

Chapter 51 Master Mia's True Identity

A professional-looking smile remained on Melody's face as she voiced out politely, "Miss Melanie, you're wrong. The person sitting in front of you right now is, in fact, Master Mia. Since it's true, how can you say it's a lie? Furthermore, you willingly gave the money to come and see Master Mia, so why are you blaming us? In the past, you waited painstakingly downstairs for two days, and now that you've finally met Master Mia, why aren't you consulting her? What's the point of causing such a huge commotion right here?"

Melanie instantly pointed at her. "Shut up! You're just a receptionist, so you don't have the right to say anything." Subsequently, she glanced toward Vania and sneered. "Seems like you set this trap ages ago. You set this trap from the start, and it must have been planned since the first time I came to see you. You slowly led me into the trap of seeking out Master Mia! In the end, you were the person I was led to find! Vania, you've really taken me for a fool!"

However, Vania was unperturbed as she retorted snidely, "How can this be a trap that I set up? In the past, you were the one who was very eager to enter the design industry. Right now, you're also the one who's eager to seek out Master Mia, so this has nothing to do with me! Meanwhile, I'm quite sure that you know your own ultimate goal and the tactics you've resorted to. Do you intend to redeem your relationship with Hanson? Well, I reckon that this isn't the right way, and you're quite lost. You should honestly reflect on yourself! Melody, see her out."

At that point, Melanie was at a loss for words from Vania's rebuttal, and the former pointed at the latter before she left. "Great! Vania, you're quite good at this! Don't ever forget the things that you've done today. I swear that I won't forgive you so easily!"

With a snort, Melanie slammed the door and left.

Meanwhile, Melanie felt quite uneasy the entire time. What should I do? What can I do about this right now? To think that Master Mia, whom I was so eager to meet, is actually Vania. Now, there's no way I can collaborate with her to win Hanson's heart once again. From now onward, what should I do? Each day that Vania was around, the danger that Melanie faced increased too. Therefore, the latter realized that since she was still by Hanson's side, she definitely could not waste this opportunity.

At that point, there was a cold look that flashed across Melanie's eyes as she made a phone call.

Inside the office of Fortune Tower, Melody saw that Melanie had left in a huff. The former voiced out in an amused voice, "Boss, you're really great at this! You managed to make her leave in a huff by just a few sentences. You must not have realized this, but she was so haughty in front of me. She warned me to watch out as she could easily kick me out of Hammond."

Meanwhile, Vania glanced in the direction of the doorway with a mocking expression before turning to Melody to appease her, saying, "Don't worry, Melody. She won't dare to do anything to you with me around. Rest assured that you'll be able to stay in Hammond and come to work every day."

Subsequently, Vania took the document in her hand and handed it over to Melody. "This is the invitation card sent over by Luke Corporation previously. Get back to this in the name of Master Mia and reply that Master Mia accepts this invitation. We can meet at the Hammond International Hotel tomorrow at nine o'clock."

"Sure, Boss. I'll do that right away."

Just as Melody was about to turn around to walk off, Vania stopped her. "Hold on."

"Boss, do you have anything else for me to do?"

After some consideration, Vania mentioned, "Melanie spent a fortune in order to meet me. You can do whatever you want with the ten million that she gave you. As for the twenty million, help me to donate the money to Kindred Soul Welfare Home anonymously."

She also contemplated the situation for a moment before voicing out, "By the way, I don't want the public to be aware that I'm actually Master Mia for the time being. Help me keep an eye on the latest news amongst the public, and if such a rumor pops up, please deal with it right away. You don't have to seek my permission to sort things out."

Chapter 52 Visiting Grandpa and Grandma

Melody nodded her head. "Sure, I'll handle this right away."

Meanwhile, on the other end, Hanson was busy keeping Morales and Morgan company.

He spoke patiently to the two kids. "Grandpa and Grandma miss the two of you very much, and they would like to invite you to stay with them overseas for a while. Once school starts, they'll send you back here. They've doted on the two of you since you were young, so you guys should repay them and show your filial piety by spending more time together with them. Besides, I've also found a very famous international designer to guide you guys in design. You can keep Grandpa and Grandma company overseas and focus on your design skills too. This is a rare opportunity."

