

The Love She Didn't Say by Mona

Chapter 16 Let nature take its course

He is not sure how Elena Forbes thinks, but Joey Smith thinks he knows something about this kind of thing.

So, he said, "In fact, the more you avoid him, the more you may not be able to let go of him at the end, it is better to let nature take its course, this way, although not quickly desensitized, but is also the most effective."

"This is new." Elena's cold eyes looked at him, causing Joey to subconsciously take a step back.

"Afraid of me?" Elena Forbes raised her eyebrows, "Since you are afraid of me, you still dare to say those things, it seems that you are really a bit silly and bold!"

Joey Smith stifled, "I'm not silly, I'm afraid that something will happen to you."

"What does it matter to you if something happens to me?" Elena asked with extreme indifference.

Joey opened his mouth, and finally could only shake his head and went out to forget it, such people, not worth his sincere treatment.

But where could he go? After going out he could only stand in the hallway in bewilderment. On the contrary, Elena, looking out the window again, Alston has already left. She sighed and thought about what she had said to Joey Smith earlier.

When he left the door, Elena Forbes saw Joey Smith there on the stairs, leaning against the rail and falling asleep.

She squatted down to his side, her fingertips lingering on his face. He is handsome but his words are indeed a bit too much.

It seems that in the future, before bringing him over, she has to make some rules for him.

While thinking, Joey seems to have felt the itch on his face and raised his hand and grabbed it.

Elena looked at their two entwined hands, she suddenly realized this rebirth, is not so meaningless, there is a little intriguing one.

The next day, Joey did not see Elena. It was her butler who instructed the driver to send him to school.

It was also at this time that Joey Smith felt that although Elena was a bit abnormal, she was generally a good person.

So, when Elena sent her friend request, he accepted it at once.

He clicked into Elena Forbes's homepage, which was monotonous, with an occasional song or two shared, and nothing else worthy of attention.

Elena also did not talk about something big with him, at most sending some holiday greetings, and that's all.

What Joey doesn't know is that he thought her life was as peaceful as a lake, but in those days, she lived quite a blast.

Early that morning, Elena Forbes was asked out by Alston Rivers.

Originally, she did want to avoid him, but accidentally she remembered Joey saying, the more you want to forget the more you cannot forget, rather than let nature take its course.

The place where Alston Rivers books, is always classy and upscale.

Although elegant, in her opinion, you can't do anything and have to pretend you enjoy yourself here. So summed up is very tired, and don't get enough to eat.

So, when the food was here, she was uninterested, of course, if it was in the past, she would have been grateful to finish the food, but this time, she did not want to indulge him again.

Seeing her like this, Alston across from her took the initiative to ask, "Elena, you don't like this?"

Elena Forbes tossed her hair back, "Isn't it obvious." Alston Rivers eyes narrowed, "before you often come here, I thought..." "You think I still like this place?" She asked back with amusement.
