Read Let me go, Mr. Hill By Shallow South Chapter 2461 – “I’ll come over right away. Inform them that I’ll have a video conference with their president later.”

With that, Forrest rushed to the company.

As soon as he got there, the secretary ran over. “President Lynch, bad news. Inez Corporation also called and said they received news from the US to cancel their contract with us. They’re pulling out of our cooperation last-minute. Inez is one of our largest domestic customers. Orders from them are worth two billion annually.”

“How did Inez receive the news so quickly? Did the company leak it?” Forrest asked in a cold voice.

“That’s impossible. Only a few members of the upper management know about it. Nobody else knows anything, and the executives won’t harm their own interests either.”

“I’ll contact the US.”

Forrest hurriedly walked back to his office and made a video call with President Smith in the US.

A middle-aged man in his forties soon appeared on the other side of the screen. “President Lynch, I know you want to inquire about the termination of the contract, but there’s nothing we can do about it. Earlier, the authorities came to inspect and said that your products are not up to standard, so we can’t install them on our cars.”

“That’s impossible,” Forrest said calmly. “Our products are made in accordance with the standards of US exports. They’ve gone through rigorous testing and are the world’s best when it comes to withstanding strong impacts.”

“You definitely won’t admit it, but it is not up to you.” President Smith was as stubborn as a mule. “In any case, it’s clearly written in the contract that we can cancel the contract without any termination fee if it doesn’t meet the standard.”

Forrest had always been indifferent, but now, his expression was dark. “You kept urging for production to speed up before, and your order is already 80 percent complete. If you cancel the contract right now, our company will lose a lot of money.”

"That's your problem." Smith finished and hung up the call immediately.

Forrest's temples throbbed.

Then, the secretary came in. "President Lynch, Chairman Lynch has called an emergency meeting."

"I'm going over now." Forrest stood up.

In the conference room, the company's general manager said angrily, "I've contacted the relevant testing department in the US, and there's nothing wrong with our product indicators. Sharon Company is clearly doing this on purpose. As for Inez Corporation, they received the news around the same time as us. Are they joining forces to defraud us because they've found another buyer?"

"But Sharon Company is very powerful and wealthy in the US. If they say the products are not up to standard and inform the local authorities in advance to deny everything, it'll take a year or two even if we go to court with them. Our company's capital turnover can't afford to wait. Now that Inez Corporation is also causing trouble for us, our company won't be able to hold on for half a year."

"Why is this happening all of a sudden? President Lynch, didn't the negotiations go well?"

The executives all looked at Forrest. He was the one who personally flew to the US to negotiate the matter.

"I'm not sure yet." Forrest's expressionless face tightened. "We'll divide into two groups. I'll buy a ticket for this afternoon and fly to Shelltown to talk to Inez Corporation's boss. General Manager, you'll go to the US first. I'll book a flight overnight, and we'll meet there."

"The General Manager doesn't need to go for now. You go to Inez first."

Jerry rubbed his brows. "I haven't told you about the news I received earlier, but the shipping company we're cooperating with has encountered some problems and has to suspend its routes. As you know, most of the company's products are mainly transported by sea. Even if we can mend the partnership now, we have so many scheduled goods, and if we can't meet the schedule, we'll have to pay additional money. In short, if our products have to be shipped by sea, we won't make any money at all."

"Chairman Lynch, did we offend someone?"

At that moment, everyone in the conference room could tell that something was wrong.

"It'll be fine if it's just a problem in the US, but why is there trouble with all our big domestic customers and shipping partners too?"

“Exactly, Chairman Lynch. Why don’t you... look for Ryan Snow? He’s about to be your son-in-law, right? With his power, he might be able to help.

Jerry looked embarrassed.

Ryan had already helped the Lynch family many times. How could he be so shameless to ask for help again? Besides, Freya was dating Ryan now. He did not want to be a drag on his daughter.

Read Let me go, Mr. Hill By Shallow South Chapter 2462 – “I’ll think of a way. Meeting adjourned. Also, this must stay between us. It’ll be even more troublesome if it causes other customers cancel on us now.”

After the meeting, Forrest went to Jerry’s conference room.

Jerry massaged his temples. “When you go to Shelltown, you must find out who is behind this no matter what. We’ve taken all our funds to expand Lynch Corporation this year, and we’re at a crucial period for development. If something goes wrong, our family will have to go back to Melbourne with a huge debt. We can earn the money again even if we lose, but... we can’t embarrass Freya.”

“I know.”

Forrest secretly clenched his fist.

Back then, the Snow family looked down on them, but he stood his ground and chose to come to Canberra. The first reason was for the sake of his career, and the second was because he wanted to build up the Lynch family’s name. He could not let the Snow family look down on them.

Now that Freya was dating Ryan, the Lynch family had to work harder.

