

Let Me be Your Ex Chapter 515– 516

Chapter 515

While Rania was at the family dinner, Miriam over there also received a call from her mother after the plane landed, for the same thing.

Shao's mother couldn't wait, rushed over from Jincheng to have a meal with the Lu family. On the surface, it was a meeting with the in-laws and discussions about marriage, but the most important thing was that she missed the two grandchildren of the Shao family.

As soon as Miriam's phone was hung up, Bryan's cell phone rang.

Unsurprisingly, Mother Shao made the call. He reported the address of a Chinese restaurant and hurriedly sent people home to pick up the young grandson and Mother Lu.

It's like a posture of cutting first and playing later.

Mother Lu, who was so disturbed that she received a call from Mother Shao at home, was always anxious. She didn't know what medicine was stuffed in the gourd of the old lady of the Shao family, so she reluctantly approached Miriam for help.

If she sincerely agrees to the fact that the two children are together and intends to go to Zhang Luo's marriage, Mother Lu is naturally happy, but after learning the previous lesson, she never dared to think of Mother Shao too purely.

I was fidgeting at home, waiting for nearly an hour, and finally waited until Miriam and Bryan returned home.

The two of them looked like sc*mbags, and their faces were stained with fatigue.

When Mother Lu saw it, she was thinking about going in and coaxing her to sleep with her little grandson, and without turning her head, she told her daughter all the way, "You are also tired. An Yan didn't sleep well yesterday. Why don't you go there? Tell me, let's make another appointment next day?"

It was natural that Bryan couldn't intervene in this matter, so Miriam responded and spoke after his mother entered the baby's room.

She patted her mother's shoulder with one hand, as if comforting: "Mom, I know what you are worried about. If you don't want to go, I will say that you are not in good health these two days and need to be recuperated. We will make an appointment again in the future, but I He Bryan must go."

When Mother Lu heard this, she looked a little embarrassed, staring at the little guy jumping on the bed, and asked, "What about these two kids?"

Of course, Miriam also knew Shao's mother's greatest thoughts, and she was simply frank: "It must be taken over to let her elderly take a look, but you can rest assured that she will not easily say to bring them around now."

In the baby's room, the two adults were silent for a while, and only the little guy's incomplete grunt sounded in the space.

Mother Lu, who had been struggling secretly for a long time, finally stood up with a slap on her thigh, "Then I have to go too. If the old lady dares to think about my grandson again, I will fight with her if I defy this old life."

Miriam looked at her mother and saw that she was really impassioned with a heroic death, she couldn't help but smile, and fiddled with the old man's stiff arm hanging in the air, "Don't worry, Bryan is here. It's not about fighting you. Life."

When the two children were packed, they changed into decent clothes and came out. After hearing the sound of the bedroom door turning, Bryan had already paced to the door alone, pushed the baby stroller to the door, and rushed to the two who came out holding the baby. People stretched out their hands, "Give it to me."

He stuffed Xiao Anyan into the stroller, holding Anxi with one hand, pushing all the way to the elevator.

Lu Anyan in the cart looked around, and finally turned his head and stared at the man behind him, his eyes rounded with dissatisfaction, and then he hummed in his mouth, and he sang an untuned song.

The song is not considered a song, but some of the words can still be understood. Bryan's eyebrows were carefully listened, and a face collapsed in an instant.

"Why is only mother good in this world? What about father?" He stared at the little guy's round head, and all his unhappiness was written on his face.

And Xiao Anyan played with his fingers and understood what his father said, faintly uttered three words: "Daddy is bad!"

Anxi in his arms was dissatisfied, and his little cheek rubbed against Bryan's face. Although his chin was a bit pierced, Shao Anxi still liked it and contended with his brother, "Daddy is a good person."

"Daddy is a bad guy."

Everything can be tolerated, but when it comes to the judgment of Bryan's attributes, the brother has never compromised.

