

Chapter 224

George stared at the Barbie doll in his hand and stoically replied, "What do you mean by 'what should I do?'"

"Your dad vented his anger on me for the sake of a little b*stard. He even banned me from going to the Winters family villa again. George, your dad also threw out the piano that you bought for me. That was your gift to me. How could your dad be so cruel? George, I'm so sad and frustrated. I don't know what to do. I feel helpless..."

George frowned.

For some reason, when Dew called Melody a "little b*stard," he felt angry.

He pursed his lips and coldly said, "If you hadn't hurt Mel, Dad wouldn't have gotten angry at you. There has to be a reason for everything. Mom, you better reflect on your actions a little more."

11

"But I didn't slap that little b*stard. I didn't even touch her finger." "Mom, you're a lady, but you keep saying 'little b*stard.' Where's your elegance? Where's your temperament?" George's voice was filled with mockery. "Mom, you better spend more time practicing your piano skills. It can nurture your emotions and improve your perspective."

Dew was so angry that she almost had a heart attack.

AT

O

P

She was this little b*stard's mother, but he dared to speak to her as if he was teaching her a lesson!

"Mom, if you dare to hurt Mel again, don't blame me for blocking your number."

UO

After George said that, he instantly hung up. "Excuse me, George?! I gave birth to you after a ten-month pregnancy. How could you think about blocking my number? How could you...Hey! Hey!" Dew held her phone as the line went dead, and she stomped her foot in fury on the street. Duke defended that little b*stard!

Harold treated that little b*stard like a treasure!

Even George cared about that little b*stard now?

She was furious to the point that she wanted to smash her phone.

“Dew?”

A man’s voice suddenly rang out behind her.

Dew hid her angry, twisted expression before she slowly turned around and saw a familiar face. “Hey?”

She opened her eyes wide in shock. “Hello.” The man flashed her a smile. “I didn’t expect to meet you on the street. This means we’re not done with each other yet.”

Dew quickly schooled her expression and indifferently said, “We already broke up. Stop pestering me.”

“I’m not pestering you. I was just walking on the street when I coincidentally bumped into you.” The man’s eyes were filled with affection, “Dew, it’s been four years. We haven’t seen each other for four years. I miss you every day and night. Have you really tossed our love aside? You suddenly asked to break up with me, and I still don’t understand what I did wrong. I can’t figure out why you were so resolute...”

Dew took a step back.

Four years ago, after she discovered that Adina had given birth to the young masters of the Winters family, she came up with a perfect plan. She immediately broke up with her boyfriend before she went to the Winters family with the two children and looked for Duke.

She made it a clean cut, and the man disappeared from her life for four years. Unexpectedly, they would meet again. He had been her boyfriend back in high school. They had been in a relationship for a few years, and they had been close. If it were not for that incident, perhaps she would have gotten married to her first love.

She had always kept her first love to herself, believing that she did not care about this man.

However, her heart was broken at the moment. When she saw the affection in this man’s eyes, she was suddenly filled with grief.

“Dew, why are your eyes red?” The man took a step forward and held her shoulders.

Dew’s eyes turned redder. In the last four years, she had been going after Duke. She had been by Duke’s side every day and paying attention to his emotions.

However, everyone had ignored her emotions. Right then, she finally realized that she deserved to be cherished too. She raised her head and asked the man in front of her, “Don’t you mind that I broke up with you four years ago?”