Chapter 51

Chapter 51

Brandon thought Savanna had fallen asleep. Thus, he got close to her and touched her. Then he noticed Savanna trembling. Brandon realized Savanna had been awake all the time. And she didn't want to see him, so she pretended to be asleep.

Brandon felt hurt.

He wanted to ask her why she didn't pick up his phone. But he hesitated and then gave up asking this question.

Brandon didn't want to get this answer from Savanna because Brandon knew the reason well that Savanna hated him. Thus, he gave up asking.

Brandon withdrew his hand. He then turned to the balcony with sadness and lit a cigarette. Then the balcony started to become smoky.

Brandon didn't know how many cigarettes he had smoked. He didn't stop smoking until his lips were numb and his mouth was full of the smell of nicotine.

Brandon then went back into the bedroom again. He looked at Savanna and found she had fallen asleep with a book. After a while, the book was scattered by her side.

Brandon stared at Savanna and felt that she looked like a beautiful and sweet angel at this moment.

After that, Brandon went into the bathroom for a shower and changed into his pajamas. Then he lay down next to Savanna. He raised his hand to turn off the lights and then gently wrapped his arms around her waist. His chin was against her warm forehead. It seemed that hugging Savanna made Brandon comfortable and safe. Brandon sighed and fell asleep.

Brandon woke up in the morning and found Savanna had already gotten up.

Brandon could only smell her smell from the quilt.

The thought that Savanna might have left popped into Brandon's head. Then he got up from bed in a hurry. He strode to the cloakroom and saw Savanna's clothes hanging on the hanger. The fact that Savanna didn't leave made Brandon relax.

After washing up, Brandon went downstairs. He looked around and noticed Savanna eating silently at the dining table. His eyes were full of happiness all of a sudden. He then stepped into the dining room.

Mary saw Brandon. Then she prepared some food for him. Mary whispered, "Mr. Cassel, enjoy your meal," Brandon felt happy about that. He could have breakfast together with Savanna.

He took a sandwich and put ketchup on it. Just as he was about to give Savanna the sandwich, Savanna, who was eating with her head lowered, stood up and said, "I've finished."

Mr. Baker?

Brandon sneered. He asked, "Leo?"

Jim thought for a moment and replied, "I think so. Those gangsters were mercenaries and seemed to know Leo. Besides, Leo had been where Ms. Landis was. Leo borrowed a plane from Dax to go there."

Jim didn't dare to hide anything. He told Brandon everything he knew.

Brandon waved his hand to Jim. Jim got his point and then left.

Brandon made a phone call to Ben.

"Brandon, what's up?"

Ben seemed to be busy. It seemed that Ben was in a noisy place like a bar.

"Do you know Dax?"

"We've met a few times."

Ben replied.

"I want you to make his life a living hell," Brandon said indifferently.

His words made Ben laugh.

"How did Dax offend you?"

"He lent his plane to Leo a few days ago."

Brandon said slowly.

"Brandon, are you trying to help Leo?"

Brandon ran a hand through his hair and sneered. "He's no longer my assistant. You don't need to treat him as my employee anymore."

Ben was smart. He understood Brandon's words.

"Alright. Don't worry. I can handle it well. Leo and Dax are no match for me."

Ben laughed with ease.

Savanna tidied up the clothes she had just bought for her baby. Someone called her. It was Leo.

Savanna picked up the phone call, but no one spoke. Savanna confirmed it was Leo's number. Then Savanna guessed Leo must have something important to tell her.

"Where are you?"

Savanna asked.

"I am at the ticket gate in Area A of the highway station."

Hearing that, Savanna was shocked, "Where are you going? Are you going back to Philadelphia to take care of your sister? Does your sister get worse?"

Savanna's questions made Leo sure she cared about him.

It warmed Leo.

"I am not leaving for Philadelphia. I don't know where else to go either."

"Wait for me. I'll be right there."

After saying that, Savanna hung up the phone and drove to the station in a hurry.

Savanna arrived at the ticket gate soon. But she didn't find Leo. Then she called Leo.

However, he didn't answer the phone.

Savanna frowned.

After a while, Savanna got a message from Leo. It said, "Savanna, I had to go. You needn't come to the station for me. Wish to see you soon."

Savanna looked at the message for a while. And she felt that there must be something wrong again.

But she didn't press Leo. She could only reply, "Okay."

Leo hid in a corner and saw Savanna left in the crowd. He then looked down at his phone and could no longer hold it. Leo's eyes were full of tears all of a sudden.

Leo got hurt. He didn't want Savanna to worry about him. However, Leo hoped to meet her before he left. Thus, Leo called Savanna and asked her to come here. Therefore, he hid in a corner when he saw Savanna arrive.

Watching Savanna leave, Leo felt distressed.

And he told himself that he could come back to meet Savanna later.

Leo had to start escaping ever since.

Savanna walked out of the station and looked back with worry. She was worried about Leo and tried to find him to check if everything went well. Someone in the distance took a picture of her at that moment and then sent it to Brandon immediately.

Brandon looked at the photo on his phone. The photo of the woman's blank eyes and desolate back were like needles stabbing his heart.

Another message from an anonymous person came. The iMessage interface popped up a photo. In the photo, Leo was hiding in a corner secretly gazing ahead, his eyes were full of infatuation and fondness. It stung Brandon.

What a pair of love-struck men and women who could not be separated.

Brandon deleted the anonymous person. Strangely, every time he deleted her, the anonymous person would appear in his iMessage friend list again.

This time, Brandon blacklisted her.

The anonymous person was gone, but the two photos she sent were deeply imprinted in Brandon's heart.

Savanna.

Brandon cried out painfully in his heart.

He couldn't stand the fact that his woman was carrying his child while thinking of another man.

Brandon slammed his fist on the table and a stack of documents fell to the ground. Jim heard the sound and quickly ran in, but he was yelled at by Brandon.

"Get out."

Jim didn't dare to say anything. He shrank his neck and quickly retreated again.

That night, Brandon didn't return to the Rose Villas. Savanna didn't give him a call. The financial affairs of the Thompson Group were already in danger. When Justin came to the Rose Villas to look for her, she didn't seem to be very interested. Savanna had once tried her best to protect her father's painstaking effort. But now, she was so dispirited that she wanted to end the Thompson Group with her own hands.

Because she had already realized that she could not bring the Thompson Group back to life. To protect the Thompson Group, she had to compromise with Brandon, which meant that she would lose the child in her belly.

Such a deal was not worth it.

Savanna gave up.

She believed that her father, who was in heaven, would not blame her when he saw her difficulties.

Savanna asked Mary to help her pack her luggage and was ready to leave at any time.

She believed that her father, who was in heaven, would not blame her when he saw her difficulties.

Savanna asked Mary to help her pack her luggage and was ready to leave at any time.

She could not leave during the day, so she chose to leave at night. She could not confront Brandon openly, so she acted behind the scenes.

After Justin gained insight into Savanna's thoughts, he stopped bothering her.