Otherwise, no matter how capable Freya was, and even if the Prime Minister’s family did not mind... as time passed, Ryan might not say anything, but the Snow family relatives would surely gossip.

In the afternoon, Forrest took a flight to Inez Corporation.

He waited outside for three whole hours before he saw President Chaplin.

“Forrest, you don’t have to say anything more. We’ve worked together for many years. If we weren’t so helpless this time, we wouldn’t have suspended our collaboration with you.” President Chaplin looked at him deep in the eyes. “I’ll be honest with you. I can’t afford to mess with the people you offended.”

Forrest frowned fiercely. “Are you talking about... the Snow family?”

His mind raced.

The company had competitors but not enough to affect Sharon Company in the US and Inez Corporation, whom they had cooperated with for a long time.

Did the Snow family secretly pull some strings because they did not approve of Freya dating Ryan?

President Chaplin took a sip of tea and said with mixed feelings, “Seeing that we’ve known each other for so long, I’ll come clean. It’s not someone from the Prime Minister’s side. You know Snow Corporation, right? They’re like a huge mountain. Crushing me to dh would be as easy as crushing an ant.”

Forrest’s brain began to buzz.

Why did he not think of Snow Corporation?

The person in charge of Snow Corporation right now was Jessica Snow.

Why would she target Lynch Corporation?

Could it be for Rodney?

Or was she targeting him?

How could the woman be so ruthless?

Once he was out, he dialed Jessica’s number. When the call connected, a woman’s indifferent voice answered, “What?”

“Jessica Snow, I’ve never met a woman as black- hearted as you.”

Forrest was a very calm and indifferent person, but every time he faced the woman, it felt as if a flame was burning in his chest. At that moment, he was furious. "What exactly do you want with Lynch Corporation? Are you trying to avenge Rodney? Or are you using Lynch Corporation to force Freya and Ryan to break up?"

Chapter 2463

"I have something going on right now. We can meet at Idle Cottage at 9pm"

Jessica's bland voice came from the phone.

Forrest nearly smashed the phone in his palm. What he hated most in his life was Jessica's calm and natural appearance.

She was just as indifferent even when they broke up.

"Je—"

"Goodbye."

The call ended with a beep.

Forrest's eyebrows were fiercely furrowed together, and his eyes were full of anger.

However, he could only take a deep breath.

No matter what, this matter had to be resolved.

The original plan was to fly to the States, but Forrest informed the company to suspend the plan. He first rushed back to Canberra.

It was already 8 p.m. by the time he arrived.

He hurried to Idle Cottage.

In the courtyard was a small bridge and pavilion. The environment here was quiet.

“Mr. Lynch, this is the private room reserved by President Snow.”

The waiter brought him to a private room facing the pool.

Inside was a tea room, sofa, and dining table.

He sat for a while. There was a rattling at the door, and he thought it was Jessica who had arrived. However, he turned around only to see that it was the waiter bringing over some fruits and dishes.

“This was arranged by President Snow.”

The waiter carefully put the food on the table.

Forrest’s dark eyes fell on the dishes, and a trace of complexity flashed inside.

They were dishes that the two used to eat abroad, such as yam and eggplant, black pepper beef, and pork bone soup with corn and carrot.

What exactly did this woman want? He had not eaten much today and did not have an appetite on the plane. When he saw these brightly-colored dishes, his stomach could not help but growl.

Although he did not want to touch the food prepared by that woman, there was no need to starve himself.

Forrest picked up a bowl and started to eat.

When he put the bowl down, the heavy wooden door was pushed open. Jessica walked in from outside, dressed in a new seasonal black A-line skirt suit and a pair of high-heeled shoes. Her long hair draped over her shoulders. Her makeup was light, and her eyes were clear and firm. She looked high and lofty as usual. Her body also hid a noble elegance.

Their eyes met.

Forrest’s handsome three-dimensional face seemed to be covered in frost. His dark eyes suppressed a surge of anger. “Are you responsible for what happened involving Sharon Company?”

He had thought a lot about it on the way here.

She was the only one who could have done it.

First, Sharon Company terminated their contract with Lynch Corporation, then Inez Corporation did the same. These two large companies were important partners for Lynch Corporation’s future development. In order to develop, Lynch Corporation had used most of their funds to expand. If something went wrong now, it would be like breaking their own wings. The consequences would be unimaginable. All this was done by the woman in front of him.

Jessica glanced at the half-eaten meal on the table. Her gaze softened slightly before she sat down at the table and nodded gently. "Yes."

/ Let me go, Mr. Hill Author Shallow South Read Online Chapter 2464

"Why are you doing this?"