As soon as they heard him mention design, the two boys were elated as they nodded their heads obediently. "We'll go along with whatever you've arranged."

However, Morales said somewhat worriedly, "But we can't bear to be apart with you and Mommy. Daddy, are you upset with Mommy? We haven't seen her for the entire day."

At the same time, Morgan spoke up too as he asked, "Daddy, can you not be angry at Mommy? We don't want to lose you or Mommy."

Since young, they were aware that their parents didn't exactly have a loving relationship, and they even appeared to be quite distant too. Regardless, they did not want their parents to separate from each other.

In response, Hanson patted the two of them on their backs with a stony face. "You're too young, so you shouldn't trouble yourselves with all these. Take good care of yourselves and keep Grandpa and Grandma company. Once school starts, I'll be there to bring you guys back."

Morales and Morgan nodded their heads. As soon as they saw the expression on their dad's face, they no longer dared to utter another question.

Besides, it was quite normal for them to visit their grandparents annually. Since they had yet to visit them this year, the kids concluded that perhaps they were just overthinking things and that everything wasn't actually as complicated as they assumed. Perhaps their grandparents missed them and wanted them around.

Meanwhile, Hanson nodded his head approvingly upon noticing that the two boys had stopped questioning him.

Hanson turned around to instruct Larry, "Has everything been sorted at the old madam's side?"

Larry nodded in response. "Sir, everything has been sorted out perfectly, and I've given all of the necessary instructions."

"Okay. You can make arrangements for the private plane right now and send them there." As soon as Morales heard that they were leaving in such haste, he couldn't help frowning worriedly. "Daddy, can we meet Mommy and say goodbye to her?"

Morgan also voiced out along with Morales, saying, "Daddy, we really miss Mommy very much. She would always be here to send us off in the past. Can you get her to come and send us off too? I haven't seen Mommy the entire day."

Morales continued to plead as well. "Could we please say goodbye to Mommy before heading over to Grandpa and Grandma's place?" he asked.

In response, Hanson considered their request before glancing at Larry. "Go and get her. You should know what to do."

Larry nodded. "Don't worry, sir. I'll make sure that everything is sorted out well."

In less than half an hour, Larry drove back with Melanie in the car.

As soon as Melanie saw the two kids, she rushed over to hug them. However, she recalled Larry's instructions before they arrived, so she didn't dare to speak up unnecessarily.

She took a look at Hanson before revealing an ordinary smile and said, "Grandpa and Grandma miss you very much, so they want you two to stay with them for a short while."

"I'll miss you very much. If you miss us, just send us some videos of yourselves. Daddy has already found an awesome designer for the two of you. Take this seriously, and once you're back, you can show me your designs. I'll definitely miss you two. Don't forget about me and Daddy."

Chapter 53 Meetup With Master Mia

Hanson was not that heartless to stop her from seeing the kids, so that indicated that she was still quite important to the kids.

At that point, she was very eager to maintain a close relationship with her children. After all, Hanson could not do anything to stop them if they missed her.

When Morales and Morgan saw their mother approaching them, their worries were instantly alleviated. In fact, they beamed happily and said, "Mommy, we'll definitely miss you and Daddy very much."

Just then, Melanie could not help herself and she wrapped her arms around them tightly. She portrayed a doting mother unwilling to part with her darling children.

At that moment, Hanson reminded them, "It's nearly time to leave. Larry, send them to the tarmac."

Finally, Melanie released the kids from her embrace unwillingly. "Let us know when you guys arrive. Bye."

"Okay. Bye, Mommy. Bye, Daddy."

Morales and Morgan then entered the car and bade farewell to Melanie and Hanson through the open car window.

Melanie was quite reluctant to part with them, and she took a few steps forward to be nearer to them. Subsequently, she covered her face and waved continuously at the kids, almost teary-eyed. Finally, she put down her hands when she realized that the car had disappeared from her view.

As soon as Hanson noticed that the kids had left, he turned around to leave immediately. Meanwhile, Melanie wailed painfully at his retreating back, "Hanson, are you really going to treat me this way? I've learned from my mistakes, and I'll definitely mend my ways this time! Could you give me some more time? I'll definitely turn over a new leaf and mend my ways during this period with Morales and Morgan out of the country. Let's give it another try at making things work between us. I'll definitely try my best to fit your criteria. Once Morales and Morgan get back, we can live together once again so that they won't feel sad."