At noon, Savanna came back from a walk and was sitting on the sofa watching TV. The breath of strangers broke into the Rose Villas. There were a few strong men in black, and they escorted the pale and fragile Winnie.

When Savanna saw Winnie again, Savanna was indifferent, as if she was used to seeing her.

Savanna turned off the TV and wanted to turn and go upstairs, but she was stopped by Winnie.

“Savanna, wait a moment.”

Savanna stopped and turned around.

“What’s your problem?” Savanna asked with cold eyes.

Seeing Savanna’s cold attitude, Winnie had a hard time. She sat in the wheelchair with her face strangely pale. She twisted her fingertips to be white.

“Savanna, it was all my fault in the past. There is no way to measure right and wrong between us anymore. I must live here. Otherwise, I will die.”

Savanna didn’t want to talk to her, but when she heard Winnie’s shameless words, she couldn’t hold it in anymore.

“What does your stay in the Rose Villas have to do with me?”

Winnie bit her lip and remained silent.

Savanna smiled. Her smile was dazzling but was also as cold as ice.

“Brandon and I have already divorced. You love each other. It’s your business. If you don’t want to see me, you can tell Brandon to let me go.”

Winnie bit her lips and seemed to be struggling in pain. After a while, she said faintly.

“Savanna, we grew up together. Can you bear to watch me die?”

Savanna stared at Winnie’s pitiful appearance and sneered in anger.

“Winnie the friendship between us has long ended. Please don’t bring it up anymore. I won’t be happy if you die, but I won’t be sad either. In other words, your matters have nothing to do with me.”

After that, Savanna instructed Mary, “Mary, go get the luggage Let’s go.”

Mary went upstairs to get the luggage she had prepared earlier.

Winnie slid the wheelchair over to block Savanna’s way.

Winnie begged, “Savanna, don’t leave. If you leave, Brandon will blame me. The person Brandon loves is you. He asked me to live here because we...”

Winnie wanted to say something, but she hesitated.

After a moment of silence, she continued, “We have our difficulties.”

Mary had already gone downstairs with the luggage. Savanna ignored Winnie. She took Mary to the door. Two strong figures blocked her way.

“Mrs. Cassel, Mr. Cassel said that you can’t leave for the time being.”

“Back off.”

Savanna suppressed her anger and roared.

However, the two strong figures stood still, pressing down on her head like two mountains.

The anger in Savanna’s heart could no longer be suppressed. She took out her phone and called Brandon.

“Brandon, tell them to scram. I want to leave.”

“Where are you going?”

The voice on the phone slowly magnified. Savanna lifted her eyes and saw Brandon's beautiful face. He was holding his phone as he walked in from the door. He stared at her with his black and bright eyes. Seeing Brandon return, Winnie was on the verge of tears and her voice trembled, "Brandon, I told you before. If I were to move in, Savanna would be unhappy. Hurry up and comfort her."

Savanna stood in place, listening to Winnie's soft voice. She clenched her hands into fists, and her body trembled uncontrollably. Brandon pulled his gaze away from Savanna and looked at Winnie. "Winnie, you go upstairs first."

"I want to live in the room next to Savanna," Winnie screamed with a sharp voice. Brandon did not speak. Mary glanced at Savanna. Seeing that Savanna did not have any intention of refuting, Mary lowered her head and went upstairs to clean up the room. Winnie moved her gaze back and forth between Brandon and Savanna. Then, she had the maid push her upstairs.

In the huge living room, only Brandon and Savanna were left in a flash. Brandon said, "Savanna. Last night, something happened at Blue Bay Villa. Winnie couldn't live there anymore, so she must live in the Rose Villas." Winnie lived in the Rose Villas so that Brandon could protect her. Otherwise, Winnie would lose her life. Must?

Brandon's tone was exactly the same as Winnie's, causing Savanna to giggle. "Of course! This is your villa. It's up to you to decide who can live here. You don't have to tell me!"

"Savanna."

Brandon called her. "I hope you can understand my difficulties."

"Mr. Cassel, I hope you can also understand me. I am a person of flesh and blood, with a soul and a mind. You let Winnie live here and forbid me to leave, so you are enjoying all the benefits, right?"

Savanna's eyes were bleak, and she asked with a smile. Seeing Brandon's dark eyes and his thin and white lips, Savanna poured out the anger that had been pent up in her heart for so long. "Is it especially good for showing off your masculinity? Brandon, don't you think it's dirty?"

Brandon thought, am I dirty? No one dares to say that to me, but she despises me for being dirty.

Brandon felt extremely upset. He gritted his teeth and asked, "Savanna, why do you think that I am dirty?"

Savanna looked at Brandon coldly.

Brandon couldn't stand her strange gaze. It was as if a knife had fiercely stabbed into his chest, causing him so much pain.

At that moment, he really wanted to strangle Savanna. In the end, he endured it.

Brandon did not want Winnie to disturb them. He hoped Savanna would understand him. So, he tried to explain with the greatest patience.

"Winnie is in danger. She can't live in Blue Bay Villa. In other words, she can't live anywhere else. Is this clear enough?"

"Yes."

Savanna nodded.

The smile on her lips was still cold.

"Is there anything else to say?"

Brandon didn't know what else he could say as he looked at Savanna. His fists were tightly clenched, and his lips were a little pale. He was so angry.

"I hope that you can coexist peacefully with her. As long as Winnie gives birth to a child, I will send her away."

Brandon promised Savanna.

However, it seemed that Savanna ignored his promise.

Savanna stared into Brandon's eyes. "Don't worry, Brandon. As long as she doesn't cause trouble, I won't care about anything."

Brandon, you are not worthy of my care.

Savanna thought.

Savanna turned around and went upstairs without turning back.

Brandon stood there for a long time, and his knuckles turned white. After a long while, he stepped into the study. Later, Brandon did not leave the study for the entire afternoon.

Savanna slept for the entire afternoon.

In the evening, Mary called Savanna to go down for dinner. Savanna said that she did not want to eat. Mary went downstairs and told Brandon.

Brandon sat at the dining table stiffly. Winnie, who was sitting opposite him, stopped drinking the soup. She looked up and said pitifully to Brandon, "Brandon, Savanna might be angry. I'm sorry for disturbing you."

Brandon did not answer her but compressed his lips.

After a moment of silence, he called Mary.

"Send some food to Savanna."

"Sure."

Mary sent the food into the master bedroom and retreated out.

Brandon and Winnie were eating quietly at the dining table. Winnie finished the soup and ate some food. Brandon had finished eating, and he reached out for a tissue to wipe his mouth elegantly. Seeing that Brandon was about to get up and go upstairs, Winnie quickly said, "Brandon, I will have a prenatal examination tomorrow. Do you have time to go with me?"

Brandon was a little impatient. "Let Reece go with you."

Since the dangerous incident happened last night, Reece was the bodyguard that Brandon specially hired for Savanna.

After hearing Brandon's words, Winnie suddenly felt dejected. Her voice was choked with sobs.

"If Reece goes with me, those people will make up stories about us. After all, everyone thinks I am your true love."

Winnie said the word 'true love' with a straight face.

