

Life at the Top Chapter 1968

Leave a Comment / Life at the Top

“This is so troublesome.”

After Dean left, Jasper leaned back in his chair and frowned.

Celine glanced at Jasper. Although she had been listening to them this whole time, she did not know Dean’s identity and what kind of agreement he had with Jasper, but out of professional sensitivity and a woman’s intuition, Celine understood that this guy must be scheming against someone again.

“I have just roughly analyzed the market. Although it is now closed because it’s noon, the situation at the opening in the afternoon may not be good. The decline of light industrial enterprises will affect many other enterprises and industries. With such a wide impact, the market will inevitably be affected. At that time, the advantages brought by the listing of state owned enterprises may be cut short.

“In reality, the listing of state-owned enterprises only brings hot money from the outside, but these hot money are all directed at state-owned enterprises. In my opinion, the points in the market are generally inflated.

“Because only a few sectors of state owned enterprises are rising, it does not mean that the current domestic financial situation in Somerland has been eased, and even the existence of the siphoning effect has exerted a negative effect on other sectors.

“Do you have any good advice?” Jasper asked.

Right now, he really needed someone professional enough to give him some advice.

Jasper was also aware of the limitations of his own mind. For example, although there was a positive effect for the listing of state-owned enterprises this time, he failed to consider the siphoning effect.

A wise man would inevitably make mistakes, and Jasper believed that he was neither a saint nor an immortal, so it was impossible for him to achieve perfection. However, since things had escalated to this stage, he could no longer make any mistakes.

“No.”

Celine shook her head.

“Truth be told, from the perspective of modern history, we can see that the most recent event in which countries disintegrated each other’s power through financial means was the Plaza Accord signed by the United States and Sunrise Land in 1985, which was 15 years ago.

“Many people say that after the signing of the Plaza Accord, the wealth accumulated by Sunrise Land in the decades after World War II was plundered. In reality, if we carefully observe the incident, we can find that the lower class and the middle class in Sunrise Land’s society welcomed the agreement after it was signed.

“Because their income could be converted into US Dollars without limit and the premium was very high, an ordinary salesperson could go to shopping paradise such as New York and Bali every month and buy luxury goods wantonly, let alone the large companies that bought out Times Square.

“The saying ‘the people of Sunrise Land can buy the whole world’ came out at that time.

“However, at the time, everyone didn’t realize that they were using Sunrise Land’s foreign exchange reserves for the things they bought abroad, be it a watch or a real estate project.

“In the decades after the end of World War II, the rapid economic development of Sunrise Land, the accumulation of technology, and the development of commerce had made their economic growth in those decades reach a terrifying level. This was followed by a growing foreign exchange reserve.

“But when the people used up the entire country’s foreign exchange reserves, they actively devalued the dollar, playing right into the United States’ plan, which led to the exponential increase in the exchange rate of Sun Dollars to US Dollars, while the trade deficit multiplied several times overnight. The people of Sunrise Land have exchanged decades of accumulation for a bunch of luxury goods and assets abroad.

“Then they find that the Sun Dollars they have on hand are worthless and they can’t exchange foreign currency anymore nor can they exchange it for US Dollars because their foreign exchange reserves have all been squandered.

"As a result, a nation's decades-long accumulation was wiped out overnight as they all became the nutrients for the United States to fill its own fiscal deficit.

"This is the real financial war between countries. When it is deployed, it waters everything quietly, and when it is launched, it will come crashing like a thunderstorm.

"So, although the current situation is bad, it is the best out of all the other bad outcomes. At least the United States has not made up its mind to fight a full-scale financial war with Somerland. Otherwise, at that time, JW and you can just step aside. In a war of that level, any company, even a multinational group, can only be cannon fodder, as what really determines the outcome is political power.

When Celine said this, she paused for a while before continuing, "So if you ask me for advice, I can only give you one, and that is to use your good relationship with the higher-ups to tell them not to use foreign exchange reserves because it will cause the incident to directly escalate."

Jasper waved his hand with a bitter smile and said, "Swallow Capital has probably considered this for a long time. They never planned to use foreign exchange reserves. It is a matter of national defense and security."

"Alright, I'll stop talking to you now. It's after work hours and I'm going to take a beauty sleep. Do you want someone bring you lunch?" Celine asked.