Forrest's eyes were sharp. His forbearing tone revealed a rage that seemed to be able to tear her apart in the next moment. "Jessica Snow, I know you're very powerful now, but you can't bully people to this extent. Rodney had it coming to him. He was the one who discredited and hurt Freya. He ignorantly went against the executive council—"

"It's not because of Rodney. I'm not that unreasonable."

Jessica interrupted him. Her pretty eyelashes lifted upward slightly as she said, "I heard you're getting married?"

Forrest suddenly froze.

An absurd reason flashed through his mind. "You're doing this because I'm getting married?"

"You can't marry Stacey Childs." Jessica pursed her delicate lips and spoke word by word, "Marry me and I'll let Lynch Corporation go."

As soon as the words left her mouth, Forrest fiercely tugged her arm and pulled her up from the chair.

She was caught off guard. Her head hit his cold, hard chest painfully. However, before she could react, Forrest's cold words rang out mercilessly. "Jessica Snow, you're still the president of Snow Corporation. I've never seen a person like you forcing anyone to marry you. Are you that short of men? Are you that shameless?"

He was really furious.

In the past, when their relationship was at its best and they decided to return to talk about marriage, she was the one who refused.

Now, when he wanted to start his life again, she used despicable means to try to pull him back again.

Forrest had been proud all his life. All the embarrassment he had ever faced was caused by her.

He was a living person, not a dog.

Was he supposed to come when she called and leave when she told him to go?

Jessica took a deep breath with difficulty. Her pretty face was slightly pale.

This was why she did not make a decision immediately after listening to Ryan's advice.

That was because she understood that once she took action, Forrest would definitely humiliate her with unpleasant words.

She did not care if others scolded her, but she would be in pain if he scolded her.

However, compared to the pain of him belonging to someone else, this pain right now was nothing.

"The decision lies in your hands."

She spoke lightly, "I'm quite close acquaintances with the chairman of Sharon Company, and Sharon Company is your company's largest client after expanding. If the outside world hears that Sharon Company and Inez Corporation have canceled their contracts with you because of your product quality, Lynch Corporation will collapse swiftly like an avalanche. There's also your shipping company..."

"Enough."

The more Forrest listened, the tighter his grip grew.

Jessica closed her eyes in pain. Forrest sneered coldly. "Jessica, if I could turn back time, I'd rather have never met you in the States. You're too ruthless. I can't afford to mess with you at all."

"T like you, Forrest. I just want you to come back to me."

Jessica's heart hurt so much that she could not breathe, but she could only tell the truth.

"The one you like is yourself." Forrest's eyes were mocking. "Would you still have wanted to come back to me if your husband hadn't died? Did you forget how you told me that I was from a small place and wasn't worthy of you?"

"I was forced to say that so that you would leave me, and I was afraid..."
"Even if you're the most powerful and influential woman in the whole country now, you're just used goods. Do you think I'll take a fancy to you?" ° Forrest's cold and piercing words sounded. "Listen closely, Jessica. Women who try to come back will always be worthless. Even if you force me to marry you, I'll never love you. On the contrary, I'll only hate you." Jessica froze as her face grew ashen.
"Let me give you a piece of advice. What happened between us is in the past. Don't try to threaten me with Lynch Corporation," Forrest said word by word.
"The things between us won't pass that easily. Putting aside what happened to us, do you remember what you did to Freya in the past? She doesn't care about that anymore, but as her brother, I've never forgotten about it."

Chapter 2465

Jessica's long eyelashes quivered. When her eyes glistened with tears, she hurriedly lowered her head. Her tone was as calm as ever when she spoke again, "Really? You can think whatever you want, but think about Lynch Corporation. You can come to look for me anytime after you figure it out, but you'd better not be too late. Or even I won't be able to help you." Then, she swatted away his arm and walked straight toward the door. "Jessica Snow..."

Forrest was furious and grabbed her shoulder again from behind.

When he grabbed her, he realized how thin and soft her elbow was.

"Let me remind you." Jessica turned around. "If Lynch Corporation falls, do you think the Childs family will still agree to let their daughter marry you? Also, it's useless even if you get Ryan and the executive council to help. My word is final in the business world. In addition, your sister has just started dating Ryan, so you'll probably be too embarrassed to keep asking Ryan for help, right?"

Then, she left.

The room was enveloped in coldness again. Forrest, who was aggressive just a moment ago, felt a deep sense of powerlessness at this moment.

The words that Jessica said when she left struck a nerve.

After all, they had dated before. She was too smart and knew him too well. It was impossible for him to beg Ryan. It was like how he had repeatedly refused the help of Jason and his wife when Freya married Rodney.

He did not want his sister to be unable to lift her head in the Snow family. Therefore, he had always relied on himself.

The reason why he accepted Ryan's help for the land in Canberra was that he wanted to let Lynch Corporation rise as soon as possible. In the end, it was to strengthen the Lynch family so that Freya had a competent backer. Ryan had helped enough. How could Forrest still go begging for more?