"They will think that I've cheated on you. I don't really care. I'm mainly afraid of you being mistaken."

There was an unspeakable resentment in her eyes when Winnie said these words. Winnie was blaming him and Savanna. If it weren't for Savanna, she wouldn't have fallen out of her wheelchair and almost had a miscarriage. Or she wouldn't have had an accident.

Brandon felt guilty when he heard this, and his cold eyes gradually turned warm.

"Well, I will go with you tomorrow."

Brandon pushed open the bedroom door and saw the untouched food on the tray. He glanced at the soft figure. Savanna was sitting next to the bay window and reading a book. He pulled off the tie on his neck and took off his coat to hang it on the hanger. Brandon unbuttoned his shirt and cufflinks while walking to her. He asked gently, "Don't you like the food?"

Savanna sat there without moving as if he was invisible.

"Not feeling well?"

Brandon rolled up his sleeves, revealing his white elbow bone. He reached out to take Savanna's temperature. Before he touched Savanna, she had already turned away.

A cool air slid past Brandon's fingertips.

He restrained his anger in his heart, and a rare gentleness appeared on his face. "Don't let my son starve."

Brandon brought the food over, picked up a piece of broccoli with his fork, and brought it to Savanna.

Savanna lowered her head and flipped over the book "Impromptu Speech" with her slender hand.

vel

Savanna didn't answer him. Brandon tried his best to control his temper. He asked Mary to take the food away and heat it up for Savanna when she was hungry.

Mary came up to take the food and was about to go downstairs, but she was stopped by Savanna. Savanna said, "Mary, throw food away!"

Mary looked at Brandon and Savanna. Finally, she responded and hurried downstairs.

"I know you are unhappy, but I have no choice. Savanna, don't make a fuss."

Brandon said weakly, and his words even showed a hint of begging.

"I'll say it again. I'm not throwing a tantrum. I'm just not hungry, so I don't want to eat."

Savanna took her clothes into the bathroom to take a shower.

Brandon reluctantly walked to the balcony to smoke.

Savanna came out after taking a bath. The fragrance of the bath spread over the whole room immediately. The door was knocked, and she frowned to open it.

It was Lizeth Conner, the maid who took care of Winnie.

Seeing Savanna, Lizeth anxiously glanced at her back. She seemed to be looking for Brandon.

"Ms. Thompson, is Mr. Cassel here?"

Lizeth asked anxiously.

Savanna pointed to the balcony connected to the master bedroom and said, "He is there."

Lizeth did not care much and directly bypassed Savanna. She walked into the master bedroom. Seeing that Brandon was smoking on the balcony, Lizeth quickly walked over and reached out to open the door of the balcony. "Mr. Cassel, Ms. Landis is bleeding. It's a little serious. Please go and take a look!"

Hearing Lizeth's words, Brandon quickly put out that cigarette on his fingertips and followed Lizeth out.

Brandon had just walked out when he heard the sound of the door closing behind him. He was startled and still quickened his steps to go to Winnie's room.

After a while, she heard a whistle coming from downstairs. Later, there were car lights passing through the glass window.

After another moment, Mary came up and grumbled indignantly.

"Ms. Thompson, Mr. Cassel allows Winnie to live here, but he doesn't allow you to leave. It's really too overbearing."

Seeing that Savanna pursed her lips and did not speak, Mary added.

"I think that Winnie does it on purpose. She keeps trying to seduce Mr. Cassel. Do you think she is pregnant with the child of Mr. Cassel?"

Even Mary, who was illiterate, felt that it was a complicated relationship.

She was worried about Savanna.

"Mary." Savanna was stunned, and her eyes were cold.

The true love? Isn't Winnie the love and the eternal and holy light in Brandon's heart? Savanna thought bitterly.

She had to try to stop herself from loving Brandon. Only when she had no desire could her heart be as calm as water.

Savanna lay on the bed and stared blankly at the huge TV on the wall, which was playing a very popular TV drama. Suddenly, Brandon called her. Savanna answered it inexplicably and heard his voice. "The doctor said that Winnie is not in good condition. I won't come back tonight. You should rest early."

Brandon was a bit anxious when he said this.

Hearing his instructions, Savanna obediently replied, "Alright."

Savanna's gentleness made him feel good. His magnetic voice came again. "Savanna. At this time, I can't leave her behind. She has nothing left. This child must be kept."

"Okay."

Savanna responded mechanically.

"I won't disturb you. I'm fine. You can take care of her!"

Brandon still wanted to say something, but Savanna had hung up the phone.

Savanna woke up just as dawn broke but stared at the ceiling in a daze because she could no longer

fall asleep

After breakfast, Tracy came.

"Savanna, was my brother not back last night?"

The last time in the Night nightclub, Savanna had seen Tracy seduce Brandon. She knew Tracy's purpose.

"No."

Savanna indifferently replied as she played a mobile game.

Seeing that Savanna was cold to her, Tracy frowned.

"No."

Savanna moved her body away, making Tracy's hand naturally slide off her shoulder.

Tracy didn't care but clicked on the social platform on her phone and pointed at the pictures in the news.

"Savanna, this was caught by the paparazzi. Last night, my brother took care of Winnie in the hospital for the whole night. Look at that bitch. Winnie wanted to wrap her entire arm around my brother's waist. She must have been raped by a few men. My brother won't want this kind of junk anymore. She also knew it clearly but pestered my brother and refused to let go."

"How did you know?"

Savanna stopped playing the game and looked up at Tracy.

Under Savanna's sharp gaze, Tracy felt a little guilty and swallowed before saying this.

"Are you talking about Winnie being raped?"

Savanna only gazed at her, threatening.

Tracy tried to calm down.

"Nothing can always be a secret. Savanna, this is no longer a secret in Ireland. One of my friends told me yesterday."

Savanna quit the game and then sneered at Tracy.

"That is your brother's true love. Tracy, your brother will definitely cut you with a knife if there is any mishap. Be careful."

"His true love?"

Tracy repeated with flickered eyes. A few seconds later, she added.

"Is she qualified?"

"Do you know why Winnie can't live in the Blue Bay Villa?"

Tracy asked Savanna.

Savanna was silent.

Tracy added, "She provoked someone she shouldn't have, and those people wanted her dead. It was the best proof that the Blue Bay Villa caught fire the night before yesterday."

cd

Tracy's words shocked Savanna. A moment later, Savanna talked about the conjecture in her mind.

"Are they the thugs from Ireland?"

"I'm not sure," Tracy replied.

"She's so dirty that she can't even be clean by washing. How dare she still want to be my brother's true love! She is nothing."

Savanna did not want to get involved in Winnie's matter.

Therefore, she said impatiently, "Tracy, you came here because you wanted to tell me that the scandal between your brother and Winnie was on the top of the news again. Is that so?"

Tracy answered, "Of course not. I just want to remind you to be carefully watching for Winnie. She is not simple. I'm still on your side. After all, after getting along, I feel that you are kinder and easier to get along with than her."

Tracy's flattery came to Savanna.

How could Savanna believe what Tracy said?