However, Hanson merely shot a cold look at her. He obviously did not trust every single bit that she had just said.

He strode off immediately, but she continued to stare at his retreating back with a mesmerizing look while muttering under her breath, "Hanson, are you seriously going to behave so heartlessly toward me?"

Hanson made his way back to his office at Luke Corporation.

His secretary, Miss Rowland, spoke up quite formally just then. "President Luke, Master Mia has sent this over and requested that you take a look at it personally."

At that moment, his hands trembled upon hearing Master Mia's name.

He had sent several invitations to her because he was very keen on meeting her, but he had never once succeeded in doing so. Hence, he was quite surprised to receive Master Mia's response out of nowhere. Could it be because of Vania?

He took the invitation card from his secretary and opened it. The words written were, 'Let's meet at the Hammond International Hotel at nine o'clock tomorrow.'

Master Mia initiated this meet-up and even responded to me too! What does this mean, huh? Does she intend to collaborate with us? Could it be because of something else? Although he had been looking forward to this, the sudden occurrence made him quite suspicious too.

Hanson glanced at the contents of the document, but his brows remained tightly furrowed.

Subsequently, he instructed Miss Rowland, "Investigate this."

Miss Rowland nodded. "Sure, President Luke."

The next day, Hanson arrived at the Hammond International Hotel slightly earlier than their meet-up time and took a seat in the private room.

At that moment, there were plenty of questions running through his mind, and he was slightly curious too.

Master Mia had won a lot of awards internationally, but her identity had always been a secret. No one knew her gender nor her country of origin up until now.

However, Hanson inexplicably sensed that Master Mia would be a pleasant surprise for him.

He had just taken a seat, and in less than a minute, there was a knock at the door to the private room.

Evidently, it was not the waiting staff.

When Larry heard the knock, he instantly got up to open the door.

However, he was taken aback as soon as he saw the person at the door as he exclaimed loudly. The noise that he made sounded quite jarring in the quiet surroundings.

Chapter 54 An Unequal Exchange

Larry sounded quite rude, and his current behavior was not befitting of his professionalism.

Instantly, Hanson's expression turned cold. After all, Larry had never made a blunder in his job for all these years.

This was an important occasion today, so Hanson could not comprehend why Larry was behaving so strangely.

Hanson's brows were tightly furrowed as he turned in the direction of the door to take a look. At that moment, he couldn't help exclaiming in his mind too as soon as he turned over. It's her!

Vania shot a look at the two men, who were significantly stunned and hadn't yet come to their senses. Then, she walked into the room with a slight smile.

She stood in front of Hanson quite nonchalantly.

She said politely, "Nice to meet you, Mr. Luke. It seems that I should reintroduce myself to you."

"My name is Mia, and I'm here for our appointment."

At that point, Larry had just regained his senses slightly after being stunned into oblivion, and he bit his pinky to find that he could feel the pain. To put it in another way, he wasn't dreaming.

His goddess was in fact Master Mia, a person who was fawned over by everyone. This was definitely the most sensational news.

My goddess is awesome! Larry looked at Vania with stars in his eyes.

However, he had just turned to look at her when Hanson instantly directed a cold glare in his direction.

President Luke is behaving quite strangely. He doesn't have dibs on her yet, so what's up with all that possessiveness?! Gosh!

In the end, Larry retracted his gaze unwillingly.

As for Hanson, he kept his eyes closely on Vania. He studied her intently as if he wanted to identify something different within her.

It's no wonder that I sensed that I would get a pleasant surprise by meeting up with Master Mia. This is such a wonderful surprise indeed!

Subsequently, he got up from his seat quite naturally and revealed a smile before reaching out to shake her hand. "Nice to meet you, Master Mia. I hope that our future collaboration will be a success."

She walked toward her seat with a smile on her face. "There's really no need to address me as Master Mia. You can address me by my name; Mia's fine too."

However, Hanson was indifferent to her words. "Well, you're quite courteous by addressing me as Mr. Luke too."

