

MADAM'S IDENTITIES SHOCKS THE ENTIRE CITY AGAIN Chapter 1304

The girl's fingertips were white as she typed on the keyboard. Her finger movements seemed to be very fast, but Luo Ming could see a hint of casual satisfaction on her face. She did not seem to be in a hurry.

He focused again and looked at the shrinking GPS range on the screen. The corners of his mouth finally couldn't help but twitch.

Damn, where did Captain Bo find someone who was even more impressive than the technicians in their team?

Deputy Captain Luo did not quite understand this move, but he could tell that Qiao Nian was a professional. She was awesome!

Bo Zheng was equally shocked. His mature and handsome face was slightly serious. He suppressed the excitement in his heart and asked the girl who was still operating the laptop in a low voice, "Nian Nian, how long do you need to find Eagle Eye's exact location?"

Qiao Nian's pale hand hit the Enter key, and the green code on the computer began to refresh.

She leaned back, resting her shoulders on the chair. Her delicate face under the baseball cap was quite attractive. Her red lips touched and her tone was wild. "10 minutes?"

"10 minutes?" Bo Zheng had guessed that it would take half an hour. He didn't expect Qiao Nian to give him such a concise reply.

10 minutes was too fast.

He had looked for many people before he looked for Bo Jingxing. Those people couldn't even decipher the hidden system in Eagle Eye's phone number, let alone find his location.

Ye Wangchuan's little girlfriend only needed 10 minutes to decode the positioning hidden program set up by the hacker expert in the illegal district. She could also find Eagle Eye's exact location...

Bo Zheng took a deep breath and composed himself before saying, "...You don't have to be anxious. It's fine if you take your time. As long as you can find Eagle Eye's exact location."

Qiao Nian's eyes darkened. She raised her hand and turned the baseball cap around again. Lowering the brim, she looked very cool. "Don't worry, I won't let him escape."

Before Bo Zheng could speak, he heard her faint voice again. "No one has managed to escape under my watch yet. He? He's not worthy."

In a wealthy district in Beijing.

The scenery was beautiful. The trees were lush. It was adjacent to the sanatorium where Old Master Jiang lived. Many white villas were scattered around.

In one of the three-story villas.

The technician kept wiping the cold sweat off his forehead with his hand. The expression on his square face was getting more and more flustered. He had long lost his usual arrogance. His clothes were almost drenched by the cold sweat on his back.

“How could this be?”

He stared at the computer screen. The program he was so proud of was being attacked, but he threw up his hands, helpless.

“How... how is this possible...”

The technician’s face was as pale as a steamed bun and he was sweating profusely. He kept muttering.

Not far from him, a young man slowly placed something that looked like a glass bead or a diamond into a gift box with a bow. A pair of seductive, slender peach blossom eyes raised as if they were impatient with him disturbing them. His deep voice contained coldness as he asked, “What’s wrong?”

Cold sweat trickled down his forehead as soon as the technician heard his voice. “Mr. Lu.”

Lu Zhi was rarely dressed in light-colored home clothes. The light gray cotton pajamas on him had a soul-stirring charm.

It was a pity that such a perfect man was a cripple who could only move in a wheelchair forever.
