Chapter 531 Braxton Suspects Donald

Catching sight of Jennifer and Donald talking to each other in their own world, Linda almost blew a blood vessel. Meanwhile, Leonard could not help mocking Donald inwardly.

Hmph! Donald Campbell, do you know that Mr. Irving came in his Porsche? I can't believe you took a bus here and even had to endure the traffic jam. How ridiculous! There's no way I'll accept you as my son-in-law!

"Jennifer, what's wrong with you? Have you forgotten what you promised me?"

"Of course not." Staring at Linda, Jennifer refuted, "You set a second term that I'm only allowed to remarry Donald after attending Supreme Gala. However, you didn't specify who I must attend it with. Hence, I plan to attend this eye-opening occasion with Donald before getting our marriage certificate tomorrow."

"Remarry?" Braxton threw a glance at Linda and questioned, "Mrs. Wilson, what on earth is going on?" Linda's heart skipped a beat. She assumed Braxton was irked by the word "remarry" and explained hastily, "Mr. Irving, don't take Jenny's words to heart. What remarry? She's still an innocent young lady. That was why she was deceived by Donald previously. Now that the scoundrel intends to deceive her for the second time, we won't let her fall victim to his despicability without batting an eyelid!"

With that, Braxton walked ahead of them. After all, he knew that Jennifer would only walk abreast with Donald, so he wanted to spare himself the embarrassment.

Exiting the residential area, Braxton unlocked his Porsche, opened the car door, and looked at Jennifer. Linda and the others hopped into it right away, beckoning Jennifer to do so as well. However, Jennifer paid no heed to it. Holding onto Donald's arm, she told Linda and the others, "Just go ahead. I'll go there with Donald by bus."

Smiling disdainfully, Braxton scoffed, "Jenny, Supreme Gala will be held in the suburb, and there isn't any bus that heads there straight away. Come on. Get into my car now. There's still space for one more person."

Evidently, he was reluctant to give Donald a lift by emphasizing that there was only space for one more person. Jennifer did not utter any words as she held onto Donald's arm.

In the meantime, Donald looked at Braxton and responded placidly, "It's all right, Mr. Irving. I sent my car for servicing a few days ago. Someone should be on the way to send it back to me now."

Donald remained silent and looked around.

Many people were strolling about Pollerton University during the lunch hour.

There were couples holding hands while conversing happily.

A couple of youngsters were playing with basketballs and giggling as they walked past.

There were also pupils who wore glasses and walked while reading.

Then, Donald sighed. "Being young is a blessing. University life is so good."

He left after his freshman year without attending an entire university course.

Tyrone slapped Raymond and utilized the Campbell clan's power to knock the latter down.

That night, Raymond sent Donald to Quadfield.

"You s!t, Ysabel!" Mason swore while pointing to Ysabel's nose. He bellowed and was tremendously enraged.

"I like him, can't I?" Ysabel replied coldly.

"I'm going to your mother and grandfather!" Mason said, enraged. Then, he gave Donald an icy stare.

"I'm warning you. Stay away from Ysabel! She is my fiancée! My father is her distant relative, and everyone in the Stern family supports our relationship! For your information, my father is Adrian, and my uncle is Jeremiah!”

When he said that, many people regarded Mason with envious and perplexed expressions.

Clearly, they were well aware of Adrian and Jeremiah, as many were afraid of them.

Donald, however, was stunned for a second. “Jeremiah and Adrian? Who are they?”

He really did not know them, but their names sounded familiar to him. However, he was unable to recall where he had heard their names.

Ysabel’s lips pouted as she talked.

“How old is your mom?” Donald asked.

Ysabel answered, “She just turned forty.”

“Which means she was pregnant with you at nineteen?” Donald was slightly speechless.

Ysabel replied, "My dad was very handsome when he was young, and his family background was good. However, he died at a young age."

"Then why didn't your mom look for another husband?" Donald asked again.

"It was because of me. When my father died, she focused all her attention on nurturing me in the hope that I would become successful, which was also why she was so strict with me. Besides, she's a very stubborn woman. All these years, she had many admirers, but she refused all of them." Ysabel was somewhat downcast.

Donald did not utter a word as well.

Ysabel was a pure and innocent girl with a tall and slender figure. Wearing a ponytail on her head, she had smooth and white skin. On the other hand, Donald was barely out of shape, albeit losing a bit of weight recently. Wearing a suit, he looked handsome, and his eyes were his weapon of charm.

Adam shrugged nonchalantly and taunted, "I don't care. Let's see if the chief dean will entertain you."

