

Life at The Top – Chapter 1732 - 1734

There was a lot of traffic on the highway from Beverly Hills to the airport.

Jasper was sitting in the car with his eyes closed and he was dozing off.

He was really exhausted after these few days. He really could not figure out how a woman could be so energetic.

Wendy was also a woman, but after three times a night, Wendy would complain that she could not stand it anymore... Meanwhile, it seemed that Anna was just warming up.

This was so terrifying... How were they going to live like this?

At this moment, Jasper felt the car jolt suddenly, and then there was a violent impact.

After that, a powerful thrust pushed Jasper firmly against the window of the car.

Then, the world spun around him and he heard the sound of steel rubbing against the road, followed by the screeching of tires after an emergency brake.

All of this felt so familiar that it suddenly made Jasper feel as if he was once again being hunted down by the agents in Sunrise Land half a month ago.

After that experience, Jasper was very proficient this time. He did not need help or prompting from others. He stubbornly grabbed the handle of the door, squatted down, and hid behind the car door and the passenger seat.

This could ensure that if a killer wanted to kill him, he could not be easily seen from the car window and killed with a single shot.

When the car stopped shaking, Jasper looked up and saw the driver lying on the steering wheel. It was unknown whether he was dead or alive. This time, no one was around to protect him.

He gritted his teeth and pushed the door open before climbing out of the car, battered and exhausted. When he lifted his head to look around him, he saw that he was involved in a massive car accident. There were overturned cars everywhere as people's screams and cries filled the air. At this moment, the door of a Cadillac on the other lane opened and the person who got out caused Jasper to lift his eyebrows fiercely. It was Echo!

Echo was holding a gun as he walked toward Jasper. "Jasper, I've been waiting too long for this day to come." Echo's face was filled with perverted savageness and pride, "So what if you have tricks up your sleeves? So what if you defeated me until I had nothing left in the stock market? You and I are the same and at the end of the day, we only have one life. I'm going to kill you right now. Do you think you're impregnable to knives and bullets even if you're the most powerful man on earth?" When Jasper saw Echo aiming the gun at him, his adrenaline surged to its peak. "Wait!" Jasper shouted. Suddenly, Echo fired.

After he pulled the trigger, the sound of the gunshot reverberated across the empty highway, causing the people who were already panicking to panic even more. The bullet seemed to whiz past from Jasper's hair. Jasper could even smell the gunpowder and burnt smell lingering in the air. "Hahaha!" Echo chortled maniacally. He was like a hunter who had gotten his way and was admiring his prey as it struggled before its inevitable death.

“Are you scared?”

Echo’s expression looked malevolent as he said with a laugh, “I guess you can still feel fear and panic, huh? Are you going to beg me for mercy?”

Chapter 1733

“Will you let me go if I beg you for mercy?” Jasper asked.

At this time, Jasper’s hand that was behind him secretly pressed the phone’s call button twice. This was to redial the last call that Jasper made.

And that call was to Anna.

Jasper would not actively involve Anna, but there was a team of professionally trained bodyguards beside Anna.

Jasper was not an idiotic male chauvinist. Thus, when he needed help, Jasper would never hesitate to use all the resources available around him.

The most important thing was that Jasper knew that Anna was very smart, and that she had this tacit understanding with him and would know what to do.

“I won’t!”

Echo was still immersed in his incomparable joy and did not notice what Jasper had done. “But I can let you live a little longer.

“Or experience a less painful way to die.”

“A person like you should be very reluctant to die, right? After all, you have everything and you strived for everything you have, so you must be very reluctant to leave all of it, right?”

Echo’s eyes flashed aggressively and he grinned at Jasper, “Kneel and climb in front of me like a dog. Otherwise, I will torture you to death bit by bit.”

Jasper said hurriedly, “Don’t do anything stupid.

“Put the gun down. You know I don’t have any weapons with me, and I don’t know how to use a gun, so I am not a threat to you at all.”

Chapter 1734

“Contact the chief of the Los Angeles Police Department immediately and tell him that I want to see a helicopter within 10 minutes, otherwise, the Laws will use all their connections and strength to make sure he loses his job next month!” Anna ordered in an icy tone.

The bodyguards did not realize what had happened, but judging from Anna’s reaction, it was definitely something earth-shattering. Therefore, they did not even dare to hesitate. If Anna asked them to turn around to head to the highway leading to the airport, then they would immediately step on the brakes to make a sharp turn. If Anna said that she wanted to contact the chief of police in Los Angeles, they would immediately start calling.

Since Anna had been staying in Los Angeles for half a year, in order to facilitate some business deals and maintain good relations with the local politicians in Los Angeles, the chief of the police department did not doubt Anna’s words and immediately arranged a helicopter to fly to Anna.

The space on the helicopter was limited, so Anna walked toward the helicopter with two of her best bodyguards.

“Head to the highway to the airport. If there is a traffic jam on the way, do everything you can to get through it.”