"No need."

Jasper raised his left hand and said helplessly, "This stuff is too nutritious. It makes me feel very full after it's injected into my body, so I don't need to eat anything."

"Alright. I asked the doctor before this, and it can completely replace the nutrients that you usually consume in your diet."

After Celine finished speaking, she turned around and walked away seductively and enchantingly, like a feline.

After Celine left, Jasper returned to the lounge with his IV drip in tow. He wanted to rest his eyes for a while and wait for the opening in the afternoon.

Maybe it was because he had not had a good rest for too long, or maybe it was because the IV drip was too powerful, but Jasper slept very soundly. When he opened his eyes again, it was already 2:25 p.m. and the market was about to open.

The opening in the afternoon was exactly as Celine expected.

A-shares were still in a state of extreme contrast, but in the afternoon, the major stocks on both sides had either hit the limit down or limit up, so these funds began to enter other listed companies in related sectors.

Jasper did nothing in the afternoon, as he just watched Soros's movements.

On the other hand, Soros seemed to be going crazy, he had only one goal in his mind and that was to destroy all the listed companies belonging to the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.

As all the stocks of listed companies in the main industries of the Haddock Chamber of Commerce hit their respective limit downs, the scope of this blow soon spread to encapsulate all industries and listed companies that they could find belonging to the Haddock Chamber of Commerce.

One really had to lament the power of capital.

These listed companies, which were almost always looked up to by countless people in their respective industries in Somerland, seemed incredibly vulnerable at this moment, as if they were made from paper when faced with the attack of the Quantum Fund.

At the closing time, the market closed at 2577 points.

Foreign capital enjoyed an overwhelming victory.

Life at the Top Chapter 1969

Leave a Comment / Life at the Top

The victory of the foreign capital upset both Jasper and the government.

“Originally, I thought the listing of state owned enterprises would alleviate the current decline of the domestic A-share market on a broad scale, but at present, although this strategy has achieved certain effects and results, it was far less effective than we expected.”

After the break, Jasper immediately got in touch with Mr. McNeal.

After this, Jasper would propose a very difficult request. Mr. Mason and the others would not necessarily have the decision-making power, so Jasper could only contact the person with the highest position possible, namely Mr. McNeal.

Thanks to Adele's kindness, Jasper and Mr. McNeal were able to talk to each other directly, which was truly the best decision at that moment.

Mr. McNeal pondered for a while, then said, "We plan to let the social security fund enter the market ahead of schedule."

Jasper took a deep breath and said, "I am also calling you because of this.

"At present, Soros is still buying foodstuffs in large sums in the futures market, and if we fail to defend ourselves on the financial level, there is likely to be a social and economic regression, but the price of foodstuffs will rise dramatically.

"Once such a situation occurs, it will become very difficult for us. When that happens, it will be difficult to continue to develop the economy in Somerland, let alone maintain the needs of people's livelihood.

"So, I hope Swallow Capital will consider my suggestion and let the social security fund enter the market tomorrow!"

Jasper's words made Mr. McNeal go silent for a while.

Jasper could clearly hear Mr. McNeal's breathing on the other end of the phone getting heavier.

"Tomorrow? Isn't this too hasty?" Mr. McNeal asked after some consideration.

"It's not, and it's honestly still too conservative. If I learned of the current situation earlier, I would have asked them to enter the market today."

Jasper continued in a deep voice, "The United States market will open tonight, and I will launch a full-scale attack. I am going to force Soros to face extreme pressure in one breath. If we fight a protracted battle, we have no chance of winning, so we must finish this in the shortest possible time to wipe out the power in Soros' hand."

"If I crash the United States stock market tonight, the investors backing Soros will face enormous pressure, whereby all the pressure will be transferred onto Soros. By then, he will have to make a choice to either withdraw or fight a decisive battle with us."

As he said this, Jasper's voice softened, but his tone became increasingly serious, "Mr. McNeal, this battle has been fought for too long, and neither private capital nor government capital can withstand such a long conflict. After all, our country is still very weak right now, and we need to focus our energy on developing the nation. Everything else can be put aside for the time being, so this decisive battle should be done sooner rather than later."

Mr. McNeal responded quickly this time. He said, "Okay, I got it and I will give you a n answer as soon as possible."