"I'm not a liar. I do not like you, Tracy."

Tracy used to have such a good relationship with Winnie as if they were allies. For some unknown reason, she seemed to defame Winnie. Savanna didn't want to have too much contact with Tracy, such an insincere woman.

Moreover, Savanna knew that Tracy liked Brandon.

Even if Savanna was Brandon's ex-wife, she knew that Tracy probably wouldn't be able to tolerate her. Thus, Savanna felt that she must be wary of Tracy.

Tracy was the best at stirring things up.

Tracy didn't get angry because of Savanna's straightforwardness but even spoke with a gentle smile.

"Slowly, you will like me. You will realize that I am a good person, Savanna."

In the master bedroom.

Savanna stood in front of the window with her dimly eyes gazing at the sky outside the window. After turning around, she gazed at the calendar, which reminded her that it was the day for the prenatal examination. Soon, she took off her pajamas and changed into a black skirt to cover her slender figure, which made others unable to tell that she had been pregnant for four months.

Mary accompanied her to the hospital for the prenatal examination.

Mary recorded a video of the prenatal examination with Savanna's phone. Savanna took the phone and looked at the little guy whose hands and feet had been formed according to the ultrasound. It was her child. Savanna played the video repeatedly with some tears in her eyes.

Savanna held the phone and followed Mary. Suddenly, Mary called out, "Mr. Cassel."

Savanna paused and moved her eyes away from the phone. A tall figure in the corner entered her sight. Brandon seemed to have heard Mary's voice. He stopped and turned around to meet Savanna's gaze.

Brandon was surprised. Perhaps he did not expect to meet Savanna in the hospital.

He turned to walk toward her.

His tired and messy hair had said that he had not slept the entire night.

"Why are you here?"

Mary answered, "Mr. Cassel, today is the day of Ms. Thompson's prenatal examination."

No one was with her, so I had to put down my work and come with her.”

Mary’s words seemed to blame Brandon.

It was naturally impossible for Brandon to treat Mary like other servants because Mary was from the Thompson’s home.

Usually, Mary wouldn’t have the courage to say this, but today was different.

She intended to speak for Savanna.

Brandon seemed to be thinking about Mary’s words. A hint of gentleness flashed across his deep eyes when he walked to Savanna.

He gently said, “I’m sorry. I didn’t know that today was the day of your prenatal examination. You should have told me.”

Savanna felt that Brandon’s words were too hypocritical. He still wore the same suit when he left the Rose Villas with Winnie last night, looking decadent and haggard.

In Savanna’s impression, he would always dress brightly and beautifully. However, Brandon made himself like this because of Winnie.

“If I say it, will you come with me?”

Savanna originally did not want to say it, but she had already spoken before she realized it.

“Of course.”

Brandon was delighted to see that she was willing to talk to him. When he glanced at the color ultrasonography video on Savanna’s phone, he reached out to take the phone and observed it. A rare smile appeared on his face.

“Is he our child?”

He asked Savanna, but Savanna did not answer. He did not care but played the video again and again.

“Mr. Cassel, it is Ms. Landis’ checking time now. The outpatient department is urging,” Lizeth walked out of the opposite ward and immediately called Brandon when she saw them standing in the aisle.

Savanna told him, “It’s time for your sweetheart to receive an examination.”

With that, Savanna took the phone back from Brandon and walked forward without looking back.

Brandon was about to ask Reece to drive Savanna back, but Savanna had already left when he looked up.

Mary glanced at Brandon and then Lizeth. After that, Mary quickly chased in the direction that Savanna had left.

Savanna did not return directly to the Rose Villas after leaving the hospital but went to the Thompson Group. Justin had called her and said that a mysterious person was willing to invest in the Thompson Group. Everything was settled. She just needed to sign the contract.

Seeing Savanna, Justin was very excited and kept introducing the investors.

“Is this person reliable?” Savanna asked.

Justin replied, “Yes. He is rich and has a wide social network, I’m afraid that even Mr. Cassel can’t afford to offend hiin.”

Savanna was very willing to sign it as long as it was someone that Brandon could not afford to offend. She nodded and responded, “good.”

The other party sent a young woman here, Yvonne.

In the evening, Savanna drove away from the Thompson Group, but an Audi kept following her closely and maintaining a distance from her. The Audi didn’t leave until she drove into the Rose Villas.

Brandon had some worries.

He was afraid that she would run away with his child.

Savanna stopped the car, got out of it, and stepped directly into the villa gate.

She unlocked her phone to see if anyone was looking for her. Unexpectedly, she saw a trending topic. “In a country, a disabled woman and four men...”

According to people in the know, the disabled woman was worth a lot, and she was a powerful man’s true love.

Although the news did not directly say the name, any smart person could tell that the powerful man was Brandon, and the disabled woman was Winnie.

Although the woman’s face was mosaic in the photo on the news, Winnie’s face still could be recognized.

After all, the purple feather coat was so obvious. Only Winnie loved purple.

Savanna did not like Winnie and even hated her a little.

However, she still felt a little lacking in morals for someone to expose Winnie’s privacy.

In the evening, Brandon came back with a cold face. Winnie was beside him. Winnie seemed to cry for a long time because her eyes were puffy. Her face was so pale. Once she came back, she was pushed into the guest room by Lizeth, OBrandon pulled off the tie on his neck and took off his coat without looking at Savanna. He directly walked to the balcony to smoke.

Savanna knew that Winnie must have seen the news about her. After all, who could bear that kind of thing? More importantly, those people even took a video of the scene of humiliation.

Although it was very subtle, it was enough to destroy Winnie's reputation and make her despair.

When Savanna wanted to check the news again, it had been removed. The public relations methods were so powerful that they must be the result of the PR of the Cassel Group.

It was no wonder that Brandon was in such a bad mood when his true love was humiliated in public.

Savanna thought it was ridiculous.

She raised her eyes and inadvertently glanced at the balcony outside. Coincidentally, Brandon was staring at her. All of her movements fell into his eyes. Savanna pursed her lips and showed a mocking smile. With that, she shifted her gaze away from Brandon's face. This scene became a sign of guilt in Brandon's eyes.

He bit the cigarette and hesitated for a moment before pinching off the cigarette with annoyance. Soon, he opened the door to the terrace and strode into the bedroom.

Brandon went straight to the study without looking at Savanna.

Savanna finished reading a book and turned off the lights to sleep. Not long after, Lizeth's panicked and helpless scream came from outside.

"Mr. Cassel, Ms. Landis slit her wrist and committed suicide."

Soon, hurried and heavy footsteps came from the walkway.

Savanna could clearly hear that someone kicked open the door opposite hers.

Brandon's roar pierced through the door and stabbed at her ears.

"Call the doctor immediately."

"Yes,"

It was Reece who answered in trepidation.

Savanna wanted to sleep, but the loud noise in the opposite room made her unable to do that. She sat up, reached for her coat, and put it on. With that, she gently got out of bed and opened the door of her room.

"Brandon, leave me alone. Why did you save me? I... I just... I can't live like this anymore."

All of Winnie's suppressed and painful voice fell into Savanna's ears.

