

MADAM'S IDENTITIES SHOCKS THE ENTIRE CITY AGAIN Chapter 1468

She flipped from first to 20th place. The topics on the trending searches were no different from what she had seen previously. The only difference was that the topic that was originally at the top of the search rankings had disappeared for no reason!

“What’s going on?!”

Zhao Xin had been in the circle for a long time, but this was the first time she had seen such a thing.

The top trending search had disappeared for no reason!

What was the difference between that and seeing a ghost in broad daylight?

Bai Lin threw the powder compact on the dressing table in frustration. It made a noise, and she complained, “How would I know? You’re my manager. You don’t even know, so how should I know?”

“No one contacted you on Weibo?” she asked her manager, forcing down her anger.

Zhao Xin had always been one of the most capable managers in the industry. Otherwise, she wouldn’t have been hired by the person behind Bai Lin.

At this moment, she shook her head with a rare look of confusion and her face darkened. “No.”

There were usually only two situations when a trending topic on Weibo suddenly disappeared.

Either the artist removed the trending topic themselves... or the officials removed it.

However, before that could happen, according to the rules, the staff would contact the artistes.

To put it bluntly, the staff would tell the artiste in advance that they wanted to remove the trending topic for some reason.

This was the first time her manager had encountered such a situation where an A-list celebrity was removed from the trending searches without any notice.

“Are we in some kind of trouble?” She was one of the recognized managers in the industry, so she reacted quickly. She instinctively sensed that something was wrong and asked Bai Lin worriedly.

“What can happen to us?” Bai Lin felt that she was a little too nervous. She sneered and looked at herself in the mirror, then said confidently, “Sister Xin, you’re thinking too much. I reckon this is an accident. Hurry up and contact the Weibo staff and ask them what’s going on.

“The trending topic is gone. Tell them to put it up again.

“I’ve got a commercial to shoot later. I’m going to draw my eyebrows now. I can’t talk to you anymore.”

The manager saw that she was resting with her eyes closed and leaning back. The makeup artist started to draw her eyebrows. She immediately frowned and couldn’t find the right words to say.

Just then, her phone lit up.

Seeing who was calling, she took a deep breath, composed herself, and answered. "Hello, President Qin."

She paused for a moment as the other party spoke.

Her expression changed and she subconsciously turned to look at the young woman still putting on makeup. Her eyelids kept twitching. "... President Qin, we've already signed the contract. I'm afraid it's not appropriate for you to cancel it now. Our Bai Lin has already reserved the schedule for you."

The person on the other end of the line seemed to give her face.

The manager looked even more embarrassed. "I know. It's not about the breach of contract. I... Okay, I understand."

She hung up and walked over to the young woman. She said hesitantly, "Bai Lin, the commercial shoot for this morning was canceled."

Bai Lin's eyes flew open and she stared at her in shock. "What?"

Her manager rubbed her forehead and looked like she had an even bigger headache than she did. "The advertisers just got in touch with me to say they're replacing you. They're not shooting the commercial."

"They want to replace me?!" Bai Lin was not only shocked but also seemed to have suffered great humiliation. Her fair face turned red for a moment.

"They're crazy, aren't they?! I've been putting on makeup, and they're talking about replacing me now. Do they know that they were the ones who asked for me before, I'm not the one who begged them!"