He hated Jessica Snow.

She knew him so well, yet she wanted to break his pride.

Despite having already established a firm foothold in the capital, the gap between Lynch Corporation and Snow Corporation was still too great.

At that moment, Forrest had a deep sense of powerlessness.

He took another flight to the States overnight.

However, President Smith of Sharon Company refused to meet him and even avoided him.

Jerry's urgent call came again. "Forrest, how did the talks go? Is there still room for reconciliation between Sharon Company and Inez Corporation?"

"I haven't met Smith yet." Forrest stood on an unfamiliar road abroad and pinched his brows tiredly.

eon

Jerry sighed softly. "There's definitely someone targeting our family. I just don't know who we've offended. The opponent is too scheming. Why don't I just humble myself and personally go beg President Chaplin from Inez Corporation...?"

"It'll still be useless."

Forrest spoke in a low voice, his heart filled with bitterness.

How was he supposed to explain that Jessica was forcing him to marry her? How could he explain that he had dated Jessica in the past?

How could he say that the Lynch family had fallen to this state because of him?

He did not have the dignity to do so.

Let me go, Mr. Hill Author: Shallow South Chapter 2466

Chapter 2466

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch did not like Jason Snow and his family very much after what had happened with Rodney.

It had not been easy for Freya to divorce Rodney, but now, Forrest had to get married to Rodney's sister... His parents would definitely be very angry.

"Do you know something?" Jerry asked keenly. "If there's really no way, I'll go ask Ryan for help..."

"Asking him about anything related to the business world, especially foreign trade, will just be making things hard for him."

Forrest vaguely knew that news of his marriage might have been leaked by Ryan.

There was no way that the executive council would offend Jessica. Ryan was caught in between both sides and could not help either side.

"I'll solve it, Dad."

He finally said those words.

Forrest felt ridiculous just thinking about a solution.

Forrest remained in the States for two more days.

When he returned to Australia again, the factories had temporarily stopped production even though the affairs of Lynch Corporation were kept under wraps. There were thousands of employees, so rumors inevitably spread.

The Childs family also quickly learned of the news. Mr. Childs even called Jerry. "President Lynch, I heard at a social gathering that Lynch Corporation is having some problems with Sharon Company and has temporarily stopped production?" Since they were about to become in-laws, Jerry did not avoid responsibility and merely sighed. "Chairman Childs, you have a branch in the States too. Can you think of anyone who can talk to Sharon Company?"

That short sentence was enough to confirm the rumor.

Mr. Childs thought about it. "I don't, but don't you have a good son-in-law? You can ask him for help. The executive council dotes on your daughter so much. You just have to talk to them."

"This matter is quite troublesome, so it won't be good for the executive council to intervene."

Jerry vaguely evaded the suggestion. Mr. Childs had a lot of thoughts in his mind. His expression turned unpleasant when he hung up the phone.

"What's going on? Is this really going to be the downfall of the Lynch family?" Mrs. Childs asked hurriedly.

"That's impossible. Ryan Snow likes Freya so much. Isn't he going to help Lynch Corporation?"

"I'm afraid that even if Ryan likes Freya for now, he might not plan on marrying her." Mr. Childs gave his wife a long look. "Sometimes, things that happen on a whim may not be as simple as they seem. Sharon Company is one of the top ten companies in the world. Even if Ryan is willing to help, this favor might not be a simple matter. It depends on whether it's worth it."

Mrs. Childs hurriedly said, "Then what should we do? How would Forrest be worthy of our daughter if Lynch Corporation falls?"

Mr. Childs was also annoyed. What was a great affair turned out to be... "Fortunately, news that our families are about to be engaged hasn't been spread yet. If the Lynch family talks to you about marriage, delay it for now. They can tie the knot after this hurdle, but if Lynch Corporation can't hold on... When that time comes, find an excuse to say that it's too hasty for them to get married. Besides, the two haven't gotten engaged. Everything was only discussed verbally. If the Lynch family asks to borrow funds, tell them that we don't have enough either."

"Dad, how could you do this?" Stacey's incredulous voice suddenly sounded from behind.

She leaned on her crutches, and her eyes looked furious. "You guys clearly agreed..."

"We agreed before because of Forrest's ability and Ryan, but Lynch Corporation is having a crisis now. If the Lynch family collapses, you can't possibly marry into that kind of family."

Mr. Childs stood up solemnly. "You're the daughter we raised painstakingly. I can't let you get married to someone with a lower status than you."

"Dad, you're too materialistic. I like Forrest. He's the only one I want to marry." Stacey was trembling with anger.

"Be good, Stacey. If Lynch Corporation falls, Forrest will be saddled with a huge debt. You'll become a joke if you marry him," Mrs. Childs also rebuked her. "For now, you should just stay at home and recuperate. Don't go anywhere and don't contact Forrest."

