

Lycan King Chapter 73

The war has begun

VICTORIA'S POV

"Katie, the alpha of Blue moon pack? But how can this be possible? She has lived with us all her life and had grown with us. If she would've been an alpha, then we would've known about it." Daniel interjected.

"Yeah? Then I think I got some facts wrong." I smiled before clapping my hands twice.

Everyone looked at me quizzically before their gaze shifted to the new members that entered the hall.

"Well, look what we have here," I said as Chris brought a rope tied Angela in.

"Let me introduce you to the real alpha of Blue moon pack, Miss Angela Blue," I smirked, pulling her from Chris's grip and pulling out the gag from her mouth.

"Victoria, you bitch! I won't spare you for this. Robert will surely kill you all today." Angela said before laughing aloud.

"We will see, what Robert will do with us, how about you tell all of us why you did all those things before we deal with you, and that lousy Robert?" I couldn't help but smirk before punching her face as she struggled to free herself from my grip.

"Let's not bother with her. Let me tell you how I came to know that she was behind all those scenes. Since we are short on time, I'll make it short. First, when that weird professor was trying to take control of my mind, everyone was confused as to what was happening. apart from our Angela, who immediately said that someone was trying to control me." I said, making Angela widen her eyes in shock as she wouldn't have realized the slip-up that she had made that day.

“Second, it was Angela who had asked everyone to arrange the party in that club that night. Not only that, it was her only, who had mixed that witch potion in the drinks. Apart from that, I was attacked out of the club when I ventured into the forest, and the man over there had the emblem of a blue moon pack.

I had been reading these books on werewolves in the library and had gained quite an information on the different packs that are ruling this country. And well, I did it when I was on the holidays for a month when I was transforming into my genes.”

“Third, when I came back, the person who was most feisty towards me, Chris, tried to kill me when I entered his car when he gave me the lift from the mansion to my home.

The weird smell which was coming from the incense sticks that were poisoned and would’ve killed anyone who was not a werewolf. Remember those? At that time, I was feeling quite vary of Chris, but while talking to him, I realized he was not himself, he was under the spell of someone.

Oh, did I mention you guys, I was telepathic and could see through someone’s mind?” I asked, making everyone look at me in shock as if I was some alien.

“Everyone I was suspicious about had the same energy around them, and the last person they met was none other than Angela. Seeing how everything lead to Angela, I started investigating her, and guess what I found? She is the daughter of David Blue and Lola Blue. It’s such a pity that the daughter of such pure souls turned such a traitor.”

“I am not a traitor, you bitch! I did all of this to take revenge for my parents. If this Theodore Roosevelt had helped us at that time, then my parents wouldn’t have been murdered in cold blood.” Angela shouted.

“Angela, how can you say that when you didn’t even know all the facts about the situation. Indeed, we were not able to help you immediately, but that was because no one informed us about your situation. The beta of your back who was entrusted by your father to tell us about the attack was a traitor himself. When we came to know about the attacks from a council member, we had immediately deployed our forces there, but it was too late till then. Your parents died saving you. And have you forgotten the fact that it was Daniel’s father who had saved you or you would’ve died too?” Theodore Roosevelt hollered, immediately shutting her trash.

“We don’t have time for all this. Now tell me what else you did to take your revenge apart from telling all the information about the mansion to Robert.” I asked as I looked at the time and noticed how we have wasted almost an hour discussing these matters when we should be focussing on saving Alexander.

“I have been mixing that liquid that renders a werewolf unable to heal for quite some time in everyone’s food.” Angela said monotonously, still shocked after knowing the truth may be.

“Father, call a guard. We need to check the damage.” I asked, however, before Theodore could call anyone, a guard rushed inside the mansion and said something that immediately turned all of us speechless.

“Sir, we are under attack. It looks like an army of rogues. They are too much in number. We are not able to fight them off. Our guards are immediately dying even after a small slash. We don’t know what’s going. We need you.” The guard said, making Theodore look at us in anxiousness.

They are dying because they have lost their capability to heal, and a single slice will make them lose more blood than normal because of the continuous dose that has weakened them from inside.

“We don’t have time to sit here and discuss. We need to fight them off. Daniel, you go and take a small crew with you to search for Alexander. Chris, you start leading the fight. Victoria, you stay in the mansion with Rosaline. We don’t want you getting hurt too.” Theodore said before he shifted in his wolf form, scaring me for a second as I was still not used to people immediately changing into animals.

“You’ve got to be kidding me. I am not going to stay here and wait while my mate is out there fighting for life.” I said, rushing out of the mansion before anyone could oppose my decision.