Indeed, the chocolate was so tasty that Freya could not stop eating it.

However, if she continued eating it, she would become obese.

She took out her phone sulkily to call Ryan. "Can you not send so many snacks over? I've grown fatter in the hospital. Are you trying to make me obese?"

"In that case... I'll ask someone to take the chocolate away," Ryan said in a low voice, "What a pity. After all, my friend told me one box of chocolate cost 8,000 dollars. Only the royal family in Country B can afford it..."

8,000 dollars...

Freya's mouth twitched. "Hang on. Uh, since you've sent it over, you can leave it here. This time, I'll help you finish it, but you can't do this again next time."

"Alright, alright, Madam Lynch." Ryan flattered her courteously.

Freya blushed. "Why are you calling me Madam Lynch? It makes me sound so old. I'm just a few months older than you."

"You're still older than me. It means I'm younger. "

"Get lost."

Unable to bring herself to listen to his words, Freya hung up the call straight away.

In the hospital.

Rodney saw Snow Corporation's announcement from his phone.

At that moment, his head was buzzing.

In the past, Jason had publicly announced that he disowned Rodney. However, it was different this time as it involved shares. Once Jason transferred his shares to someone, he could never get them back.

Even Carson could inherit 30 percent of his shares, yet Rodney had nothing.

Not only was Rodney disqualified from inheriting Snow Corporation but also the shares.

What did this mean?

He buried his head in his knees, feeling dazed.

His phone suddenly rang. He looked at it, and it was a call from Rory. Looking at his phone, he did not feel like answering the call.

Sarah, who was sitting on the bed, strangely shifted her eyes to him.

“What’s wrong? Why aren’t you answering the call? Is it... Freya?”

She thought that Freya would not bear to part with a wonderful man like Rodney.

Nevertheless, no matter how much Freya did, Rodney would never forgive her.

“... No. It’s Rory. I’ll go out to pick up the call.” Rodney held his phone and walked out.

After walking some distance away from the ward, he answered the call.

“What’s the matter?”

“It’s a serious matter. Young Master Snow, what a friend you are! Why didn’t you tell me about such a serious matter?” Rory said in agitation, “Your dad has decided to hand his company over to your sister. What a major change in Snow Corporation. Could your sister have used some devious means?”

Rory continued, “Be honest with me. Are you disqualified from inheriting the company? Are you even eligible to inherit the shares?”

“Didn’t Snow Corporation already make an announcement?” Upon hearing Rory’s voice, Rodney felt so annoyed that his temples jerked. It seemed that he was on the brink of breaking down.

“What on earth did you do?” Rory raised his voice in disbelief. “You’ve been in charge of the alternative energy company. That bunch of old men actually dared to kick you out, huh?”

“Yeah. My sister has long planted someone by my side. I just found out not long ago.”

Rodney forced a smile. “My family deserted me again.”

Rory was completely at a loss for words. “You can get Shaun and Chester to help you. With their competence, they can surely deal with Jessica together.”

“Enough. Stop mentioning the two of them.” Rodney felt something piercing his heart.

He was no fool. When he kicked up a fuss in the Hill family’s manor that day, he had a falling-out with Shaun. As for Chester, he did not quarrel with him, but there was already conflict between them. When Rodney stayed in the hospital to keep Sarah company before this, Chester did not greet him at all even though he went to the hospital for work every day.

A few days ago, Rodney was disappointed that he was kicked out of Snow Corporation, so he asked Chester out for a drink.

Nevertheless, Chester directly answered him that he was not free.

Rodney knew that his relationship with Chester would never return to how it used to be.

“Do you also... have a conflict with them?” Rory was dumbfounded and shocked. He did not know what to say about Rodney. “Are you out of your mind? Shaun’s mother-in-law is an oil magnate. Her business is comparable to the Jewell family’s business and Snow Corporation.

Do you know how many people out there want to get acquainted with Shaun’s family? However, they are too haughty to be friends with ordinary people. Having these two friends means you can do whatever you want in Australia, yet you had a falling out with them.

“Quickly apologize to them and ask them to help you...”

Rodney was already on the verge of breaking down. With Rory talking by his ear like a machine gun, Rodney ultimately flew into a rage as he could no longer put up with him.

“Enough. Shut your mouth. Is my identity worse than theirs? Why should I be the one apologizing to them? My affairs are none of your business. If you enjoy buttering them up, go ahead.”