Then, Mrs. Childs simply confiscated Stacey's cell phone.

Let me go, Mr. Hill Author: Shallow South Chapter 2467

/ Let me go, Mr. Hill Author Shallow South Read Online Chapter 2467

"Mom, you guys are too much." Stacey was so angry that she teared up.

However, her leg was hurt, so it was inconvenient for her to go out.

After confiscating her daughter's phone, Mrs. Childs went out to play bridge.

Stacey's cell phone rang. Seeing that it was from Forrest, Mrs. Childs was glad that she had the foresight to snatch it from her daughter.

She answered the phone and said, "Forrest, Stacey is taking a nap. Do you need something?"

On the other end, Forrest was silent for a moment before saying in a low voice, "Aunty, would it be convenient if I dropped by the Childs family's residence tonight?"

He felt that it would be more polite to tell them in person that he wanted to cancel the engagement. After all, he had already agreed.

Mrs. Childs' heart thumped. Was Forrest trying to bring forward his marriage to her daughter because he knew that Lynch Corporation could no longer hold on?

She hurriedly said, "Tonight? It might not be convenient tonight. Our family will be going to visit Stacey's grandmother."

"Then what about tomorrow?"

"Oh, Stacey hurt her leg, so she plans to stay there for a few days to spend more time with her grandmother," Mrs. Childs said helplessly.

Forrest understood. The Childs family had probably heard about Lynch Corporation's matters and were being evasive.

He already knew that Stacey's parents were quite powerful when he attended the party before, but nowadays, it was not that remarkable to have money and status. However, it was a fact that Stacey had saved him. As Stacey was fine with it, he had no problems marrying her either. However... this was fine too.

"Aunty, I'll be honest with you," Forrest said bluntly. "Lynch Corporation has encountered some troubles lately, and I'm not sure if we can overcome this hurdle, so I'm afraid I can't get engaged to Stacey. I'm really sorry. I'm willing to compensate for the injury that Stacey got in order to save me. A few years ago, I bought two storefronts at Canberra's Starway Avenue. I'll use that as compensation. How does that sound?"

Mrs. Childs' eyebrows jumped.

She did not expect Forrest to offer to cancel the engagement.

For a moment, she was a little embarrassed.

Although Lynch Corporation was in a crisis now, what if they overcame it? However, if they did not overcome it, it would be troublesome if Forrest took the opportunity to seek help from them.

As for the storefronts at Starway Avenue, Mrs. Childs was rather surprised.

Starway Avenue was built a few years ago, and the storefronts that were worth several million dollars were now tens of millions in value.

Two storefronts would add up to around 70 to 80 million dollars. They may even appreciate in value after two years.

Her daughter had only hurt her leg a little. A few hundred thousand dollars would be enough to completely treat her, but Forrest was offering them tens of millions. He was too generous. If it were the Childs family, they might not be willing to fork out so much money just for compensation. After half a minute of deliberation, Mrs. Childs replied, "You're a loyal and righteous person. I really want you to be my son-in-law, but I only have one daughter. I worked so hard to raise her, so I don't want her to suffer. I'll accept your offer on her behalf."

She did not say anything about refusing the storefronts.

Forrest said politely, "Then I'll have my secretary go through the transfer formalities tomorrow." After settling this matter, Forrest called his secretary over.

Originally, Stacey was in charge of these matters, but now that she was injured and on leave, the matters were handed to Secretary Wilks.

Chapter 2468

"Mr. Forrest, Assistant Ayleen saved you, but according to the company's past work-related injuries, the maximum compensation is 1 million, and the facades on Swanston Street has appreciated." Secretary Wood said, stunned. There is plenty of space. Tens of millions in assets are likely to be worth hundreds of millions in the future. There are still many unknowns about the Lynch family's future.

Even if they agree now, after the Lynch family overcomes this hurdle, the Cheever family will use this excuse to continue discussing the marriage."

Forrest patiently followed. "The compensation is really high." he explained, "but after the Cheever family took the scars on Ayleen's feet as a matter, I don't owe her any more."

"This kind of fracture will pay tens of millions in compensation." Secretary Wood continued angrily. The facade, if I knew I'd go with you that day, I'd save you, I'll never pay more than a few hundred thousand."

Forrest was perpetually apathetic, unable to raise the corner of his mouth.

Isn't he heartbreaking, more heartbreaking than anyone else?

However, when Ayleen was previously hospitalised, the Cheever family's attitude was that he would not give up unless he married Ayleen.

Now, if he does not put money down, the Cheever family may refuse to cancel the engagement. Perhaps the Cheever family will wait. When the Lynch family group is clear, the Cheever family will not admit the engagement if the Lynch family collapses. The issue is that if the Lynch family takes over, the Cheever family will never let it go.