Savanna took two steps and looked inside. Like a man-eating devil, that horrifying blood was winding all the way from the door to the big bed. The doctor tried to stop the bleeding with medicine powder on Winnie's hand, which had cut veins.

Winnie was so agitated that she could not control her emotions but fiercely struggled, which made it extremely difficult for the doctor to apply medicine for her. Brandon had to walk over and bend over to wrap Winnie in his arms tightly. He shouted in a trembling voice.

"Winnie, don't be like this."

Winnie's blood had covered Brandon's suit corners and pants.

Just now, it should be Winnie who wanted to die. He picked her up from the ground and put her on the bed. When the doctor came, Brandon retreated to let him treat Winnie.

Brandon comforted her but couldn't make her get rid of what she had experienced.

Winnie screamed desperately.

"Leave me alone. I want to die."

Suddenly, Winnie's struggling movements paused for a second when she met Savanna at the door, but soon, Winnie struggled again, even crazier than before.

She pushed the doctor away and struggled free from Brandon's arms, desperately throwing herself at Savanna.

"Savanna, you hate me. You want me to die, don't you?"

Winnie's shrill voice was extremely ear-piercing

"Now, as you wish, I have nothing left. My reputation and status are all gone. I am not worthy of being with Brandon. You wish to see all of these. You have fulfilled your wish.

What a vicious woman you are."

Winnie seemed to have gone crazy with messy hair and white lips. Her face was even more ferocious and frightening when she rushed towards Savanna desperately.

Band! Winnie fell off the bed. Even so, she did not cry out in pain but stared into Savanna's eyes. Hatred was boiling on Winnie's body. At that moment, everything she wanted was to kill Savanna.

Everyone was scared by this scene. They were all stunned on the spot.

Brandon, who still kept a cold face, did not look at Savanna but reached out to help

Winnie up. Unexpectedly, Winnie moved faster than him and quickly picked up the glass on the ground to swipe at Savanna's face.

Because of the struggle, Winnie's wound that had just stopped bleeding started to bleed again from the white powder, drop by drop.

Brandon was stunned. In an instant, he quickly walked over and supported Winnie up from the ground. Ignoring Winnie's screaming, he placed her on the bed and then said to the doctor with a cold face.

“Give her a tranquilizer.”

The doctor immediately took the needle and injected a tranquilizer into Winnie’s arm. Winnie wanted to get up, but her body shook for a while, and immediately fell on the big bed.

Brandon turned around. When he met Savanna’s shocked face, his deep eyes were immediately covered with a layer of haze. He immediately walked toward Savanna, grabbed Savanna’s arm, and pushed her into the master bedroom. When he was sure that Savanna was safe enough, he shouted with a sullen face, “Do you know how dangerous it was just now?”

Just now, he was about to lose her.

Winnie’s madness had shocked him very much.

Being hugged by Brandon, Savanna gradually returned to her senses after being frightened by Winnie. Suddenly, she pushed Brandon away and mocked him.

“Don’t you wish to see all of this?”

“When you decided to bring Winnie back to the Rose Villas and forbid me to leave, all this entanglement was already doomed.

“Now, how can you condemn Winnie or me?”

“What do I wish to see? Do I hope to see you being hurt or Winnie living a life worse than death? Savanna, you have to rely on your conscience when you speak.”

Brandon couldn’t suppress the anger in his mind when Savanna questioned him.

Savanna understood Brandon. Seeing the veins on his forehead tighten, she knew that he was about to rage. However, she also had anger, which had been suppressed in her mind for a long time. Winnie’s intention to kill her made her dissatisfaction with Brandon, which had been suppressed for a long time, erupt like a volcano.

Savanna screamed, “Since you feel so sorry for her and care about her, you should take her away and let me go.”

Brandon was dumbfounded.

He clearly cared about Savanna, but why couldn’t Savanna see his heart?

Brandon lamented, “I only care about you.”

“Haha!”

Savanna laughed out.

“Brandon, do you think I will believe you?”

“Do you think you can deceive me so easily?”

If he cared about her, would he be willing to bring Winnie back to make trouble for her?

If he cared about her, would he spend the whole night in the hospital with Winnie?

If he cared about her, would he leave her alone in Ireland for Winnie?

That night, she would have died in Ireland without Leo’s help.

She couldn’t afford his love!

Brandon restrained his anger in the face of Savanna’s hysteria. He stopped being arrogant.

“I didn’t lie to you.”

What should he say to make her believe him?

“If you care about me, will you arrange for her to stay on the opposite side of my room? If you care about me, will you be intimate with her all the time? Moreover, will you allow her to almost kill me?”

Tears rolled over Savanna’s face.

Brandon wanted to explain but did not know how.

Just now, he didn’t react in time. Savanna thought he was standing on Winnie’s side, but it was not the truth.

However, Savanna would not believe what he said anymore.

“Can’t you find any words to say?”

Savanna’s words were tinged with coldness.

Brandon showed an agitated expression without saying anything.

Savanna laughed coldly and finally understood that she was already an evil woman in Brandon’s heart.

She thought that Brandon must regard her as an executioner after his beloved Winnie became like this.

Savanna felt so heartbroken that she almost lost her breath.

“Yes.”

Savanna nodded and admitted openly.

“I leaked the news. If you want to avenge your beloved Winnie, kill me, imprison me, or sell me off. In short, you, Brandon, are also a demon. If you have any hatred or resentment, just do it to me. It may be my karma if you want to make my life a living hell.

“I deserve it. I should not fall in love with you, such a heartless man.

“Everything is my fault.”

Brandon was so angry that his face turned pale. His eyes were filled with hostility and his nose was trembling

“Savanna, be reasonable.”

Wasn’t she reasonable?

If not, how could Brandon bully her?

Brandon laughed crazily. She laughed so hard that her body trembled. Then, she stopped abruptly and looked at Brandon indifferently. She pushed him away and rushed out.

Seeing this, Brandon followed her quickly.

He grabbed Savanna’s arm, but Savanna struggled to shake it off. When Brandon grabbed her again, Savanna bit on his tight muscles with all her might.

Brandon could not bear the pain, so he had to let go of her.

After having freedom, Savanna rushed out without looking back.

Brandon chased after her. When he raised his hand and looked at the teeth marks on his wrist, he became exasperated and shouted at the bodyguard.

“Hurry up and chase her back.”

The bodyguard received the order and moved fast and lightly. In just an instant, they appeared before Savanna’s eyes.

Savanna stopped and did not even look at them. She said through gritted teeth.

“Out of the way.”

However, the bodyguard did not move, Savanna got angry, and she began to slap the bodyguard hard again and again. The sound was very loud in the silent night.

The palm of her hand reddened, but the bodyguard stood still, like a zombie.

Brandon caught up and grabbed Savanna’s arm. Savanna vented all the anger on him.

She slapped his face and kicked him. She was as fierce as a little angry beast. Brandon didn’t fight back. He held her waist with both hands and ignored her punches and kicks, begging.

“Is that enough? If so, get into the house.”