"Thank you, Mr. McNeal."

Swallow Capital.

After putting down the phone, Mr. McNeal looked up at everyone in the conference room, stood up, and said, "Everyone, I think you all have heard Jasper's suggestion clearly. I think we should really think about it now."

The old man sitting in front of the table said with a smile, "Well, this kid is getting better and better, and he can actually look at this issue from a comprehensive perspective."

As soon as these words were spoken, the other participants looked at each other. Then, they suppressed the emotions in their eyes and stayed quiet.

The old man wearing black-rimmed tortoiseshell glasses turned his head to look at a fierce-looking old man beside him with a serious expression and said with a smile, "Mr. Butler, what do you think?"

"I agree with Jasper's opinion." The dignified old man's answer was straightforward, he did not hesitate at all.

The old man laughed and said, "Well then, let's vote and get a result as soon as possible so that they can carry this out as soon as possible."

By night, Jasper received a reply from Mr. McNeal just as the United States stock market was about to open.

Tomorrow, the social security fund would enter the market fully.

This was the best news for Jasper.

However, at the same time, the pressure on Jasper became even greater.

This was because if he wanted to completely stabilize the domestic financial market, the entry of social security funds into the market was only one aspect. The other aspect was not any less important than the entry of social security funds, and that was the victory that Jasper needed to achieve in the United States stock market tonight.

The more successful Jasper was, the more anxious the backers behind Soros would be, and by virtue of this, greater the pressure on Soros' Quantum Fund.

By further expanding upon the victory in the United States stock market, the huge pressure would force Soros and his Quantum Fund to end the harvesting and crashing of the domestic market as soon as possible in exchange for a chance for a decisive battle between the two sides. This was what Jasper would do tonight.

Moreover, it could not be delayed, so it had to be fully implemented tonight.

After thinking about it, Jasper called Jake.

"Tonight, we will do whatever it takes to destroy the top listed companies on the Nasdaq and Dow Jones that we drafted before.

"Take this plan."

Jasper handed Jake a plan he had written himself. "I've written the target stock prices of these companies listed above. The first task tonight is to snipe the stock prices of these companies and force them to these prices and then immediately buy them. Remember, we must use the short positions that we have never used to buy them. Do it through small-scale acquisitions with high frequency, and try not to attract the attention of others."

Jake looked down at the plan which listed the names of more than 20 companies and the current stock price information in detail, as well as the target stock price and the description of the amount of stocks to be purchased.

With just a glance, Jake was sure that the companies on this plan included the Internet, technology, automobile, and other companies that were bound to have great prospects in the new century.

It was just that some of these companies were old-school big companies while there were even some that he had never even heard of before.

However, this was not the time to ask questions. After Jake took the plan, he said to Jasper, "Mr. Laine, don't worry. We will definitely carry out this task well."

"Tonight will be very stressful. Let's go out and watch the market performance together."

After patting Jake on the shoulder, Jasper got up and said.

"Okay." Jake nodded.

In the evening of Somerland time, the United States financial market opened. Tonight was destined to be a night of fireworks.

Life at the Top Chapter 1970

Leave a Comment / Life at the Top

The moment before the opening of the United States stock market, those well known large companies agreed to announce their stock buyback plans by chance.

The news did not have much impact on the market.

At present, anyone with a discerning eye could see that the stock price of these top companies were far lower than their actual value, but when would it be at rock bottom? Would they get stuck in the middle or would they get a very high price if they bottom-fished now? Everything was still unknown.

After all, very few investors truly had money to spare to invest in stocks. They all had to make the money turnaround fast. Even if they knew that a particular stock would rise in two or three years or even longer, the vast majority of stock investors would not choose this stock.

It was because the increase was uncertain and the timeline for long-term investment was too long.

Those who liked a stable income would simply deal with a fixed minimum financial manager. Meanwhile, most of the ones who plunged into the stock market with their own money were speculators who wanted to throw a sprat to catch a herring and reap huge profits quickly.

Thus, the whole market did not fluctuate much when facing this news, instead, everyone fell silent.

They were looking at the JW Foundation.

At the moment, everyone knew that JW Foundation was the largest dealer in the United States stock market.