In response, she smiled. "Okay then, let's behave naturally around each other. Let's not deviate from our main purpose. I reckon that there won't be any issues with our collaboration, but I do have one condition."

"What is it? I'm keen to find out."

Hanson was extremely curious as to what she had to say, and he had no idea what she would request for.

Meanwhile, Vania was quite frank. She did not bother to hide things as she said, "I'll sign the agreement as Master Mia, and I'll agree to work together with Luke Corporation for a year. I promise to achieve record-breaking numbers for the sales value completed by Fantasy Daydream Jewelry that's under Luke Corporation. I will also ensure that Fantasy Daydream Jewelry becomes the champion in the world, as befitting of its status. In exchange, I only need you to do one thing for me—I want you to hand over the guy named Wesley."

At that point, Hanson couldn't help but frown slightly. She's giving out so many perks, yet her only request is for me to hand over that person. Why does she want to seek him out? What's her main purpose?

At that moment, Hanson realized that there was an air of mystery that surrounded Vania, and he could not quite figure things out by himself.

"Does that person mean something to you?" Hanson voiced out the query in his mind. After all, to him, that man was merely the person paid off by Melanie to frame Vania.

The truth had been uncovered, and those people had already been sent to the police station by him. In fact, they had received due punishment for their crimes. Right now, it seemed quite odd for Vania to bring that man with her.

She lowered her head and revealed a half-smile, but her smile seemed quite pained. "Back then, I arrived in town to seek the person that mattered a lot to me—he mattered even more than my own life. However, as soon as I arrived, I realized that they had tricked me since the place was empty with no one in sight. All of this had been planned by him, so I want to get some information from him, that's all."

She didn't want to seek his help by bringing it up directly, for she would end up being indebted to him.

Therefore, it was just nice for her to make use of Master Mia's identity to exchange information.

At that moment, Hanson nodded his head. However...

Chapter 55 An Unfortunate Accident

Who's the person that matters to her more than her life? What's up with this uncomfortable sensation right now? However, after a short moment of consideration, he turned to Vania and said in a lighthearted note, "Sure, I can accept your condition. One last thing, though—I don't like to hear you address me as Mr. Luke. I like it when you address me by my name."

His domineering and overbearing words caught her by surprise, and her face instantly turned as red as a tomato which felt quite warm to the touch.

In response, she replied awkwardly, "Okay, I got that."

Thereafter, the two of them remained silent without saying another word to each other.

Hanson glanced at Vania and he was quite pleased to see her shy look. Compared to her usual domineering look, he preferred her looking so adorable right now.

After all, her domineering persona was overwhelming, and it felt as if that was her tough exterior. Meanwhile, her adorable, sincere, and slightly naive personality was tightly enclosed within. Her domineering persona most likely developed habitually after all these years.

For a moment there, Hanson somehow felt slightly bad on her behalf.

He voiced out, "Since we're here, we might as well enjoy some breakfast together."

He actually wanted to spend more time with her personally and get to know her better.

In response, she smiled. "I'm afraid we must have missed breakfast hours."

"You're right, and it's such an awkward timing right now. Since we're in each other's company, it would be quite a damper to part ways just like that, right?"

A damper? At that moment, Vania wasn't quite sure why Hanson suddenly seemed so keen. Nonetheless, she nodded her head anyway. "Alright, I'll go along with whatever you want then."

"Haha!" Quite unlike his usual behavior, Hanson suddenly burst into laughter.

Meanwhile, at that same moment, Melanie was standing in front of the window of her mansion while she was on the phone.

"What? Is that true? Vania's having breakfast with Hanson at the Hammond International Hotel right now? What else are you guys waiting for? Take action right now!"

After she had hung up the phone, she kept a tight grip on her phone anxiously as she paced around the room.

As for Vania, after the meal with Hanson, she departed in her own vehicle and headed back to Galaxy Corporation.

She drove at a normal speed. Just as she was about to reach the company, there was another little car that drove in the wrong direction, heading toward her at neck-breaking speed. The car was traveling at a very high speed, and it seemed as if the other party was intent on killing themselves and taking her life along with them as the car came hurtling directly toward Vania's car.

She exclaimed, "Ah!"

At that moment, she felt her entire world spin out of control as darkness descended upon her.

