

A Mate for the Latecomer By Veronica Vito

Chapter 19 Leaving

I don't know what happened to Eric after accepting his rejection. It has been 3 days since it all happens.

Me disrespecting other pack lunas correct that my two sweet enemies. Who want nothing more for my head to be on a platter.

Me to help look for Jea

Me to move and live with Alpha Aaron Reed. Who were Claire's ex-mate and the Alpha of Moonbridge pack?

Lastly, the Alpha's telling me that I'm on the hit list of the hunters.

Yes, they didn't give me any details but thanks to my bestie Aber for explaining it to me.

Practically the reason why packs are looking for Jea is that she could help create barriers and can provide a cure for wolfsbane since the hunters are now mobilizing in numbers and they are seeking war against our kind.

This was all because of the killing that took place when I escape from one of their hideouts. I know I am innocent but there was nothing I could do about it.

Reading through the hit list Aber gave me on that day:

ADVERTISEMENT

First on the list is an unknown wolf, second unknown wolf, another unknown and it goes on until Jay's name is listed in number 9 and mine was at the bottle number 10.

Amazing!! If I thought about it over and over again.

Yet that was days ago and today the Moonbridge beta is picking me up.

I sigh after packing my stuff and seated on the edge of the bed

'So about having a mate who cares Eliz and I are meant to be single and ready to mingle but never jingle.'

I stood up and went in front of the mirror to check myself once more.

'Maybe this is what the moon goddess has set for us,' I told Eliz with excitement and she retorts back by sarcastically saying 'yeah by hiding from our death bed.'

I scowl at her and right when I try to come up with another comeback.

A knock came on the door "coming" I set down my suitcase and went to open the door there the beta stood.

ADVERTISEMENT

He took a step in "we need to go now" I drag my suitcase but he took it away with him. 'Oh, what a gentleman like' coo Eliz.

His steps quicken downstairs, I walk down and found my Alpha, Leto, some of the pack members, and Aberdeen waiting for me

"so I guess this is it."

I smile at them I didn't want to break down that easily. They all hug me wishing me the best. Aberdeen was the last one to hug me she was already in tears.

She was the most magnificent best friend the moon goddess has ever given to me. In the past years, we fought, we quarrel, she even hates me for stealing the spotlight from her when it comes to boys but never in those years did we betray each other like how Serena did to me.

She was the best person to hang out with, sometimes we became enemies but we never left one another's side. We always share, comfort, and understood each other so well. Our jokes were the meanest and we were the only ones who could laugh and knows about it.

I feel bad for leaving my best friend behind, she cries while hugging me. I smooth her hair then pull myself away from her "big girls don't cry" I told her" which she wiped off her tears "stop using Fergie's line on me" she laughed weakly.

The beta e*s me back to the car I gave the pack one last look and told Aberdeen that we'll always call each other before getting into the car.

ADVERTISEMENT

It would be amazing if I am only free from this small world that I've been living in for years to another country for a vacation. Yet fate has played me again by forcing me to live in another foreign place with strangers again.

When we arrived he led me to my room and told me the Alpha is at Eric's pack for a week. I did a mental celebration in my head kicking my feet together with jolly.

Yay Eliz, we're free until the Alpha comes back. I think!

Not all days are rainbows and sunshine but we have to do our best to make it jolly.
Keep smiling no matter how bad your day goes.

Thumbs up if you enjoy the song I've added above.

Love Xox,

Nica