

The Man's Decree Chapter 359 (The Man like none Other chapter 359)

Immediately, all the blood drained from Thomas' face. Even his subordinates were so scared that they had retreated. On the other hand, Lily had already fled the scene with her tail tucked between her legs.

"Oh no, we're doomed!" Oliver's cheeks turned deathly pale as all color drained from his face. With a trembling voice, he said, "Kai, this bar falls under Phoenix Regiment's territory. They won't be merciful if they find out that you've stirred such a ruckus here."

Shortly after, a middle-aged man wearing an eyepatch emerged with a group of guards following at his heels.

The sight of this man scared Oliver so much that his legs gave away, and he collapsed into a nearby chair. Promptly, a gush of yellow liquid stained his pants. Oliver's terrified state left Kai utterly speechless. Is he really Walter's grandson?

"O-Orb, he was the one who hit me first!" Thomas stammered as he made his way toward the newcomer. In an attempt to butter him up, Thomas offered him a cigarette.

"Slap him!" Despite that, Orb didn't even spare Thomas a single glance.

Upon his command, one of the guards grabbed Thomas by the collar and backhanded him across the face. Repeatedly, the guard slapped Thomas until his face swelled to twice its size.

"Were you the one who hit him?" the middle-aged man asked Kai.

"Yes." Kai nodded in affirmation.

"Slap him too," Orb ordered. Immediately, one of his men approached Kai with his arm raised and ready to strike.

Before he could hit Kai, however, Kai caught the guard's wrist. "Aren't you going to clarify the situation first before hitting me?"

A deep scowl graced Orb's forehead when he heard Kai's refute. "In my territory, I will deliver fifty slaps as punishment before asking for the details. Are you trying to go against my rules?"

"I heard that Phoenix Regiment is supposed to be chivalrous and kind. After all, Phoenix herself was dubbed a living saint.

Is this really how you, as her subordinate, handle things?" Kai was starting to dislike the Phoenix Regiment.

Initially, Lizbeth's constant praise had left Kai with a good impression of the Phoenix Regiment. He was also particularly impressed by Phoenix, the leader of the said regiment. Yet, Orb's haughty arrogance left Kai with a bitter taste in his mouth. It seems like the tales of their kindness are nothing but empty rumors. Orb snorted incredulously. "What makes you think that a nobody like you is in a position to criticize the Phoenix Regiment? As punishment, I'm ordering you to slap yourself ten times!"

"What if I refuse?" Kai replied with a smirk.

"If you aren't going to take action, I will!" With that, Orb sent his palm across Kai's cheek.

Orb's astonishing speed caused the onlookers to break out in cold sweat. If Orb managed to land a hit on Kai, the monumental impact would probably cause the latter to lose all of his teeth.

Despite the gravity of the situation, the corners of Kai's lips upturned into an airy smile. Casually, he reached out and grabbed Orb's wrist in mid-air.

"I was in the middle of my speech. Is violence really your only answer to everything?"

Immediately, Orb's eyes grew twice as large. In a fit of panic, he tried to break free of Kai's vice-like grip. But no matter how hard he tried, he could not escape. "You brat, are you aware of the consequences of your actions?" Orb thundered.

After so many onlookers witnessed Orb's humiliation in the hands of a young man, he couldn't help but blow his top.

"Clearly, you were the one who started the fight. Are all members of the Phoenix Regiment as unreasonable as you are?" Kai asked with a look of exasperation. "F*ck you!" Enraged, Orb swung his other hand at Kai.

Furrowing his brows, an aura of bloodlust radiated from Kai's figure when he sensed Orb's second attack. Although I've tried to go easy on him, he still insists on doing things the hard way.

Before Orb's fist could connect, Kai launched a kick at him.

Bam!

A single kick from Kai sent Orb hurtling several meters into the air. Moments later, Orb finally crashed to the ground with a deafening thud. Upon seeing Kai attack Orb, Oliver almost passed out from fear. He was so scared that his eyes rolled to the back of his head.

"You brat, I can't believe you had the nerve to hit Orb. You're done for now!" Thomas exclaimed gleefully.
Immediately, Kai's sharp glare slid toward Thomas, prompting the latter to fall silent.

At the same time, one of Orb's men quickly helped him up. When Orb pushed himself upright, rivulets of blood trickled down the side of his mouth.
"Clear out this place and lock the doors," Orb ordered as he glared at Kai with a murderous glint in his eyes.
Quickly, the guards ushered everyone out of the bar, including Oliver, who was grabbed by the collar and hauled out.
Before long, the only people remaining were Kai and a few of the bar's security guards.

Once Oliver was outside, he spun on his heel and took off in the opposite direction. Although Kai's my brother-in-law, I don't want to be dragged into such a mess involving the Phoenix Regiment!
Orb wiped away his blood as he advanced toward Kai. "You're the first person who dared to lift a finger against me. How am I going to salvage the Phoenix Regiment's reputation if I don't end your life?" he said sinisterly.
Giving off an air of indifference, Kai simply took a seat and sipped his wine. He didn't appear the slightest bit fazed by Orb's threat.
"If it weren't for the Phoenix Regiment's renowned reputation and the fact that your Madam is a hero, do you really think that you'd have the chance to talk to me?" Kai remarked disdainfully.
"Even on death's door, you're as arrogant as ever!" An expression of fury flitted across Orb's gaze. "Kill him!"
At his command, dozens of guards lunged at Kai with sticks brandished in their hands.
Kai merely snorted. In the blink of an eye, he vanished from his seat.

Promptly, Orb caught sight of a blurry shadow darting amongst his men as anguished screams echoed in the air.
Within minutes, not a single guard remained standing. They had all crumpled to the floor, howling in pain.
Nevertheless, Kai had been merciful and spared them from any grave injuries.

"What the f*ck?" Orb's jaw fell open when he witnessed his guards' defeat. The look of anger in his eye was quickly replaced with one of unadulterated fear instead.
As Kai strode toward Orb, the latter began to stumble backward.

Soon, Orb's back ended up hitting a wall, leaving him trapped. "W-What do you think you're doing? I'm a member of the Phoenix Regiment! Madam will not forgive you if you kill me!" Orb blustered aggressively.
"There's no need to be so frightened." Kai grinned when he witnessed Orb's fear.
"It was never my intention to kill you. I just need you to call your Madam here."
Hearing this, Orb jolted in shock. "What business do you have with our Madam? Although she's a living saint, she'll be enraged once she sees the havoc you've wrecked in her shop! She might even end your life!"

"I thought you wanted me dead? Wouldn't the arrival of your Madam fulfill your wish?" Kai replied in confusion. Why is he trying to defend me? Flustered, Orb averted his gaze. "If Madam comes, she might not spare me," he admitted in a hushed whisper.

Immediately, realization dawned upon Kai. He must be afraid of his Madam's punishment. After all, his reckless and arrogant demeanor was unlike that of the Phoenix Regiment.

"I'm going to give you two choices. Either you call her, or you can die right now," Kai thundered. He couldn't be bothered to waste his breath talking to Orb any longer.

"Okay, okay! I'll call her right now!" Since Kai's threat put his life on the line, Orb opted to go with the choice that would save his own skin.

Hastily, Orb fished his phone out and called Phoenix.