In the end, as usual, Miriam played the round and took Xiao Anxi from Bryan's arms and placed it in another empty seat of the stroller. He also took the handrail and pushed the two forward. For a while.

As he walked, he smiled and asked An Xi, "Does Daddy's beard pierce people?"

Anxi blinked his eyes twice, very sincerely: "Punching people..."

After waiting for a while, the elevator door opened. After going downstairs, I boarded the car. It took about 20 minutes to drive to the Chinese restaurant Shao Mu said.

Shao Mu and Lu Mu met again, and the scene was somewhat awkward.

But this is also a scene that can be expected. After waiting for someone to sit down, Shao's mother motioned a look at a young man who followed. The man nodded to comprehend, and in a moment he took out a dozen large and small bags, including clothes, jewelry, and nutritional supplements from behind the screen in the private room.

"I'm sorry about the last time. It's a bit of a bit of connotation. Since Bryan's and Miriam's affairs have been settled, we are also the inevitable relationship between relatives. For the two children, we hope that the matter can be the same. Passed."

Mother Shao's words were fair, and she moved out of Miriam again, which was considered to have grasped Lu's fate, so the old man pursed his lips and went down this step, "As long as the two children are good, I have no opinion."

Hearing Miriam here, she felt a bit sad.

Mother Lu's temperament has always been soft, and for her daughter, she has made all kinds of compromises.

Bryan noticed it in time, got up and picked up the teapot, first poured tea for Mother Lu, and then poured his mother's cup. When Shao mother noticed this, she was faintly unhappy, but she quickly endured it and turned her head to see the two guys chatting in the stroller, and she was suddenly attracted to her.

When Anxi saw Mother Shao again, she was still a little timid. Seeing the old man walking over, she curled her lips and stretched her arms towards Mother Lu as if to cry.

Mother Lu was distressed, and immediately pushed aside the chair under her to get up, and hugged the little guy to coax.

Shao's mother rushed forward and suddenly stopped. The expression on her face was obviously not pretty. When she was rubbing her fingers and couldn't get off the stage, there was a voice of small milk suddenly coming from under her body, vaguely calling "Grandma" ".

The old man's eyes lit up, and when he saw Xiao Anyan who was still sitting in the stroller, his face turned from cloudy to clear in an instant. He hugged the little guy in his arms, kissed him left and right, and raised his eyebrows with joy.

Miriam sat next to Bryan, and silently took her husband's hand under the table. God knows how lucky she is at this moment. She gave birth to twins.

Elderly people on both sides are one person and one person. There is no competition or grabbing. I don't know how harmonious the scene is.

I originally thought that the meal would go smoothly than expected, but unexpectedly, a small accident happened during the period, which brought together the artillery fire of the two elderly people.

The reason was that Xiao Anyan wanted to change a diaper halfway through. Mother Lu put him on the counter. When changing, she couldn't help but groaned and called "Kid Lu Anyan". As a result, Mrs. Shao, who was smiling and lovingly beside him, turned instantly on the face. It collapsed.

"Lu Anyan?" The old man said he couldn't accept it. "When will the surname be changed back? How can a grandson follow her maiden name."

Mother Lu became even more unhappy when she heard that, "The two children were originally named Lu, but Anxi has changed your Shao family's surnames. Why can't Anyan talk to our Miriam surname? Besides, this is due to the discussion between their young couple. Yes, we are elders and can't talk."

"Can't speak?" Mother Shao akimbo, "Our grandson of the Shao family must have the surname Shao, otherwise outsiders know what it is like?"

After the two of you said a word to me, they put the little grandson aside and quarreled happily.

The little grandson who didn't know why was happy watching the fun, clapped his hands happily, and suffered a lot. Miriam and Bryan tried to intervene for mediation several times, but they were silenced by the two old people's "Shut up".

Chapter 516

The entangled issues between the two elderly people are not worth mentioning in Bryan and Miriam's eyes.