The disparity in strength between men and women made Savanna very quickly at a distinct disadvantage. Perhaps she was tired of fighting or just knew that she could not escape, she gave up struggling and was quickly dragged into the villa by Brandon.

Savanna would go crazy and try to escape again, he pressed his body against the door. His chest heaved up and down violently.

After having enough rest, he stared at Savanna, who was sitting on the bed without making a sound and looking down at her toes and felt assured.

Brandon said, “Stay here and give birth to this child. After that, it’s up to you to decide whether to stay or not.”

Brandon made his point. That is, there was no way for Savanna to give birth to the child outside.

Savanna had an indifferent expression and did not say a word. Perhaps she knew that it was useless to refute Brandon, she simply shut up.

Brandon heaved a sigh of relief when he saw Savanna completely calm down.

He didn’t dare to put in any effort when he pulled at her just now, as he was afraid of hurting the child in her belly

Brandon was even more afraid that what he had just done would restart all over again.

Taking a deep breath, he chose to compromise and promised her again, “After you give birth, I will send you away. Now, it is really dangerous to let you out.”

Savanna closed her eyes as if she did not want to hear his words.

Brandon puffed out his cheeks with his tongue. Savanna slapped him so heavily that his mouth was full of blood.

It was so uncomfortable.

Brandon looked down at the back of his bright red hand, which was covered in bite

Savanna had loved him deeply, behaving gently and obediently. But now, she was like an enraged lioness, and he could do nothing to her.

Brandon knew that Savanna would no longer pay heed to him.

He said to Savanna, "I'm going to sleep in the guest room. If you need me, call me. Good night."

After saying that, Brandon took a change of clothes and went out. He went directly to another guest room. It was not suitable for them to stay in the same room after what had happened. He felt that Savanna needed to calm down, so he gave her enough space.

After Brandon left, Savanna sat alone on the bed for a long time. It was not until she became numb and the child in her belly kicked her that she fell on the big bed. Tears rolled down from the corners of her eyes when she fell asleep.

It was also strange that after Brandon and Savanna started to quarrel, Winnie quieted down. The lights in the luxurious residence slowly went off.

Soon, it was dawn.

Before Savanna got up, there was a commotion outside.

There was a lot of noise. Something might happen. Savanna washed up and walked out of the room. She especially looked at the opposite room. The door was closed. She had just walked downstairs when Mary came out of the kitchen.

"Ms. Thompson, Winnie is missing."

Savanna did not have any expression. She sneered in her heart. She sat at the dining table, picked up the toast, and took a heavy bite as if she was biting Brandon's neck.

"It's all because of you. If it weren't for you, Ms. Landis wouldn't disappear."

The sharp accusation came from Lizeth, a maid.

Bang!

Savanna smacked her fork and said coldly, "Who do you think you are? How dare you be so arrogant to me?"

After last night, Lizeth was afraid of Savanna.

Because she saw that Winnie was so excited that she wanted to kill Savanna. Brandon pretended that he was going to help Winnie, but in fact, he wanted to protect Savanna.

As for Savanna, she rushed out crazily and was stopped by the bodyguards. She slapped them with both hands, making a loud sound. Lizeth could not pretend that she could not hear it.

What's more, Savanna hit not only the bodyguards but also Brandon, again and again.

Brandon, who ruled New York, not only did not dodge it but was more like a masochist.

Savanna scratched and kicked him. However, he didn't intend to hit back, just letting her vent her anger.

In the end, he even took his clothes and went to the guest room.

Savanna felt that it was fine that she was bullied by Winnie, but how dare Lizeth, Winnie's servant, bully her a wall? She couldn't let it go, so she smacked Lizeth. Lizeth's face was immediately red and swollen, and there was a ringing in her ears. Maybe her eardrums were broken. She looked at Savanna fiercely as she rushed over. She roared, "I'll kill you!" Savanna stood aside, and Lizeth directly hit the corner of the table. She screamed angrily, "I want to call the police. I want to avenge Ms. Landis!" As she spoke, she rushed out of the villa like a madman. Savanna looked at Lizeth's back. There was a ruthless and fierce look in her eyes. Mary chased out and ran back. She was so angry that her face was pale, and she cursed loudly. "They've only been together for a few days, yet how could Lizeth be so royal? I really can't understand how a servant can be so arrogant." "She committed suicide and went missing. She might make the whole thing up." Mary gave a bowl of oatmeal to Savanna. Mary added. "Mr. Cassel went to find Ms. Landis. It's best if she dies." Savanna did not say a word. She ate the oatmeal with an indifferent expression as if there was nothing to do with her. The disabled Irish woman's scandal broke. After that, the woman disappeared after trying to commit suicide. As the media had made the disabled woman sound miserable and pitiful, the public took the woman's side and thought the murderer was probably someone who stayed by the powerful man's side, All the information fitted in with Savanna. "Yes."

"You are accused of trying to harm Winnie Landis. This is the evidence."

The police found an audio file on the phone. The voice was very similar to Savanna's.

The content of the file was the recording she gave the video to the reporters.

After listening to the audio, Savanna was calm and composed.

"I don't know this reporter."

“But he knows you, Ms. Thompson.”

The policeman said coldly. He handed over a mobile phone and pointed to the chat history on it.

“Take a good look,” the policeman said.

Savanna lowered her head and her gaze fell on the screenshots of the chat.

The time of the chat showed that it was last night, two in the morning.

The anonymous person kept sending videos of Winnie being raped as well as lots of insulting words to her. Finally, Winnie broke down. The CCTV of the Rose Villas showed Winnie, who had disheveled hair and dull eyes, sliding out of the room in a wheelchair at about two and a half in the morning.

And then, there was no more information.

Savanna raised her cold eyes.

She asked the policeman, “How are you sure it was me who sent her?”

Brandon’s eyes were so cold that they made people tremble. He hung up the phone without saying a word.

When Savanna and the old policeman reached the police station, a young policeman hurried over, flustered and exasperated.

“Denzel escaped.”

“When did this happen?” The old policeman asked in slight surprise.

“Just now.”

The young policeman replied.

“He has a guilty conscience, that’s why he escaped.” Seeing Denzel did not dare to confront her, Savanna sneered. She turned to leave but was stopped by the old policeman.

“Ms. Thompson, Denzel has escaped, but that does not mean you have no dealings with him. You can’t leave for now.”

Savanna was speechless.

Savanna sat in the interrogation room and calmly narrated her whereabouts last night.

Suddenly,

the door was pushed open, and a cold man rushed in.

Hearing the noise, Savanna looked at the door and met Brandon's cold and ruthless gaze. Brandon looked angry and pulled Savanna out without any explanation.

The policeman who was in charge of interrogating Savanna was about to chase after them when he was stopped by the policeman who came in. "Do Mr. Cassel a favor. Let her go."

Brandon pulled Savanna into the back seat and sat with Savanna in the Cayenne. As soon as he closed the door, Jim stepped on the accelerator and they quickly left the police station.

Brandon, there was a shock in her eyes. However, she quickly regained was her calm. She looked at the street scenery on both sides, feeling indifferent.