The bystanders were in a frenzy too.

"Ah! Hurry up and help them! There's been a car accident!"

"Call the cops right away!"

Meanwhile, Vania's entire world spun out of control, and there was only darkness in front of her eyes. She had no idea where she was at the moment.

Her surroundings looked like a huge projector with plenty of projections in front of her. It seemed as if she was looking at the stories of her past.

Everything that had happened in the past flashed across her eyes at that moment.

Just as she was engrossed in watching the projections, the car in front of her came at high speed and knocked into her directly.

"Ah..." she yelled, startled.

The tears pooled on her forehead and all of a sudden, she opened her eyes abruptly.

Just then, she saw that there was a white, glaring light on top of her head. Meanwhile, she was surrounded by stark, white walls that were devoid of any decorations.

Prior to this, she felt like she had been in a dream.

She instinctively asked, "Where am I?"

However, her voice was very raspy.

As soon as James, Jack, and Jacob heard Vania's voice, there was a flash of joy and surprise across their faces.

They looked at Vania with tears streaming down their faces. "Mommy! Mommy! You've finally woken up!" After saying that, they brushed the tears off their faces.

At the same time, Linda also glanced at Vania joyfully with a face full of surprise. "Boss! You're finally awake! How do you feel?"

Chapter 56 The Three Loving Kids

Vania scanned her surroundings and realized that she was currently at the hospital.

She could recall being hit by a car, but as for who rescued her afterward and how she arrived at the hospital, she was completely clueless about all this. She tried to recall the situation, but she felt her head throb painfully and instinctively frowned.

James instantly held her hand. "Mommy, what's wrong?"

Jack also quickly pressed the bell to buzz for help. "The doctor will be here right away."

As for Jacob, he used his soft little hands and took a towel to wipe the beads of sweat on Vania's forehead. "Mommy, where exactly do you feel unwell?"

Vania bravely smiled when she saw the worried looks on the faces of her three kids. "Don't worry, kids. I'm fine. I don't feel unwell at all right now."

However, the smile that she revealed was quite painful as it stretched her dry, chapped lips.

James immediately grabbed some water and put a straw inside to place in front of Vania. "Mommy, have a sip of water. I've added some sugar inside. I remember that you used to make us some sugary drinks when we were sick, so it's our turn to do this for you now that you're unwell."

Jack also held her hand tightly. "Mommy, you've been unconscious for more than a day after being hit by the car. We were so frightened. If you're unwell, you must mention it. The three of us will be able to take good care of you."

A teary-eyed Jacob leaned against her arm. "Mommy, do you hurt anywhere? You can cry if it hurts. Don't force yourself to tolerate it."

At that point, Vania was quite touched. There seemed to always be a different revelation from her kids that amazed her. She tried to lift her arm with much difficulty as she stroked her three babies on their faces. "Thanks, kids. I feel great right now. I'm not in pain at all with you guys around me."

Subsequently, Vania turned to look at Linda and seemed to be trying to signal with her eyes to find out what was going on as she couldn't quite recall the incident.

Linda moved forward with a worried expression. "Boss, you came out from Hammond International Hotel the other day and were on the way back to the company, but there was a driver who came in the wrong direction and hit you. The bystanders called the cops, and help was sent for you. The outcome of the investigation was that the other party had driven under the influence of alcohol, and the driver was pronounced dead on the scene."

Vania nodded her head in response. It seemed that the car crash had been concluded as an accident.

However, she instructed Linda, "Continue investigating the matter."

"Boss, I've already continued to investigate this matter. Don't stress yourself about this. It's much more important for you to rest and recuperate so that you can recover soon. Otherwise, the three little masters won't feel at ease too."

Vania nodded her head and held her three sons' hands. "Have the three of you been by my side all this while? You haven't been getting much rest, huh?"

James couldn't care less about resting. "Mommy, you were unwell, so we should stay by your side. It's what we should do."

"James is right. We should take care of you, Mommy. You've always taken care of us when we were sick too. Right now, you're the priority, so you shouldn't worry about us."

Jacob spoke up in a gentle voice, "Mommy, you're our little princess. We have to protect you."

At that point, Vania was extremely touched by their words. She was just about to advise them to go and take a rest when the doctor making rounds knocked on the door to enter the room.