Rory lost his temper as well. “Rodney, are you f* cking crazy? What’s your identity? This is funny. Do you know what the rich are discussing in their groups? Everyone knows that you're not eligible to inherit any of Snow Corporation's shares. Snow Corporation has long since given up on you, and even your daughter is more powerful than you. Your dad's shares will be hers in the future. The executive council has denied their relationship with you too.

"I called you to share my opinions with you just because of our friendship. But now I see that you deserve this. Useless trash like you failed to take advantage of good resources and ended up messing up everything. What a fool."

Rodney was so infuriated by Rory's words that his face reddened. He widened his eyes with rage. "Haha, Rory, you're really a realistic person. When I returned to the Snow family back then, you came currying favor with me by calling me „Young Master „. What an opportunistic dog you are.

"What the f*ck?! Even if I'm an opportunist, I'm more powerful than you."

Rory sniggered. "You messed around until you're left with nothing. What an utter fool you are."

Rodney could not help but roar in a deep voice. "Other people have the right to criticize me, but you don't. If you hadn't brought Sarah to me, would I have ended up in this state?"

He would not. He would be all lovey-dovey with Freya like how they used to be. He would have a cute yet mischievous daughter, while his parents would have high hopes for him.

Even Sarah would not have become disabled.

“Hah. If it weren’t for the fact that you couldn’t get over Sarah, would I have brought her to you? Did I force you to keep her? Did I make you sleep with her? Also, take all her things and move out of my house right now.”

“Rory, I finally see your true colors now. If you ever need my help in the future, don’t look for me.”

“Forget it. Everyone will immediately shun people like you...”

Unable to bring himself to listen to Rory, Rodney hung up straight away. After hanging up, he flung his phone onto the wall in a fit of fury. He kicked it hard a few times. Then, he pulled his short hair and sank to his knees.

At the age of 30, he was finally aware of how terrible his friends were.

Rodney had gone through this when the Snow family cut all ties with him last time.

Nevertheless, he was not as helpless at that time.

Even though he had lost everything back then, at least he still had the woman he loved.

However, things are different now. Sarah was still with him, but he felt like he had nothing left.

“President Snow...” Rodney’s assistant, Hans, went to his side. He watched the man who was clutching his head and crouching on the floor with a sad gaze.

Rodney raised his head. His pretty eyes were lost and empty.

“President Snow, I’m sorry. This is my… resignation letter. I’ve worked with you for six years, so I wish to hand this to you personally when I leave.” Hans handed over the resignation document.

Rodney glanced at the document and grabbed Hans’s collar in disbelief.

“Even you’re leaving me too. No matter how shabby I am, I still have Osher Corporation. There are many people fighting to be my assistant. Why? Is being Osher Corporation’s assistant not enough to satisfy you? How f*cking capable are you anyway?

Don’t be so ambitious.

Only my company can accommodate you.”

“That’s not it.”

Hans lowered his head. “Osher Corporation is Australia’s large -scale cosmetics company.

When you chose me to be your assistant back then, I was very proud. But I’m leaving…

because my girlfriend and parents are telling me to resign. You might not know, but the fact that you cheated on your wife is now known to the public, and you’ve become the common enemy of the women in this entire nation. My family members think you have a bad character and that I might be influenced by your bad habits if I stay by your side. My girlfriend even told me that she’d rather I earn less money. At least she can have a sense of security.”

“Ha.”

Rodney looked as if he had just heard the most ridiculous joke ever. His handsome face was flushed red from anger. “Don’t you know my character? You’ve been with me for so many years. Aren’t you clear what type of person I am?”

Hans went silent for a moment. He pressed his lips and said, “I used to think that you value your relationships more than anything. For the sake of relationships, you did not care about how others saw you. But now, I think you’re an irresponsible person. To be honest, I’m just an assistant, but I’ve directly and implicitly advised you before. The truth is that you had an affair just after your wife gave birth. In my opinion, you should’ve sent Miss Neeson away with some money...”

“Enough. Stop talking.”

Rodney felt a sharp throb of pain in his temples. “Leave. I approve of your resignation.”

“Thank you.” Hans nodded. “President Snow. This is my last piece of advice to you. Go back to the company now, and stop staying by Miss Neeson’s side every day. You’ve offended all of Australia’s women with your affair, and they are Osher Corporation’s source of income. If you don’t settle this problem through public relations as soon as possible, the consequences will be grave.”