Miriam didn't pay attention to whose surname the child had to follow, and Bryan had no such thoughts. Even if both children had the surname Lu, they were also his child Bryan.

Seeing that the two elders were tired from the quarrel, each sitting on one side and not talking, Miriam shook her head helplessly, but in fact she felt at ease in her heart inexplicably.

The inevitable quarrels and running-in are all within her expected acceptance range. As long as the two elderly people don't talk too much to each other and keep getting along with each other in the past, everything else is easy to say.

Today, although Shao's mother was aggressive and her momentum was not weak, she still followed when Lu's mother was desperate and holding her grandson to go out.

Without pushing Lu Mu hurriedly in the car door, she stopped Miriam who was following behind her.

The old man condensed his eyebrows and glanced at the direction of the body with a little dissatisfaction, "This old lady has a pretty temperament. She hasn't started talking about serious matters, and the dishes are not ready. She is annoyed for the first time."

First, I complained a few words. I was full of anger and looked uncomfortable. Later, the speaker suddenly compromised, "I don't think we can talk about it today. You can take her home first. When we calm down, we will make an appointment. time."

Miriam responded and got into the car behind her mother, leaving Bryan and saying something to her mother.

A meal ended up being broken up.

On the way back, Lu Mu was sitting in the back seat of the car, her face pale with anger. Miriam looked quietly through the rearview mirror, and saw that the old man was holding his chest and breathing smoothly, as if trying to endure it before the attack continued.

It's rare that the two little guys were playing and frolicking along the way so that the atmosphere in the carriage would not become particularly dull. Xiao Anxi, who learned to perceive her words, took a bite of a soft and waxy "grandma", and finally gave Mother Lu's heart. Beggar.

When he got home, Miriam followed his mother to settle the child in the room. The old man sighed, not for himself, but just worried about his daughter's emotions.

After changing the two little guys back to the pajamas at home, Mother Lu raised her eyes to look at Miriam, who was busy taking care of herself, and asked softly, "Miriam, do you blame your mother for not knowing the generality?"

"No, Mom." Miriam shook her head, with a slight smile at the corner of her mouth.

The old man sighed again, and sat down on the chair next to him, with some moist corners of his eyes. "Actually, my mother also thinks that as long as you and Bryan live well, the child's surname is not that important. But the old lady's personality is also yours. I know, if you accommodate this matter, there will be other things to wrong you later."

Mother Lu thinks that if the Shao family really agrees to the two children being together, they should always show some sincerity. Money is not important, but the important thing is that her daughter can no longer be angry with the old woman. .

"When you married Bryan, after obtaining the certificate, the family simply ate a meal, and my daughter became the daughter-in-law of someone else's family. At that time, knowing that you were happy, your father and I were also happy for you."

Recalling the past, Mother Lu felt a lot of sourness in her heart. After a pause, she added, "There is no such simple thing to marry and take a wife. It is often not agreed upon a meal, so don't worry."

In the end, I was afraid that my daughter was upset.

Miriam curled her lips and smiled. When she looked up, she saw that the corners of her mother's wrinkle-wrapped eyes were filled with a little damp, and then she looked at the newly added white hair on her sideburns, and suddenly choked her throat.

"I'm not worried." After a pause, she slowly said: "We don't have to do a wedding. As long as the f&ck doesn't worry about it, everything else is easy."

When the two talked, they both lowered their voices in a tacit understanding. When the topic was over, there was a slight knock on the door.

Miriam got up and asked her mother to take care of the two children in the room. She opened the door and walked out. She asked Bryan, who was standing outside the door, "What's wrong?"

Before speaking, the man first reached out and hugged her, and as soon as he used his arms, he firmly trapped the person in his arms.

Feeling the warm breath coming over her face, Miriam suddenly curled her lips, grabbed the clothes on his back and waist with one hand, and bury her head in her chest, and replied, "I'm fine."