The doctor saw that Vania was conscious, so he stepped forward to check on her. After thoroughly examining her, he spoke up in a professional tone. "Hi, I'm the doctor in charge of you. You've been involved in a very serious car crash this time, and you've suffered fractures all over the body. You will need to be on bed rest for a month, and you're not allowed to move unnecessarily. Besides, you must adhere strictly to my instructions and come back regularly for check-ups and physiotherapy."

Chapter 57 We Want to Stay

"Doctor, are my injuries that serious?" Vania was a little worried about her condition.

However, the doctor reassured her and said, "Even though your injuries are serious, your life isn't in danger since you didn't sustain any internal injuries. Most of your injuries only penetrated your skin, but you've suffered many fractures in your body, so you need more time to rest."

After listening to him, she breathed a sigh of relief. "Thank you, doctor."

Meanwhile, her three sons also felt assured.

After nodding his head, the doctor reminded the family members in the ward by saying, "The patient needs more care and a lighter diet. If there are any other problems, you can contact me right away."

Linda nodded back before sending the doctor away herself. "I'll keep an eye on her."

Although Vania had just woken up, her body was still weak, so she began to feel dizzy.

As she resisted the urge to sleep, she said, "My darlings, why don't you ask Aunt Linda to take you back home? You've already accompanied me for a whole day. All of you need some rest."

Her three sons shook their heads at the same time. "We don't need to rest. We want to stay with you all the time."

"I know that you are worried about me, but the doctor just said that I'll be resting in the hospital for a long time. I will need all of your company, so I can't exhaust you all on the first day. What will I do afterward?" she urged them to leave. "Since there are so many doctors and nurses here, I'll be fine. Please listen to me and go back home. James, you can come to visit me tonight with Aunt Theresa and leave your brothers at home. Then, it will be Jack's turn to visit me tomorrow. In this case, you all can keep me company without tiring yourselves out. What do you think?"

Her three sons grouped together and thought for a while. A moment of hesitation later, they nodded. "Alright. We'll listen to you, Mommy."

Then, James stood out and said, "They can go back and rest, but I have to stay here so that I can see you all the time. It's the only way we can be assured."

Jack and Jacob also nodded their heads, and it seemed like they wouldn't leave if she didn't comply.

In the end, Vania took a step back and compromised. "Alright, that settles it."

Fortunately, she was staying in a private ward that was equipped with an area for family members to rest. The environment wasn't that noisy either, so it wasn't a big problem for a kid to stay there.

Then, she looked at Linda and said, "You should go back and have some rest too. You can come here tomorrow."

"In that case, I'll send Jack and Jacob back home." Linda nodded.

With that, Jack and Jacob reluctantly said their goodbyes to Vania.

As James lay down on a bed and looked at Vania, she gently murmured, "Go to sleep."

He was still a child after all. After being frightened and staying up all night, he fell asleep the moment he closed his eyes.

With a loving smile, she also fell asleep soundly.

Meanwhile, in the research room on the top floor of the hospital, a slender man in a white coat came out of the laboratory and went straight back to his office.

When he saw the man sitting on his seat, he revealed a wide smile and said, "Oh my, what brings you here today, President Luke?"

The man speaking was Hanson's friend, April Sonnet.

The Sonnet Family had been involved in the medical industry for centuries, and April was their youngest prodigy. A few years ago, he was even named a medical expert on an international level.

However, compared to Hanson's cold attitude, he had an attractive pair of blossom eyes with a charming smile, giving him a ladies' man look.

Ignoring his weird aura, Hanson gave him a cold glare.

However, April didn't feel awkward at all as he chuckled and sat across from Hanson. "How did you find the time to see me today? Is there anything I can help you with?" he said cheerfully.

Chapter 58 I Have a Reaction

After all, Hanson was a busy man. If he didn't have the free time, he wouldn't have come here to have a chat with April.

If he's here, it must be because of something big that he cannot settle himself.

The thought of a champion like Hanson still having to struggle to solve things himself made April feel especially happy.

Looking at the gossiping eyes of his best friend, Hanson coldly uttered, "There's nothing."

"Oh." However, it only made April even more curious as he pretended to be indifferent. "In that case, I'll just continue with my experiments."

