

A Lifetime Love

A Lifetime Love

Chapter 24

Denver was hanging out with his friend, and he did not expect to run into Lucien's car.

There were not many Rolls-Royce in Jadeborough, and Lucien's plate number was one of a kind.

Thus, they recognized it right away.

Denver vaguely spotted Lucien entering his car with a young lady. With that, he got genuinely curious and started a stalking game,

They trailed Lucien's car from a distance and arrived at a famous steamboat restaurant in the city.

The next moment, Lucien brought Seraphina upstairs and went into a private room.

Denver and his friends also followed the couple in.

The restaurant's owner knew all these wealthy customers, and he would not dare to offend any of them.

The owner thought Denver was with Lucien, so he revealed Lucien's room number to Denver.

Before Lucien and Seraphina could settle down and order their food, the door suddenly opened.

Lucien and Seraphina lifted their heads and stared at the door.

They saw Denver leaning against the door with a provocative smile. "Mr. Riviere, I thought you just got married? How could you be here with your little lover instead of accompanying your newlywed wife at home?"

Hearing his words, both Lucien and Seraphina were rendered speechless.

Taking a glance at Seraphina, Denver was stunned momentarily.

He had seen countless beautiful women throughout his life, especially female celebrities in the entertainment industry.

Just when he thought he had seen it all, he was utterly impressed by the lady in front of him.

It was rare to see someone who had no traces of plastic surgery and did not need to put on makeup.

At that instant, Denver forgot his purpose here as he kept scanning over Seraphina.

She had a baby fat on her face, with a cute chubby chin.

He had never seen such smooth and fair skin. Just one look at the woman already told Denver that she had taken good care of her skin.

VA

The shape of her eyes was just right, and she had an inner double eyelid, which made the woman even more unique.

She had the features so exquisite and distinctive that rendered Denver utterly stupefied. Not only that, the woman also exuded a conservative aura.

LO

aura.

Even though she was only wearing a white shirt and black pants, her charisma made her look like a goddess.

Denver was wholly impressed with Lucien's taste for women. Not bad. How could he get such a pretty mistress?

"Mr. Salisbury, you're a funny man." Lucien's lips curled into a smile as he knew Denver had probably misunderstood.

Denver did not want to give up as he cast a question toward Seraphina.

"Miss, do you know this man had just gotten married?"

Seraphina nodded slightly.

"Wow. How could mistresses nowadays be so bold and shameless? Are you proud of it? I bet you are. After all, Mr. Riviere is such a wealthy man. But aren't you guys afraid of getting captured by the media? Mr. Riviere, how will you explain to the Hoult family then? I heard you've just given them half a billion to show your sincerity. How could you do such a disrespectful act to them now?"

Denver seemed to be gloating at what was transpiring at the moment,

After all, he thought he was able to catch Lucien in the act right after he had just gotten married.

Denver's confident look made Lucien almost burst into laughter.

With a low chuckle, he uttered, "Mr. Salisbury, I believe you have misunderstood. Let me her to you then. This is Seraphina, my wife."

With an indifferent expression, Seraphina nodded slightly as an acknowledgment.

Hearing Lucien's words, Denver froze on the spot as he stared at the woman in disbelief.