Even if they wanted to respond, they would wait for JW Foundation to respond first.

On the other hand, JW Foundation did not make people wait for a long time. As they were faced with the repurchase of shares by these leading companies, the likes of which included Weresoft and Apple, JW Foundation's response was simple and harsh they would go short! If the current JW Foundation wanted to go short, its power was vastly different from before.

With the 210 billion US Dollars earned from the subprime market along with their principal, JW Foundation now had a war chest close to the 300 billion US Dollar mark.

What kind of concept would this be?

If it was converted to Somer Dollars, it would have exceeded one trillion Somer Dollars.

If JW Foundation withdrew all its funds now, it would become the world's largest venture capital institution based on market value, as well as one of the companies with the strongest financial strength in the blink of an eye.

However, the premise was that the JW Foundation did not distribute these funds.

One had to know that this money was.

made up of countless large and small

Somerland capital Somerland descends.

Foundation from turning into real behemoth, wantonly trampling on the States Jones Nasdaq markets.

Nasdaq has now become that suffered the hardest hit. opened at 19986 points, after the opening, although there was slight upward the repurchase plans major leading companies, stock market price decreased quickly we started shorting.

current encounters integer support it won't take more minutes to break through this point."

With funds at hand, had risen. Right now, Jake high spirits.

Before working daddy Nasdaq market.

Now he was not only a daddy, but he was also the daddy of these famous and world renowned companies,

The high of putting a massive batch of short orders on the market with his approval was incomparable.

Jasper was also in a good mood when he looked at the red-faced Jake.

"This is just the beginning. I've given you all the funds. If the Nasdaq cannot be brought below 15000 points before the close today... Baz has been coveting your position for a very long time."

Jake was startled and hurriedly said, "Mr. Laine, don't worry, I'll get back to work now!"

After Jake went out, Jasper leaned back on his chair in a relatively comfortable position.

Now that he had nearly 300 billion US Dollars of funds on hand, it was not very difficult to achieve their goal. The main concern was whether those international hot money would come in to create confusion, Unfortunately, the thing that Jasper was worried about actually happened.

When the Nasdaq stock market index fell to 18000 points, Jasper clearly noticed the abnormal fluctuations in the stock prices of some important companies.

He could see large quantities of small positions forming in the stocks of larger, renowned companies.

This was definitely not the stock repurchase of those companies themselves. If it was their own stock repurchase, they would have made it known to the world and publicize it with great fanfare.

However, the buying behavior that was happening now seemed to be an undercurrent hidden under the general turbulence. It was not obvious-it was not large in scale but also nothing to laugh at.

For the time being, Jasper did not know whose funds these were as everything was done carefully. It seemed that they were afraid that Jasper would find out, so every time they bought in, they would buy without affecting the market price.

Although it did not affect the market for now, they were like an extremely annoying piece of glue.

When Jasper lowered the stock price by a little, they would buy a little, and when he lowered it a little bit more, they would buy a little bit more.

If this continued, Jasper would be working on this fund in vain.

Jasper never wanted to suffer such a silent loss.

When the Nasdaq fell to nearly 17900, Jasper told Jake to stop.

As soon as it stopped, the glue that was like a stealing mouse, was immediately exposed to the sun.

The stock prices of these important leading companies had temporarily stabilized and after the trading volume had slowed down, their purchases became particularly obvious.

It knew that its intentions had been exposed, and in an instant, it canceled all the unsettled orders and immediately disappeared into the sea of funds without a trace.

"Keep shorting," Jasper narrowed his eyes and said to Jake.

The stop just now was just a warning to the other party that he had discovered them and that he was pissed. If they continued to accumulate money untactfully, Jasper would beat them up.

After that, the funds did not appear again.

The Nasdaq market plummeted.

The drop of more than 3000 points could already be described as a crash.

This was the biggest one-day drop in the Nasdaq stock market since the financial crisis.

The entire financial market of the United States was full of grief. It was unknown how many people's positions were liquidated on this trading day, and it was unknown how many bosses of fund companies jumped off from high buildings.

The situation was even more chaotic now.

In the chaos, the target position of Jasper's bottom-fishing was getting closer and closer.

At the same time, the tolerance of the United States financial circle was getting closer and closer to the limit.

Eventually, some people could not help but take action.