Rodney rubbed the middle of his brows in annoyance.

Hans moved his legs. “You might not be clear on this, but Osher Corporation is going through its worst reputational crisis in history because of you. Many cosmetics companies want a bite of Osher Corporation's market, especially Freycatheli. They've introduced a new skincare product, and they're even collaborating with e-commerce platforms to hold large scale events for New Year's Day. Freya, in particular, has gained the sympathy of all women as the victim. Freycatheli has been one of the top three best-selling skincare companies consecutively for the past three weeks..."

"Skincare?" Rodney was surprised. "Aren't they specializing in cosmetics?"

"They've already gained a good reputation in the cosmetics industry, so they're taking the opportunity to reposition and launch skincare products."

Hans sighed. "Freya's global reputation as a cosmetics chemist is pretty good. Everyone is willing to buy her products. The new skincare products she's launching were initially developed for you to launch at Osher Corporation some time ago. However, both of you had fallen out afterward, so... After all, you guys didn't sign a contract back then. There was only a verbal agreement."

Rodney was stunned.

He vaguely recalled that incident in his mind. Back when Freycatheli had some minor achievements, Freya asked whether Osher Corporation needed new products, which she and her team could help to develop.

That was when Rodney and Freya's relationship was going well. He even joked that her formulations were worth billions of dollars. What did she say back then? She said she was helping her husband and could give away a few formulations. By then, his skincare company and her cosmetics company would dominate the world, and they would be the greatest couple in the cosmetics industry.

Those words sounded fresh in his ears when in fact, it had been a long time since then.

Rodney could only hear his hoarse voice after a long while. "Isn't Freya in the hospital? Can she still manage the company?" "Currently, Catherine is in charge of the company. She has managed Hudson Corporation before, so she's active in management and operations. On top of her experience, she has wide connections, and many manufacturers want to connect with her. I think Freycatheli's strategy and goals have changed."

Rodney did not say another word.

Looking at the situation, Hans left silently.

No one knew how long Rodney stood downstairs.

Rodney did not come to the ward even though Sarah had waited a long time.

The nurse came to put her on the IV drip.

It was a new nurse who came that day, and she did not manage to insert the needle properly the first time. As such, Sarah threw a tantrum. "Get the head nurse over to insert the needle for me. Doesn't she know my identity? Why did she assign some random person who treats me like a lab rat? Are you guys asking to get fired?"

The nurse's expression turned cold. "I know even without you telling me. You're a mistress, right?"

"Who's a mistress? Do you have a death wish?" Sarah immediately sat up straight. Her face, which was covered in wounds, looked mean and scary. "I'll have someone fire you right now."

If it were before, the nurse would be afraid. However, she did not want to tolerate it anymore. "Do you really think you'll marry the successor of Snow Corporation? You're delusional. The Snow family doesn't like you at all. Snow Corporation has released a statement this morning that Jessica will be the successor to Snow Corporation from now on. The shares have been allocated too, and Rodney won't even get a single percent."

Sarah's mind exploded, and she shouted agitatedly, "That's impossible." "Why would I lie? The whole hospital is discussing this topic. Everyone in Australia knows that Rodney cheated on his wife just after she had given birth. Snow Corporation even dismissed his position. We all knew you were the mistress from the start, but we didn't dare to say it because we were afraid of offending Rodney. However, we're not afraid now. Anyway, the Snow family doesn't care about Rodney at all."

The nurse mocked. "We women hate mistresses like you the most. You deserve to be permanently infertile.”

“What do you mean infertile?”

“Oh, didn’t you know? Your body has been affected by the miscarriage.

Your chances of getting pregnant in the future are close to none.”

“Get lost. You, get lost.”

Sarah was quite badly agitated that she looked like a lunatic. She even pushed the IV pole to the ground and damaged it.

However, it was as if she did not hear anything at all.

Her mind was filled with the nurse’s voice.

Jessica had become Snow Corporation’s successor? Rodney had been chased out of Snow Corporation? Gosh. How did things turn out like that?

Sarah wanted to marry that Rodney, who could inherit Snow Corporation.

How was Rodney different from the past if he had lost Snow Corporation?

Sarah was about to go crazy.

Her limbs were paralyzed, and her face disfigured. She was even infertile.

However, Rodney was back square one in the end.

At that moment, Sarah felt a heat in her throat. She was so angry that she spat a mouthful of blood.