When he saw the hesitation in Hanson's eyes, he knew that he must have something to say to him but was too embarrassed to speak about it.

2

As Hanson's brows grew tighter under his friend's gaze, he coldly murmured, "I have a reaction."

"Huh?" April couldn't react in time.

"I said that I have a reaction!" Hanson repeated his words.

Holy shit! April was dumbfounded. With his mouth half-opened and eyes widened, he sat on the chair in a daze while staring at Hanson. At the moment, he was completely caught in a self-imposed death cycle. What did he just say? Did he say that he has a reaction? Is that what I heard?

His mind kept repeating Hanson's words back and forth.

A while later, he recovered from his shock and picked up a cup from the desk before fiercely filling his mouth with water. As he slowed down, he was now certain that the 'thousand-year-old monk' in front of him just said that he had a reaction.

It was such an astonishing discovery that even April was shocked. After all, Hanson only had an erection once five years ago when he'd been set up. Other than that, he was as cold toward women as a monk.

From the moment April started his medical studies, he had been diagnosing Hanson's body. The latter's body was very healthy, but he just wouldn't respond to the sight of any woman. It was something he couldn't solve with his medical expertise.

However, the situation was completely different now. Just as he wanted to continue the gossip, he was immediately startled by Hanson's chilly gaze.

He quickly raised his hands above his head to show that he had given up.

Then, he pretended to pick up a pen and paper, behaving like a professional doctor. "Can you tell me more about it?"

Seeing that he still insisted on gossiping, Hanson rejected him right away. "No," he answered.

April instantly choked as he almost tore apart the paper in his hands. He still wanted to know which woman was charming enough to make a monk like him give up his old ways.

Therefore, he pretended to feel pity and said, "If I don't know about your whole situation, I can't perform my medical skills and diagnose you."

Seeing that his friend was only concerned with gossiping and uninterested in healing him, Hanson let out a cold grunt and sneered. "It looks like you bought your medical certificate with money, didn't you?"

The moment his words came out, April was displeased. Is he actually denying my actual skills? Looks like I have no choice but to show him what I'm really capable of.

Then, he immediately put on a serious face and said as professionally as he could, "I can concur that you've met a girl you like."

A girl I like? Hanson furrowed his brows when he heard the unfamiliar term used. If I remember correctly, Vania said the same thing too, but I'm just a little curious about her.

He immediately denied April's idea.

Seeing how Hanson continued to frown, April couldn't help but feel completely confused.

Could it be that the person he likes isn't a woman?

Chapter 59 Shocking News

Gosh, this is so exciting! However, April didn't dare to utter these words. He was certain that if he told Hanson what he was thinking, he would definitely ship him off to somewhere else immediately.

In order to be a responsible friend, April put aside his curiosity for a moment and said, "Let me do a full body check for you. It'll help me analyze what is going on."

Only then did the frowning Hanson relax his eyes a little and gave a cold heave. "You can begin."

In the end, April was still a professional doctor on an international level, so he efficiently conducted a targeted full body examination on him.

When Hanson was tidying his clothes, April approached him and began to gossip again. "Buddy, can you tell me who did you see that gave you that reaction?"

Seeing how gossipy his friend was, Hanson opened his mouth and threatened him by saying, "I can see that you no longer want to be a doctor."

"Hey, fine. I won't ask you anymore, alright?" April immediately gave up.

Before leaving, Hanson gave him another warning look. "Watch your mouth."

With that, he coldly walked out of the room.

Looking at his back, April pouted his lips and breathed a sigh.

He initially wanted to cause mayhem tonight. After all, he should share such shocking news with his friends since they might come up with a plan for Hanson to pursue that woman.

However, if others knew about this, Hanson would definitely guess that it was his big mouth who leaked the information.

It seems like I can only keep this shocking secret to myself.

Meanwhile, just as Hanson went downstairs, a little boy holding a medical box ran into him.

He instinctively furrowed his brows before looking at the kid that darted into his arms. Then, he could see the kid staring at him in a panic before turning around and running away in a hurry. The only thing he left was a very quiet apology.

Hanson didn't like kids, and he would not pay any attention to children from other families, but the little boy's panicked expression left him a bit surprised.