Savanna did not say a word to Brandon even when they got out of the car.

Brandon scratched his hair in frustration and followed Savanna to the villa.

Mary had been extremely worried. When she saw Savanna come back, she was overjoyed.

"Mr. Cassel, thank you."

Mary was dissatisfied with Brandon's preference for Winnie.

But considering he rushed to the police station to bring Savanna back without any hesitation, Mary

After all, that's another kettle of fish.

Brandon asked.

I had told Savanna to call me if she was in trouble!

If I went there later, she would not be able to come out. The evidence was against Savanna. If not for my sake, the police would not have agreed to let her return.

Savanna turned a deaf ear to his complaints and looked at the stubble on his chin.

She sneered. It has only been a night, but he has already become so dispirited. He seems to be very anxious about Winnie's disappearance.

Savanna withdrew her gaze and walked up the stairs, leaving a cold back view to Brandon.

Brandon tugged at the tie around his neck. Winnie was nowhere to be found, and Savanna ignored him, so he was so depressed and irritated.

Brandon dialed Jim's number. "You must find Denzel."

Brandon was not sure if the message was sent by Savanna, because he was not with Savanna last night. However, he was very sure that he received an anonymous Denzel's escape made Brandon even more certain Savanna didn't harm Winnie. Seeing Savanna's reaction last night, Brandon was more certain Savanna would not be the person who had exposed Winnie's scandal. Savanna is my wife. Even if she did something wrong, I had to protect her. Besides, it was not necessarily her who did it! The person who dared to frame Savanna up was absolutely tired of living! Brandon's eyes were filled with anger, After Winnie disappeared, Lizeth angrily scolded Savanna and ran out, and never came back. The Rose Villas was completely quiet from then on. His heart was in his mouth.

Brandon immediately got up and reached for his coat to wear.

Just as he was about to rush out of the office with his phone, he heard a shout from his phone. "Ms. Thompson."

Then, Brandon saw the lights in the corridor were turned on, while Mary rushed out of the house in

He heard Savanna say, "Dial this number."

Savanna handed her phone to Mary.

Mary glanced at the number on the phone and raised her head to look at Savanna with a confused

"Dial."

Savanna gritted her teeth.

"Hurry up."

Savanna frowned in pain.

Mary's fingers trembled as she dialed the number. In just a second, the call seemed to be connected.

Mary anxiously said, "Mr. Wilson, Ms. Thompson is about to give birth."

Not knowing what the other party said, Brandon saw Mary nod and say, "Alright, we will Brandon clenched his fist until his palm was badly mangled. The anxious look on his face slowly froze into ice. His deep eyes were filled with ruthlessness. He slowly put down the coat in his hand, found a cigarette, put it in his mouth, and lit the cigarette.

When his wife was in danger, she was not looking for him, but for another man. To Brandon, this was a humiliation. He was like being slapped in the face. Mary’s clear “Mr. Wilson” made his heart ache.

Hearing this, Cain paused and made a call. Then Brandon saw Cain walk out of the Rose Villas with Savanna in his arms.

The video was over.

The screen was dark.

Brandon’s blue veins stood out. His eyes were filled with hostility. He was like an angry leopard that was enduring its anger. He gritted his teeth and put out the cigarette, taking his coat and striding out of the building.

If I didn’t make Cain Wilson lose his reputation, I wouldn’t be myself!

Brandon sneered.

Savanna had been very quiet all this time. Brandon did not want to make her angry anymore, so he withdrew the bodyguards in the Rose Villas. But he didn’t expect to see such a thing happen!

Fortunately, he had installed surveillance software at home and on his phone.

Brandon had just left the Cassel Group when Jim drove the car over.

Seeing Brandon’s mad face, Jim tried his best not to irritate him.

“Where to go, Mr. Cassel?”

However, Brandon did not reply to him. He lowered his head and made a call coldly.

When the call went through, Brandon said ruthlessly, “Ben, block all the exits of the city.”

Without waiting for Ben to answer, he hung up the phone and immediately called another friend.

“Bob, do me a favor. Make the best gynecologists stand by in all the hospitals in New York tonight. If they admit a pregnant woman named Savanna Thompson, please call me immediately.”

Bob smiled and joked in a lazy voice, “Savanna? Is she the woman who fainted in the bathroom and was carried to the hospital by you last time?”

“Yes.”

“Is she your wife? Brandon, will you have a son?”

Savanna was Brandon's ex-wife. Later on, he wanted to help the Thompson Group, but Brandon never mentioned that to him. Without Brandon's consent, Bob did not dare to do anything.

Brandon didn't ask Bob to take over the Thompson Group but asked him to use his father's authority to block hospitals.

"Will you help me?"

Brandon did not want to talk too much with Bob, so he directly asked.

"Yes, of course."

Bob didn't dare to refuse!

After finishing their talk, Bob realized a problem. Savanna, a woman who would give birth to a baby immediately, had run away!

Bob's nose was covered in a cold sweat. He did not expect Brandon, a powerful man, would be deserted by his wife. Thinking of this, he quickly called each hospital.

Brandon had cast an escape-proof net, but it seemed that Savanna did not enter.

Ben came to meet Brandon. After a while, Bob also arrived. They stood beside Brandon and looked anxious. Ben was the first to report.

"Brandon, all the exits of airports, highway stations, railway stations, and light rail stations are under close supervision, but we don't see Savanna."

As soon as Ben finished speaking, Bob also said restlessly.

"We search for Savanna in all the hospitals, but find nothing."

Ben seemed to have thought of something and immediately asked, "Will Savanna use a fake ID card?"

Brandon replayed the video capturing Savanna leaving home and frowned. He analyzed the talk between Savanna and Mary and concluded Savanna fled from him out of a sudden idea.

If not, Mary wouldn't hesitate to call Cain.

Since Savanna did that out of a sudden idea, she couldn't use a fake ID card.

Brandon's eyes were covered with anger. He stood under a street light and did not say a word, looking cold and ruthless.

Ben and Bob looked at each other and neither dared to speak. They understood Brandon's feeling because if any woman wanted to secretly take away their baby, they would also be furious.

It was fine for women to leave, but they couldn't take away our child.

After all, for people of our status, there were as many women as we wanted, but children were different

That night, Brandon had tried his best to search for Savanna in almost the whole New York. Seeing a pregnant woman's age and time of admission, as well as the fact that there was a man and an old woman accompanying her, Bob asked the director of that hospital to take a photo and sent it to Brandon. Sure enough, it's Savanna, who used a fake name, Sally Thompson. Finally, Brandon found Savanna in a hospital that was related to Cain.

Brandon rushed to the Nelson Hospital.

After suffering the pain of tearing her flesh and losing too much blood, Savanna was lying on the bed to rest. With a loud noise, the door was forcefully opened. Immediately, a strong and powerful cold wind swept in. The unusual air made Savanna open her eyes. When she saw Brandon, whose face was so cold, she sneered.

Savanna's weakness made Brandon worried, and there was also anger that could not be suppressed in his eyes.