Bryan bowed his head and kissed her forehead, then suddenly smiled and said, "Let's go."

"Where to go?" When he reacted, Miriam had been led out of the door by Bryan.

The man walked calmly, his voice was steady, and he faintly uttered two words, "Buy vegetables."

About half an hour later, Miriam stared at the trolley basket full of fruits, vegetables and meat, and hesitated, "Buying so much, I can't put it in the refrigerator."

The man smiled fascinatingly, "Entertaining guests, it's better to be respectable."

"Guest?" Miriam suspiciously, looked up and down the man in front of him, still trying to figure out the meaning of his words, the phone in his pocket rang.

After answering the call, it became clear, which guest Bryan said was referring to.

"What's wrong with your mother? Why would you be willing to come to the house to apologize?" She held her phone in her hand, her face full of surprise, "You gave the address?"

Bryan raised his eyebrows slightly, "It doesn't matter who the child has the surname. The most important thing is who the child's mother is. I don't want you to be wronged any more about the wedding."

He answered Miriam's question from the side, and his cautious and serious look couldn't help making her laugh.

She smiled, and a strange emotion flashed across her heart. She lowered her eyes and pulled the corner of his clothes, "Then go back quickly, your mother has arrived."

On the way Miriam and Bryan drove back, Mother Lu was sitting opposite the old lady Shao on the sofa. The living room was full of gifts that Mother Lu hadn't taken away before, and later Shao Mu sent someone to buy them again.

The aunt made tea from the dining room. Seeing that the atmosphere was not right, she didn't dare to wait any longer. She hurriedly found a reason and hid in the kitchen. Only the two remaining elderly people sat there, the scene was rather embarrassing.

Mother Shao came here this time with a rare face, "I don't mean anything else, these are trivial matters, and they can be discussed in the future. The two children's matter is a major matter, what do you think?"

Mother Lu was choked by the other party's "reasonable" remarks and there was nowhere to refute it. In addition, this time she made a deliberate visit. She would not push people out, so she went down the steps, repeatedly saying that Shao's mother made sense.

When Miriam and Bryan arrived home, the two old people had already settled their suspicions, sitting on the floor of the living room and amusing the two little guys who had just woke up, and the laughter continued to spread.

As a result, Miriam, who had just stepped into the house, saw the scene at this moment, so stupefied that he had entered the wrong door.

Carrying the purchased materials into the kitchen, the aunt who was busy washing the pot and washing rice also said with emotion, "Your mother-in-law is pretty good, I see the big gold bracelet she prepared for you, and it looks sinking."

Miriam smiled and shook her head after hearing this.

She took out the vegetables one by one and put them on the counter to let the aunty figure out what dishes could be cooked.

Later, he rolled up his sleeves and planned to help choose dishes and wash the dishes. The auntie met and pushed people out, "Just hand me in in the kitchen. You can be with your family."

Miriam raised her head and glanced, a little embarrassed, holding a handful of greens in her hand, "It's okay to have Bryan outside. I'll help here."

She actually thinks that it is much easier to help in the kitchen than to deal with the two old ladies outside, and to deal with matters politely, just leave it to Mr. Shao.

The aunt suddenly understood her thoughts, and she smiled and let the pool behind her open, "Then you can wash the vegetables, I'll do it."

Miriam answered, took the apron handed by her aunt, and after it was fastened, she carried the vegetables to the sink. A handful of green vegetables had not been washed, and she suddenly remembered Shao's sharp voice outside the kitchen, shouting: "How can you Still working in the kitchen?"

Miriam was startled, and the water splashed from the vegetable leaf splashed all over her face. She half-squinted one eye and turned her face away, and saw the old man hurriedly coming over and grabbed her wrist.

When the reaction came, the person had already arrived at the restaurant and was seated in a chair by Shao's mother.

Miriam, who wiped off the water stains on her face, was a little flustered, looked around, then asked, "What's wrong?"
