw the phone on the bed in indignation and pounded the bed with his fist fiercely.

“What am I expecting?And how could that hypocrite give up so easily?She must be playing hard to get,surely!! didn’t expect she was much more calculating.”

This time Alston did not notice that his current appearance is more or less different from the usual.

After he calmed down,went to the bathroom and looked at himself in the mirror with a face full of stubble, as if he is in a different world.