

Madness 418

Son In Law Madness Chapter 418

Arnaldo Wilson The moment Reina heard that voice, she stiffened.

When she turned her head to the side, she saw a plump middle-aged man in his fifties with a homicidal look on his face. "Mr.

Arnaldo, what brings you here?" Silas asked, straightening up. The man was none other than Arnaldo Wilson of Terrandy. There were three powerhouses in Terrandy—Silas Doyle, Arnaldo Wilson, and Holton Danvers. Reina looked at Arnaldo in disbelief, for that man was her biological father. Her mother had passed away early on, and as far as Reina remembered, Arnaldo was a douchebag who always stayed away from home.

He had never once bothered caring for his wife and daughter.

The worst impression she had of him was formed when Reina had just started her business.

Arnaldo had come to her office and transferred a million away from her bank account.

Reina had been devastated. However, she never thought that Arnaldo was powerful enough to speak directly to Silas.

Why would someone powerful like him stab me in the back and take a million away from me? "What's the matter? Are you in charge now that your father-in-law is dead?" Silas mocked. He looked down on Arnaldo as the latter had not risen up the social ranks with his own hard work—he had relied on his wife and father-in-law.

Once his father-in-law retired, he had relinquished his position to Arnaldo. "Do you know who she is?" Arnaldo pointed at Reina. Silas froze.

and

interested in her as well?" "She's my daughter," Arnaldo

froze again before he is hilarious! I never thought that the rumors were your wife and child and married into the Zastrow

your fierce wife know about this? Does your son, get the hell out of here now." Silas

"Very well.

wish you the

this information to the Zastrow family." With that said, cold look. Arnaldo waved

of them were the only ones

“Where’s Donald?” Arnaldo frowned.

come here today.” “It’s better than you you abandoning me and my mother!” Arnaldo replied, “I had no

a million from you because I encountered