"Where is my son?"

He asked hoarsely.

Savanna looked at Brandon. His red eyes made him look like a leopard that was suppressing his temper.

Knowing Brandon was furious, although she was very weak, Savanna still squared herself and enunciated each word.

"He was stillborn."

Brandon shivered slightly as if he could not believe it. He got blank and his ears were ringing.

He glared at Savanna as if he wanted to nail a hole in her stunning face.

"Repeat it,"

He gritted his teeth.

"He was stillborn"

Savanna's tone was very flat as if she was describing whether it was cloudy or sunny today.

Brandon wore a mocking smile which soon vanished.

"Savanna, if I find him, you will be dead."

After saying that, Brandon wanted to leave, but Savanna stopped him.

"Brandon, we're divorced, and our child is dead. Let's make a clean break with each other and move on."

Savanna said calmly but Brandon felt heartbroken at her words. He felt somehow breathless. He took a step back and almost fell.

He slowly looked back and gave Savanna a cold gaze.

He replied with an expressionless face, "Savanna, don't you believe that I can get over you?"

"I never say that, but I think we'd better not contact each other."

The look in Savanna's eyes suggested that she had made up her mind. Her tone was heartbreakingly indifferent.

Brandon took a deep look at her and walked out of the ward. In his anger, he bumped into Cain, who was holding a thermos mug in his hand. Cain was not surprised at Brandon's presence. It seemed that everything was within Cain's expectations. Cain glanced at Brandon and was about to enter the ward. But when Cain was walking past Brandon, he was punched by Brandon in the face.

Cain, who was totally unprepared, fell out. His forehead hit the corner of the wall. Cain touched his wound, his fingertips stained with blood. He gritted his teeth and he chuckled. Then, Cain raised his fist and fought back without a second thought.

Both of them were good at fighting, and as time went by, they got injured.

In the end, Cain was beaten to the ground by Brandon because he was not as strong as Brandon. Brandon fiercely seized Cain by his throat. Cain could even hear the sound of bones cracking. Cain was in so much pain that he was on the verge of passing out.

Cain wanted to fight back if only he had enough strength.

Cain had been punched by Brandon for a while. Cain's throat hurt badly, and he looked miserable.

When Savanna heard the noise, she was about to get up from the bed but was stopped by Mary who came back with water,

"Ms. Thompson, you just gave birth to a child. You shouldn't leave the ward now. It's not good for your recovery!"

Mary rushed out of the ward and shouted, "Mr. Cassel, stop fighting! Stop!"

Mary was frightened when she saw that Cain's face was covered in blood. If they continued, Cain might die.

Ben and Bob arrived. Seeing this, both of them were frightened by Brandon's fierce expression.

Brandon looked as if he were a savage beast. Ben and Bob were afraid that Brandon would kill Cain.

Ben stepped forward and grabbed Brandon's hand, but was flung away by Brandon. Brandon almost beat Ben as well.

Cain was dizzy. He covered his bloody face and got up from the ground. Just as he was about to fight back, a woman rushed out and grabbed his arm. She said anxiously and quickly.

"Cain, stop."

Seeing that Cain was seriously injured, Liana burst into tears and cursed.

"Savanna's not your wife. Why are you doing this for her?"

"If she needs any help when giving birth, you are not the one to turn to."

Seeing that Savanna stayed in the ward and said nothing about the situation, Liana hated her very much.

Liana wanted to check on Cain's injuries, but Cain shouted at her, "Get away!" He refused to let her see his wounds. Liana cried even louder.

"Cain, you are my man and I'm pregnant with your child. You can't treat me like this!"

Liana wanted Cain to be nicer to her by mentioning the child in her belly. Unexpectedly, Cain glanced at her flat belly and sneered more furiously.

"If I have to be responsible for you just because we have slept, I need to be responsible for a lot of women."

“At the very least, we have slept. What about the woman inside? She hasn’t slept with you, and she has given birth to someone else’s child. It’s none of your business!”

Cain didn’t want to argue with Liana and just shouted angrily, “Shut up.”

If he had not been entangled by Liana recently, perhaps, he and Savanna would have been together.

Cain hated himself for having no self-control and falling for Liana’s tricks.

He glared at Brandon.

“She…”

Brandon did not reply and Cain took it as acquiescence. Cain laughed aloud with tears of sadness rolling down his eyes.

He said sorrowfully, “You’ve found a woman like her to separate me and Savanna. How despicable!”

Liana was furious. She knew that she wasn’t a good woman, but she couldn’t stand it when others said it in public. Hearing the whispers from the side, Liana glanced at Brandon.

She then shouted at Cain, “What do you mean a woman like me? You bastard!”

Brandon gave Liana a cold gaze, and she immediately shut her mouth.

Brandon’s eyes were red, and his face was dark. He looked like a demon who killed mercilessly.

Brandon said to Cain, “Cain, I’ll spare you today. Let’s wait and see.”

Then, he left. Ben and Bob followed him.

Ben and Bob did not dare to say anything. Both of them were frightened by the cold look on Brandon’s face. Ben and Bob walked behind Brandon on an empty street. The cold wind blew on their faces.

Ben said carefully, “Maybe he is not dead but is hidden by Savanna.”

Bob said, “It’s possible. Brandon, I’ll help you find him if he’s alive.”

Importantly, just now, they had asked their people to search the hospital a few times but found nothing. The doctors and the nurses who had helped with Savanna’s delivery all said that it was a difficult delivery and the child was dead. It had taken so long that the child had died of hypoxia.

Bob asked someone to get him the dead baby. When Bob saw the bloody body, he almost vomited.

Bob did not dare to show it to Brandon. He was afraid that Brandon couldn’t stand it.

It was his beloved child. No one could endure the sadness of losing their beloved child.

It was understandable that Brandon didn’t behave himself as usual.

“Cain, that bastard. I’ll teach him a lesson.”

Seeing that Brandon was bullied by Cain, Ben hated Cain very much.

Ben thought, I swear, I will let Cain pay a price for this.

Suffering from the pain of losing his child, Brandon looked at least ten years older overnight. Bob and Ben had left. Brandon sat alone in the office. He looked even more lonely in the light.

He was like an injured wild animal, hiding and licking his wounds in a corner. their faces.

He was like an injured wild animal, hiding and licking his wounds in a corner. Brandon sat in the office for the whole night. The bright morning sunlight outside the window drew him back from his thoughts. He heard someone walking in high heels. Later, he realized that Giselle was shouting anxiously at him.

$

"Brandon, is this true that the child is dead?"

Brandon slowly opened his eyes and saw his mother's anxious face. Seeing that Brandon's lips were dry and pale, Giselle felt more worried. Brandon's unusual behavior gave her the answer. She cried.

"What was happening? Didn't you promise me that you would reconcile with Savanna? Where is Savanna now? I want to see her."

Giselle had given Brandon and Savanna the freedom to deal with their relationship. At the same time, she had dealt with Winnie. She had believed that without Winnie, Brandon and Savanna would be okay, and naturally, their child would be fine. She hadn't expected that she would lose her grandson.