If I had known earlier, he would have preferred to be crushed by glass at that time and be fine, rather than marry Ayleen and be forced to do so by Jessica.

Forrest secretly vowed that he would never again allow a woman to save him.

The loss is too big.

After all, he had planned to give Freya a dowry behind those two facades.

Forrest contacted Jessica again after resolving this issue, but he did not speak after the call was connected.

The handsome face was blushing. He scolded Jessica angrily that day, but when he turned around, he could only bow his head, which was too humiliating.

"Agreed?"

"Then you will bring the Bureau to get the certificate with me tomorrow morning," Jessica guessed.

Forrest was taken aback and frowned, "Are you sure, do your parents know about this?"

"Do your parents know about this?" Jessica responded with a question.

Forrest remained silent.

If he told his parents, they would undoubtedly object.

My parents' character, my children's character, and any company's character are the first.

"If our parents found out, they would not agree in a hurry." Jessica was well aware that she didn't want to spend so much time initially resolving the problems of the two parents. It's pointless; it's better to bind this person to her side first, and then Forrest accepts himself; she wants to get along with Mr. Lynch and Mrs. Lynch.

"Since you know your parents don't agree, why are you forcing me?" Forrest gritted his teeth.

"...You are not one of those people." For a while, it was quiet, and Jessica was warm. The voice abruptly faded away.

Forrest's cold heart seemed to beat through the microphone.

He clenched his fist around the phone.

It's a d*mn shame.

Forrest couldn't be easily swayed by this woman like he had been in the past.

"Who wouldn't say nice things?" he chuckled lightly.

"I'll wait for you at nine o'clock tomorrow morning," Jessica said, no longer bothering him.

The phone then rang again.

Low air pressure seemed to envelop the entire tall body.

Chapter 2469 In the evening, Forrest returned to the Lynch family's villain a gloomy mood. Freya was sitting cross-legged on the sofa, eating potato chips and looking at her phone. She had heard about the Lynch family's situation recently. When she saw her brother come back, she immediately sat up. "Forrest, how did your talk with Sharon Group go? Did they make things hard? Did our family offend someone? I think Dad is so worried these days that his hair is falling out in clumps." Forrest looked at his sister's simple expression with helplessness. "I have a general idea about what's going on.

"I'll resolve it as soon as possible." "Oh, okay. I was just thinking about asking Cathy to help if it's too tricky," Freya mumbled. "Her Mom is quite capable abroad. Even Sharon Company's boss would have to show her some respect." Forrest's brows moved slightly. He was just about to say something but suppressed his words. "Her relationship with Sheryl isn't that good. She has already helped quite a lot with Freycatheli. Catherine won't be comfortable either if you ask for too much. Besides... she has already helped you enough." "Fine, I get it. It's just an option if we're left with no other choice. I can't just watch as Lynch Corporation falls..." Freya pouted bitterly. "You didn't ask Ryan for help, right?" Forrest suddenly asked in a low voice. "Nope. Dad didn't let me.

"I'm well aware of your things. Ryan did take the initiative to mention it and said that he would help us investigate, but it seems to be a little tricky..." "Just tell him to focus on his studies. I've already found a solution for this." Forrest said in a complicated tone. "Really? You're amazing, Forrest." Freya's eyes lit up as she looked at him with an adoring face. Forrest, "... He really did not want to say that his solution to this matter was selling his body. It was really... too humiliating. His handsome face grew a few degrees colder, so he stopped looking at her and went upstairs expressionlessly.

Freya was baffled. If it were Ryan, he would not be able to handle how sweet she was when she praised him, but her brother... Forget it, there was a reason why he was single. Even now, she did not understand. Besides that face, what did her brother have that attracted women? Was there something wrong with Jessica's eyes? The next day, Forrest secretly took the documents he needed. When he went downstairs for breakfast, Jerry asked, "Freya said you found a solution. Is that true?" "Yeah, I found a breakthrough with Sharon Company," Forrest answered vaguely.

"By the way, I've contacted the Childs family. The engagement is off." "What?" Mrs. Lynch was stunned for a while before getting angry. "Did they take the initiative to cancel the engagement because they heard about what's going on with Lynch Corporation?" "I brought it up myself, and the Childs family agreed." Forrest did not mention the two storefronts so as not to upset his parents. He had privately invested in the storefronts anyway.

Jerry was silent, but Mrs. Lynch was furious. "Why did you take the initiative to cancel the engagement? Are you that resistant to getting married? Are you planning to be a bachelor for the rest of your life?" "Mom, the Childs family wouldn't agree to the marriage if Lynch Corporation can't overcome this anyway," Forrest interrupted in a soft voice. "I just mentioned it yesterday and Mrs. Childs agreed to it very quickly." "I knew that the Childs family was snobbish. But you said that our family would be able to tide this through..."

