

MADAM'S IDENTITIES SHOCKS THE ENTIRE CITY AGAIN Chapter 1044

“Principal Liang, I think I should call Jiang Xianrou and ask her for help. She’s an outstanding alumna of Qing University. She won’t refuse to help.” Tian Jing couldn’t be bothered to speak to the two of them. She didn’t even have the desire to be rude to them. She picked up the cell phone on the table and spoke to Liang Conglin.

The way she got past them without addressing them was akin to pretending they weren’t there.

It was not respectful at all.

Liang Conglin also had a headache. He didn’t answer her immediately but looked at Qiao Nian seriously. “Qiao Nian, the information we want to send is very important. It needs to be handed over to the Council. If we lose it, it will be very disadvantageous for Professor Jiang and the others. Do you understand what I mean?”

It meant that this information had to be sent by a reliable person.

Qiao Nian’s eyes were cold. She didn’t plan on staying long this time, so she didn’t plan on causing too much unnecessary trouble. Otherwise, she would have sent the information personally.

Slim Waist Control...

She raised the brim of her cap and pondered. She was wondering if this fellow was reliable.

The young man who had been listening for a long time caught the main point of their words and interrupted, “The Council? What Council? Are you talking about those lads from the IT Association?”

His tone was quite casual.

At the mention of the IT Association, he directly described them as ‘those lads’. It was obvious that he didn’t take them seriously.

Tian Jing sneered. She was about to say that the ignorant were truly fearless.

The IT Association had a certain status internationally, similar to a medical organization. Who did he think he was by casually calling them ‘those lads’?

.....

Only the Red Alliance had such a tone here.

Liang Conglin took another look at him. Mainly because he trusted Qiao Nian, he couldn’t help but ask him solemnly, “Do you know someone from the IT Association?”

“I wouldn’t say I really know them. It’s just like that.” Although Slim Waist Control didn’t understand what they wanted to do, he still took out his cell phone and said casually, “Wait for me. I’ll get someone to come down for you. Just give him whatever you want to give the Council.”

...

Upstairs.

In the conference room.

Qi Rongguang pressed forward step by step, arrogant and despotic, as if he wanted them to make a decision today.

The people from the Council were furious, but they couldn’t do anything to him.

Just as the two sides were in a deadlock...

The vice president of the IT Association’s cell phone rang. Looking at the caller ID, his already flushed face changed, becoming even more embarrassed.

However, he still picked up the phone and spoke to the other end in a low voice.

With that, he put down his phone and looked in Qi Rongguang’s direction with a complicated expression. He pushed the stool away and said, “Wait a moment. I’ll go down and get something.”

“Mr. John, I’ll be waiting for you to come back. I hope you can make the right decision as soon as possible after you come back!” The middle-aged man tidied the buttons on his suit. The black buttons were of high quality. He had a domineering expression on his face as if he was sure that the Council would bow down to him this time!

The foreign man he called Mr. John ignored his provocation and looked at him again. His expression was meaningful.

However, he didn’t say anything else. He quickly pulled out a chair, spoke a few words to his assistant, and left in big strides.

The Red Alliance had always been on Hengfeng Corporation’s side. Even if Hengfeng Corporation could not produce concrete evidence to prove that the chip developed by the research institute at the university had copied their results, they still forced the association to ban the other party on the grounds of academic theft.