He was certain that they never met each other before, but for some reason, there was a sense of familiarity.

Although he couldn't see his face clearly, at that moment of panic, he felt that his looks were similar to Morales and Morgan's.

Hanson, who had never been attentive to such things, actually took the little boy to heart.

Therefore, he unconsciously walked in the boy's direction, but he was quick to run away. Before Hanson could see where he went, he was already gone.

Hanson could clearly feel his disappointment, so he immediately called Larry and walked toward the surveillance room.

Just as he turned around, he saw Theresa coming in with a flask.

He had the ability to remember everything he saw, so he remembered that he once saw her in Vania's house. Not only that, he remembered even more clearly that the flask on her hand was the same one Vania had brought along when she visited Morales and Morgan last time.

However, she didn't notice him as she walked toward Vania's ward with the flask in a hurry.

"I want to check if Vania is here. I want to know what happened to her," Hanson quickly ordered Larry.

"Yes." Larry was now sure that his president had other intentions for his goddess.

In the meantime, James was patting his chest after running to the front of the ward door. That was close; that devil almost found me.

Chapter 60 He Can't Know We Exist

After calming himself down, James went into the ward with the medical box.

"Mommy, the doctor said that you need to take some medicine, so I went and fetched some for you." At the same time, he politely greeted Theresa who'd just entered. "Hello, Aunt Theresa."

She had raised these three boys herself, so she became very affectionate when she saw him. "Come and sit here, Little Master. I've made a delicious dinner for you and your mommy, so you must eat a lot today." "Okay. Thank you, Aunt Theresa." When he smelled the food, he suddenly felt a bit hungry.

However, he first walked in front of Vania and tiptoed to touch her forehead. "Mommy, do you feel better now?"

"I feel much better."

After sleeping for a whole day, she was in much better spirits than this afternoon since she was able to feel hungry when looking at her meal, which was a good sign for a sick patient.

However, the anaesthetic was starting to wear off, so the pain from the multiple fractures in her body had turned her face pale.

James picked up the bowl on the table with his tiny hands and sat in front of Vania. "Mommy, let me feed you."

Since her hands were laced with drips, she couldn't eat by herself.

When she read the situation, Theresa quickly went up to him. "Little Master, let me do it. You should go eat your food first."

"No. I want to feed Mommy myself." He shook his head.

After that, he fed Vania one bite at a time.

Seeing how well-behaved her kid was, Vania was moved and heartbroken at the same time.

Just as they were eating, someone knocked on the door abruptly.

James, Vania, and Theresa looked toward the door at the same time.

In the meantime, James paused his tiny hand while holding the spoon. Could it be that Devil?

However, Vania and Theresa didn't care much since it must be someone they knew who'd visit them at this time.

Theresa politely went up to open the door, but as soon as the door was opened, she was stunned by the person standing outside. "President Luke?" After calming herself down, she smiled and reached out a hand. "Please come in."

Hanson? Why is he here? Vania was also stunned by the name she had just heard. Since her son was still there, there was obviously nowhere for them to hide.

Meanwhile, James' hand froze while holding the bowl. He didn't want to let his sc*mbag father know that they existed at all, let alone allow him to pester his mother after abandoning them. We must help Mommy so that she won't be swindled by this sc*mbag again.

The moment Hanson came in, he was startled to see the little boy standing in front of Vania.

Their relationship must be really close for him to personally feed her.

He put aside his suspicions and went up to the woman. "I heard that you got into a car accident, so I came to check on you."

"Thank you." Vania smiled politely.

"This hospital is owned by the Luke Corporation, so I've already arranged the best doctor for you. You can rest at ease." Then, he turned his gaze toward the little boy in front of her and stared at him closely. His gaze was so obvious that it made James feel uncomfortable, for it seemed as though two searchlights were shining on him.

Therefore, Vania instinctively reached out to her child and explained to Hanson with a smile, saying, "This is my son."

Without hesitation, Hanson immediately asked, "You are married?"

His heart began to feel uncomfortable, and his face darkened as well.

However, Vania didn't want to explain the complications of her past to him, so her silence became a confirmation.

When he looked at James in disgust, he suddenly felt that he was completely different from Morales and Morgan. They don't look similar at all.