"It's fine if he doesn't get married," Jerry suddenly interrupted. "After Lynch Corporation's incident, I contacted Mr. Childs several times. I'd understand if he couldn't help, but he even deliberately ignored my calls. He said he was afraid I would borrow money from him. No matter how good Stacey is, having such parents as in-laws would be troublesome in the future. They might even drag their daughter down."

Freya nodded. "The Childs family wouldn't have agreed to Stacey's marriage with Forrest if it weren't profitable. It'd be fine if he likes her, but it doesn't seem like he does. There's no need to do this for the sake of repaying a favor."

"Your son has already agreed to get married. Are you worried that there are no women in Canberra?" Jerry reminded his wife. "You've already waited for years. You don't need to rush it now."

Mrs. Lynch sighed. She knew that what they said was reasonable, but she thought that she could finally see her son get married. It was quite disappointing.

Forrest kept his head down and ate his breakfast.

After eating, he drove his car to the registry office.

Jessica drove over in a black Bentley. When she came down from the car, she was dressed in light-colored jeans that wrapped around her long legs, a white printed shirt, and a rich green silk shawl. She did not look as sharp and strong as when she was doing business. Even so, her noble aura could not be concealed.

Forrest's eyes darkened slightly as he walked over with an indifferent face. "Let's go." Jessica turned around and walked inside. However, after taking a few steps, she found that Forrest was not following her. He stood a few steps away, his six feet two body dressed in a suit.

"When will you let Lynch Corporation go?" Forrest looked at her coldly.

"711 make the call immediately after we get the license." Jessica's bright eyes looked back at him.

"Don't regret this, Jessica." Forrest was slightly annoyed by her stare. "Even if you force me to marry you, I won't like you."

"It's fine. I just want you." Jessica smiled faintly.

It was like punching cotton.

Forrest was powerless. It was a feeling he only had when facing Jessica.

"Let's go."

Jessica took the initiative to hold his hand.

The two were like an ordinary couple. Today was not a special day, so there were not many people in the hall. Jessica also seemed to have notified them in advance. The clerk was not that surprised when he saw the names on their IDs, but he secretly glanced at them when stamping the certificate.

Soon, they got their marriage license. Forrest was in a trance for a moment when he saw the marriage license in his hand.

When he came back from studying abroad, he had fantasized too many times about them getting a marriage license. It was only when he heard that she was married that he knew it was no longer possible for them. Unexpectedly, many years later and after a few twists and turns...

He did not want to think about it anymore and quickly stuffed the license into his pants pocket.

As soon as he turned around, he found Jessica looking down at their wedding photo intently.

A wave of annoyance welled up in his heart. "What are you looking at? It's not the first time you've gotten a marriage license."

Jessica's arm stiffened. She slowly put away the license and said, "Forrest, whether you like it or not, you have to accept the fact that we're married now. I hope you can keep your distance from the opposite sex in the future. I'm narrow-minded and don't want to see my husband getting involved with women outside." Forrest usually did not like to contact women in private anyway. There were things that he would not do even without her reminder, but he was inexplicably annoyed when he heard her words. "Jessica Snow, you're someone who has betrayed a relationship before. What right do you have to control me?"

"I'm legally your wife."

Jessica shook her marriage license and raised her delicate brows. "What's more, I want to live with you from today onward. Think about whether you want to move to my place or if I should move to yours."

Forrest was stunned.

Indeed, he had never thought about living with her.

After all, he had always been living with his parents. However, he had previously invested in an apartment, which was not very big. It was only a hundred square feet. He lived there before the Lynch family bought a villa in Canberra. However, his parents were both in Canberra. If he suddenly moved out alone...

Moreover, his apartment was probably quite small compared to Jessica's place.

After some time, he asked indifferently, "You want to live together with my parents?"

"Yeah, as long as you don't mind." Jessica suddenly smiled vaguely and stared at him provocatively.

She hardly smiled when dealing with business. All of a sudden, her delicate lips curved, and her pretty face seemed gentle.

Forrest's heart clenched for a moment.

He subconsciously looked away. By the time he noticed that he had lost a grip on himself, he glared at Jessica fiercely.

Jessica was speechless.

He was offended just like that?

Was she such an annoyance to him?

She was a little gloomy. However, now that things had come to this point, there was no turning back for her.

"I do mind." After relieving his tension slightly, he said coldly, "I have my own apartment that isn't very big. It's only a hundred square feet, which could be too small for you."

"I dislike living in a big house as it feels too empty," Jessica said. "Tell me the passcode. I'll move there tonight."

Forrest was filled with mixed emotions. "I'll text it to you later. You may contact Sharon Company first. Lynch Corporation's issue can't be dragged on further."

