

MADAM'S IDENTITIES SHOCKS THE ENTIRE CITY AGAIN Chapter 49

Ye Wangchuan fiddled with the beads on his bracelet, apparently in good spirits. He walked towards the house and said, "I got it."

"Have you checked on the Miracle Doctor yet?"

Following behind him, Gu San replied cautiously, "I found out a little bit about him. But when I looked him up again, his information all over the Internet got blocked."

There was a greater power behind that doctor? Ye Wangchuan didn't expect a doctor to have such strong backing, to the point that even he couldn't find out about him.

"Do you know who did it?"

Gu San was a computer expert himself. He was already full of embarrassment that his information had been stolen and blocked and hung his head low with guilt. "I haven't found out at the moment. I'm sorry, Master Wang. It's all my fault. I'm not good enough."

Ye Wangchuan narrowed his eyes and pressed his lips together. He rubbed his temple and appeared a little troubled. "He's just a doctor, continue checking on him. At the same time, keep a lookout for other famous doctors in Rao City. Anyone who might be able to help Chen Chen, just get them here."

"Mm." Gu San nodded and asked, "Master Wang, Little Young Master has awoken, do you want to go and see him? He insists on getting discharged."

He was a little devil, that precious child of the entire Ye family. He was the sort of person that no one could afford to offend or provoke, even in Beijing.

Now that he was insisting on leaving the hospital, Master Wang had to be there in order to control the situation!

Ye Wangchuan glanced at his watch. It was already dark outside, and Jiang Li wasn't around. He couldn't possibly leave Qiao Nian alone at home.

He continued into the house and said to Gu San, "It's too late now. We'll see how it goes tomorrow."

...

Upstairs.

Qiao Nian changed into a loose-fitting top, took a shower, and bunned her hair up. She sat at her desk but didn't turn on her laptop.

She saw a few missed calls and messages on her cell phone.

She looked through them.

There was one from Wei Lou.

[How are you, are you out yet?]

And another from Yuan Yongqin.

[I gave the officer a call. How was it, has the police let you out of the station?]

Qiao Nian rested her legs on the desk and replied to Wei Lou and Yuan Yongqin briefly to let them know she was fine.

She then returned Aunt Chen's call.

Aunt Chen picked up on the first ring.

"Nian Nian! This is great, you're finally returning my call! Are you alright?"

Her end sounded a little noisy. It was evident that she was still at the hospital.

Qiao Nian put her legs down and opened her laptop as she responded, "I'm alright. I just got home. How is Chen Yuan's injury? Is it serious? If it is, I know a doctor in the hospital. I'll get him to take a look."

"He just has a dislocated elbow. Besides that, his injuries are all superficial. It's alright. Don't bother about him, he needs to feel some pain to know what not to do in the future. He has to stop mixing with those people!"

Qiao Nian didn't insist, since she heard that Chen Yuan just had a dislocated elbow. She then said, "I'll talk to him when I get back. Aunt Chen, you still have Uncle Chen to look after. You have to rest so you won't burn out. If you overwork yourself, what's Uncle Chen going to do?"

"Remember the thing I mentioned to you before? I'll bring you some when I go over to visit Uncle Chen."

Meat Ganoderma was a rare and precious Chinese medicine. Besides being able to control the spread of cancer cells, it could also strengthen the body's immunity.

A lot of illnesses nowadays, especially serious ones, were a result of weak immunity.

Qiao Nian didn't find it a waste to give away the meat Ganoderma that she had spent 10 million yuan on. She was so easy going about it, it was as if the 10-million-yuan precious medicine was nothing more than the ordinary health supplement.