On the other hand, Julian let out a cough and said, "Ysabel, why don't we let the elders take care of their matters? Let's go. I'll treat you to a meal."

Upon hearing that, Ysabel frowned and replied, "How shameless! Who on earth wants to eat with you?"

Julian's eyes widened immediately, and he looked at Ysabel in disbelief. "What? I'm both an A-list celebrity and a legendary idol. There are nine hundred million girls in the country who are proud to be able to talk to me. Me treating you to a meal is considered an honor to you. How dare you refuse?"

He believed Ysabel would not refuse him.

A majority of his fans were female students like Ysabel.

Donald was somewhat speechless at Julian's shameless attitude. "Enough of this. Stop being a narcissist. Ysabel isn't one of your brainless fans."

The content was about how Beatrice and Ysabel had seduced their uncle and cheated him of his money before leaving him for good. The story was completely fictitious and full of exaggeration. They even attached a photo of Ysabel and Beatrice glaring at each other on the post.

“Your dad passed out from anger just now.” A voice came from Beatrice’s phone.

Beatrice said, “Please listen to me. It’s not what the news says it is!”

“What’s the point of explaining yourself to me? Leave it for your parents tonight.” With that, the call was disconnected.

Beatrice’s face turned ashen. She then pointed at Julian. “Julian, I will sue you for slander!”

Julian laughed. “I don’t mind. Just go ahead. We’ll see who the winner in the end will be.”

Ysabel could no longer contain her anger and wanted to slap Julian, but she was stopped by Donald.

The latter shook his head. “Calm down. I will handle this.”

Ysabel quieted down upon hearing him.

“I will get the principal!” Beatrice said, “You should leave now before Crow comes, understand?”

Then she turned around and instructed Ysabel, “Ysabel, hurry up and call a cab now! You should leave with Donald. I will go to the principal to mediate!”

“It’s no use for you to look for anyone!” Seeing that Beatrice was about to leave, Adam scrambled up and lunged toward the woman.

Before he could get near, he was kicked to the ground again by Bradley.

Beatrice stomped her feet hastily. “What are you guys waiting for?”

With that, she scurried off the scene.

She knew that as long as Bradley was there, she would not need to worry about the trio’s safety.

She knew how powerful the principal of Pollerton University was. He was a member of the Yund family and was supported by Neil. However, he was an aloof guy, and Beatrice did not get many chances to talk to him throughout the year.

She dreaded facing the principal by herself, but she knew she had to forgo her emotion in this case.

Only the principal could save Donald now.

Ysabel quickly hugged Donald's arm and felt a sense of security.

Not long after that, more than ten cars drove into Pollerton University. All the vehicles were BMW 7 Series, and more than thirty men dressed in suits got out of the cars.

The pack's leader was none other than Ethan, who looked like a dangerous landmine that would explode instantly.

"Oh my goodness! Isn't that Mr. Lynch? Why did he come to Pollerton University?"

"I know why. He must have come because of the incident with Adam and Julian."

"You saw the news announcement, didn't you? I'm sure something had happened."

The security guard did not dare to stop Ethan and let the latter enter Pollerton University.

On the other hand, Beatrice stood outside the principal's office and knocked on the door.

"Come in." A cold voice rang out from the office.

Beatrice opened the door and walked in.

"Why?" Beatrice was anxious when Klay did not want to help Donald. He had gotten into trouble because he was trying to rescue Ysabel.

Beatrice would never feel at ease for the rest of her life if Donald fell into Ethan's hands.

"Mr. Lynch is the Freedman clan's lackey. Even though their mausoleum had fallen, the Freedman clan is still who they are. Mr. Lynch is their chess piece in Pollerton. They're using him as part of their plan. I don't want to offend them," Klay answered.

In an instant, Beatrice fell to her knees. "Mr. Yund, I'm begging you..."

Before Beatrice could finish speaking, Klay continued saying, "That's enough. You can go now."

She looked up and saw that his face was still devoid of emotions. However, there was a hint of annoyance in his eyes.

Beatrice rose to her feet in a daze, turned around, and left. She then ran toward her office.

On the other hand, Donald took out his phone and gave Neil a phone call. "Mr. Lynch made a scene where hundreds of his luxurious vehicles entered Pollerton University. However, the principal did nothing at all. Is his status really more important than the students' lives? Mr. Yund, I admire you for being a responsible and capable man. If you don't teach the principal of Pollerton University a lesson, then I'll do it myself."

With that, Donald ended the call.