"Alright." Jessica nodded.

"I still have something to deal with. I'll take my leave first." Upon seeing that she had agreed, Forrest pursed his thin lips and strode away.

If he continued to stay there, he would have no idea how to get along with her.

Watching him leave without turning back, Jessica let out a self-deprecating laugh helplessly.

After Forrest got in the car, Ryan gave Jessica a call with a trace of joy in his voice. "So, how did things go? Have you managed to force him to marry you?"

"I just got the marriage license." Jessica gave a strained smile. "Now that I've forced him to do this, I'm guessing he hates me a lot. Forrest is an arrogant person."

“Not really.”

“What do you mean?” Jessica was curious.

“I’ve tried coaxing Freya. Previously, I incited her to ask her brother whether he could get Catherine to solve Lynch Corporation’s issue, but Forrest rejected.”

Jessica was stunned. “He dislikes owing anyone a favor. That’s normal.”

“Hah. When one is driven into a corner, how can one be bothered about owing someone a favor? Which company doesn’t owe people favors? What’s more, his sister and Catherine have a close relationship. If he had asked Catherine for help, he could’ve solved the company’s problem without having to marry anyone. No matter how arrogant a person is, they would’ve agreed to it. In my opinion, he was just willing to go through with the marriage.”

Jessica’s heart raced madly in spite of herself. However, she soon pulled herself together. “That’s impossible. He has always been resistant to me.”

“Perhaps he has been acting opposite to his feelings,” Ryan said with a grin.

Upon hearing his words, Jessica became confused. “So... now that we’re married, what should I do next?”

“It’s simple. Now that both of you are going to live together, use your beauty to seduce him.” Ryan chuckled. “Since you both are married, you can’t always dress in black like how you did in the Snow family’s residence back then. The color is too dull. When you’re at home, you should dress sexily as very few men can resist it.”

Chapter 2472

Jessica touched the air conditioner and noticed that it was not switched on. She felt warm, and her face was slightly red. “Do you think everyone behaves like you and Freya?”

“Haha. Anyway, men are all pretty much the same. You can’t be cold even though he is.

Someone needs to take the initiative.”

Jessica did not say a word.

For now, it seemed that she should be the one taking the initiative.

The person she was now married to was Forrest. It did not matter even if she took the initiative...

After Jessica called the chairman of Sharon Company, Forrest soon received a call from President Smith. President Smith said a lot and mentioned an inspection. Since it was a misunderstanding the last time, the two companies could still work together.

Lynch Corporation resumed cooperation with Inez Corporation as well as other shipping companies.

Forrest was filled with mixed feelings.

He had long since known that Jessica was brilliant. Not only was she in charge of Snow Corporation, but she also had power over Snowden.

Nevertheless, he did not expect her to be this brilliant.

This indirectly told him that it was easy for her to let Lynch Corporation off, but it was also easy to make things difficult for his company.

He surrendered to his fate and sent his apartment address and passcode to her.

Meanwhile, Jessica got off from work early after she turned down an invitation to a social function. It was rare that she did not have to work overtime.

She was not in a hurry to head to Forrest's apartment. Instead, she went to a nearby shopping mall to choose a few sets of nightwear and casual clothes.

She was wearing a mask. While choosing the nightwear, the salesperson recommended a few types. "Beautiful lady, do you want to try this nightdress? It's made of silk. Now that summer is approaching, you'll definitely feel cozy in this." Jessica shot a look at a black nightdress. The dress was short and had a deep V-neck.

There was also another pair of champagne-colored nightwear, which was quite sexy as well. Her cheeks were burning. After some time, she nodded.

Upon noticing that she was ready to splurge, the salesperson recommended a few sets of undergarments to her as well.

When Jessica came out with the shopping bag, her face was hot. Luckily, she was wearing a mask. Ever since she broke up with Forrest when she was 22, her life had been free of desire. At that moment, she felt as if she was alive.

It appeared as though she had returned to the period when she was in the first flush of love. Despite feeling rather nervous and confused, she was really eager for it.

After arriving at Forrest's apartment, she entered the passcode and moved in. It looked like it had been a while since someone last stayed here. The house felt stuffy, and the floor was covered in dust.

She opened the window and mopped the floor, only to realize that the sky had darkened.

She glanced at the time, which showed 6:30 p.m. She called Forrest. "When are you coming back?" It was quite noisy on the other end. After hearing her voice, Forrest was stunned for a few seconds. "Are you at my place?"

"Duh. "

Forrest frowned. Given that she was a workaholic, he thought that she would not return until late at night. "I'm attending a social function outside."
"When are you coming back?" Jessica asked directly.

Forrest snorted. "I didn't say I'll be going over tonight."

"No way." Jessica bit her lip as a sign of disagreement. "It's our... wedding night. You must come back."