After Anna said that, she got into the helicopter and left. The helicopter picked up a gust of wind, hovered for a while, and then flew toward the horizon. Through the window of the cabin, Anna looked at the severe traffic jam that stretched for several kilometers down on the highway below.

Her brows were furrowed and her palms were full of sweat. Aside from the icy murderous expression in her eyes, there was also worry. “Jasper, don’t let anything happen to you. If not, I will bury everyone who hurt you alive.”

“Miss Law, we’re almost there.”

The helicopter moved fast and soon after, the pilot told Anna the source of the accident.

She also spotted the stand off between Jasper and Echo. When she saw that Jasper was still fine, she let out a long sigh of relief.

When the helicopter flew over, Echo and Jasper noticed it immediately. It was inevitable. The noise from the helicopter was too loud, so as long as you were not deaf, you could hear it from several kilometers away.

After seeing the hovering helicopter, Echo and Jasper’s hearts sank at the same time.

Echo was surprised by the speed of the Los Angeles police because they were able to send a helicopter to the scene so quickly. It seemed that he had no time to continue torturing Jasper and enjoy the last bit of pleasure in his life.

Meanwhile, Jasper knew that the most dangerous challenge that could directly determine whether he could get through the situation alive had presented itself.

“Jasper, since the LAPD is even urging you go to hell, you should go now!”

Echo’s words made Jasper’s heart beat frantically.

“Wait!

“You said you don’t have anything? It’s okay, I can give it to you.

Between you and me,

there has long been no stance of grievance and opposition. So why do you have to go this far?”

Echo laughed wildly, "Jasper, I really wanted to watch you struggling so desperately to survive for a little longer but it's too late and there is no time left. You thought I would be so stupid to deliberately let you buy so much time? I just wanted to admire you while you're in this state."

"However, since I can't enjoy it anymore, forget it. Burn in hell! Burn in hell now!"

After shouting maniacally, Echo raised his hand and shot Jasper twice. When Echo was speaking, Jasper noticed the dangerous aura in the opponent's movements and eyes. So, at almost the moment in which Echo raised his arm, the reaction speed of Jasper's body skyrocketed at that brief moment between life and death.

Before Echo pulled the trigger, he rolled on the ground. It did not matter if he looked good or not and it did not matter how embarrassing he appeared. His life was more important right now!

A split second later, two small holes appeared on the hard asphalt of the highway where Jasper was standing before. A few pieces of rubble flew across the highway, but Jasper was not injured

Echo was infuriated when he saw this. He lifted his hand and turned the gun before shooting maniacally at Jasper's escaping figure.

Even Anna could hear the continuous sounds of gunshots from inside the helicopter cabin. She almost gritted her teeth into powder. Then, she did something very doughty.

She pushed the bodyguard next to her away, tightened her seatbelt, and opened the door of the helicopter.

This was a helicopter used by the police, and the police in the United States had always been known for its luxurious equipment, especially when it came to megacities like Los Angeles. They had explosion-proof trucks and armored vehicles, so long-range sniper rifles were standard-issue equipment in this kind of helicopter. Anna grabbed the sniper rifle that was so heavy that an ordinary adult man could not even lift it. After fixing it in place with a special holder, Anna turned her head and aimed at Echo's figure through the scope.

Everyone knew that the princess of the Law family was a genius in fashion design, but few people knew that Anna's second favorite hobby was shooting. This was a hobby that ordinary women would never pick up, but she was the only child of a rich family in Harbor City who had passed the exam and had a gun license, Besides this, she was also the champion in the amateur group of the 3rd Shooting Contest in Harbor City. Even so, Anna mostly shot in the shooting range, where the environment was relatively friendly. Now, she was on a unsteady helicopter. What was worse was that the wind speed of the helicopter's propeller was extremely high, which could have a serious impact on the trajectory of the bullet. Especially over long-distance. It was normal for a single shot to deviate from the target by more than tens of meters. Hence, Anna knew that she only had one chance to shoot. The door was opened and the wind poured into the helicopter. Anna sat on the edge of the door with her legs dangling in the air. She held the sniper rifle as her vision became focused and sharp.

“Miss, it’s too dangerous!”

The bodyguard who was pushed away rushed forward like crazy and tried to pull Anna back inside. However, Anna stopped him with just a sentence.
“I’ll kill anyone who wants to take my man’s life. Do you believe that I’ll kill you too if you try to stop me?”

After she said that, the two bodyguards were so shocked that they did not even dare to breathe too loudly.

At this moment, Anna aimed at Echo who was a few hundred meters away.

Through the scope, she saw that Echo was still chasing Jasper while shooting continuously, but he did not notice that he had been targeted by a sniper rifle.

The crosshair deviated from Echo until only half of Echo’s body could be seen in the scope.

This was the ballistic correction calculated by Anna. She could only hope that this shot could save Jasper.

After taking a deep breath, Anna’s eyes became cold and fierce. Then, like an angry tigress, she pulled the trigger without hesitation.

Bang!

The peculiar dull sound of the long range anti-materiel sniper shot exploded and filled the air.