

A Mate for the Latecomer By Veronica Vito Chapter 1

Chapter 1 Beginning

Life was damn well going well for me again. Yeah you heard that right

“AGAIN’

Yes, I may have been locked up, mistreated, and banish from someplace because of something that never happens but it did. I was the only one who was banished but my parents who know the truth resign from the pack and we move to my dad’s good old friend’s pack.

The Alcaders were led by Alpha Lincoln Cruz back then now it’s led by Josh Hamilton. He is the Alpha’s nephew, he was made Alpha simply cause the Alpha’s daughter Aberdeen now my best friend oblige to her parents.

She didn’t want the tle instead she became one of the pack warriors. Plus her mate didn’t want to take over the pack as an Alpha. He loves his position as being the Beta.

Well, I guess being beta is hot, I mean you should have seen him yet he’s my friend’s mate. I have no feelings for him.

It’s funny when we moved here I was not allowed to go anywhere else except to stay indoors. I was home school never allowed to meet anybody else except Aberdeen and Josh.

So after a year saw me being a good girl not causing any more trouble my parents finally decided to let me join the pack training and everything else aociated with the pack.

Six months later on and I saw the proud look on my parent’s faces when I graduated as one of the top warriors in the pack.

But that was back then, the last time I ever saw my parents smiling back at me. Now they are smiling at me from the heaven above and I intend to keep it that way.

The smile fade when someone swings at me, I deflect his punches and kick him right where the sun doesn’t shine.

“Next time don’t do that” I warn him.

I continue to walk again paing by Aberdeen who was training the young pups and the teenagers. She waves at me and all kids turn away from me without smiling.

If anyone wanna know why kids never smile or like me it's because I despise them.

All their whiny, their wailing, and their pouty behavior which everyone thinks it's cute I find annoying. Believe it, their tricks work only on Aberdeen but not me.

So yes I'm like an old hag to them, who only gives a cold glare and a warning look that screams don't mess with me.

"Elle I need you and Aberdeen here in my office," Josh's mind links us.

In the next 40 seconds, I was at his door-knocking 'come in' I open the door and went inside

'sit' he ordered

"I'm not a dog" I complain in a whisper

"did you wanna say something Elle" I nodded my head no.

After a minute our beta Leto came in with Aberdeen trailing behind him. Her face all blushing in red, those two are of course mates as I mentioned before and they both look good together.

That's another thing almost all of our pack members are mated hardly you find anyone without a Mate.

Except for me, if we are all in a gathering or meeting or even a battle people can easily point me out as the unmated since no one stood with a possessive grip around my waist.

Yet the feeling is mutual as there are some of us specifically me who came late in the race, and only to experience or feel pain when our mate died.

Me the latecomer and did the writer says I need a mate Nah I don't think so.
