Chapter 1421

After a moment of silence, Camryn said, "It'll trouble Mr. Callum."

"You don't have to call him Mr. Callum. That sounds so distant. Just call him Callum. We're friends, and he's my brother-in-law. You two have known each other for a while now, so you're considered friends too."

Callum cast a grateful look at his sister-in-law.

Camryn just smiled and did not answer..

Liberty still needed to rest, so Camryn could not stay too long.

After Audrey and Elisa arrived, Camryn and Callum left together.

"Seren, you take Sonny and Zachary back for lunch and rest at home in the afternoon. Elisa and I will stay here to watch over your sister, then you two can come back at night to take over."

Audrey wanted to watch over Liberty at night too, but she could not win against Serenity.

She understood where Serenity was coming from.

Her children were also worried that she could not hold on in her old age.

Serenity looked at her sister.

"Listen to Aunt Audrey, Seren."

Liberty said gently, "My heart breaks when I see how haggard you look now. I'm fine. I won't die. I promised Mom and Dad that I'll take care of you and Sonny, so I won't go back on my word. Go back with Sonny and have a rest."

Zachary entered the room. He had just gone out to ask Liberty's attending doctor about her injuries as well as the after-effects.

"Aunt Audrey." He still held great respect for Audrey and greeted her politely every time they met.

When facing Elisa, he always had to purse his lips before grudgingly greeting her.

Elisa knew that this was not the time for her to laugh, but she could not help it.

Zachary was so arrogant that he did not even want to look at her in the past, but now, he had to lower his head and put down his ego to call her name in a pleasing tone.

He did not dare look down on her like before.

Elisa felt like she could burst into a song and dance.

Zachary turned to his wife after greeting Elisa. He did not want to see Elisa's smug face.

"Listen to your sister, Seren. Let's go back and rest first. We'll only be able to watch over Liberty at night after a good rest."

Serenity was worried about her sister, but he was worried about Serenity.

Under the persuasion of her sister and aunt, Serenity took Sonny and left the hospital with her husband.

After leaving the ward, Zachary carried Sonny and said to Serenity, "Let's go back to the manor. Nana invited a psychic to take a look at Sonny since he was frightened badly."

Zachary did not believe in such things.

However, his nana insisted on it. There would be no harm done to Sonny anyway, so he let his nana do as she pleased.

Serenity had no objection either.

At most, news about it would circulate and go viral on the internet again.

The trending search about him and Serenity's inability to conceive was taken down, but his clarification statement stayed on top of the topics for the entertainment news.

Zachary did not read what the netizens said.

They could believe whatever they wanted to.

He clarified because he did not want people to think that there was a problem with Serenity. He also did not want Serenity to feel pressured.

Some reporters called his mother, but his mother and his elders expressed their views very clearly. It was up to the young couple to plan their own family. They could have a child whenever they wanted.

However, Zachary still kept this a secret from Serenity. He did not want her to be bothered by something this trivial when she was already worried sick about her sister.

Serenity felt that it was her fault for not being by her sister's side because of the argument she had with him. How would she feel if she found out that her fertility was being talked about online

“Okay, let's go back to the manor. Nana said that Sonny was frightened too badly and should be looked at by a psychic. My mom said I was often looked at by psychics when I was a kid too.”

After getting in the car, Zachary said, “I don't know when Nana started being so superstitious. That psychic also looked into our fate and said that we were destined to be husband and wife. That's why Nana tried her best to get us together.”

Serenity was speechless. “That was the reason? I thought it was because Nana liked my character, but it turns out I was wrong—it was a psychic who brought us together.”

Zachary held Sonny's hand in one hand and grabbed hers with the other. “This psychic is pretty good.”

He was right to say that Zachary and Serenity were destined to be husband and wife.

They were a married couple now.

Unfortunately, they were only destined to be married in this life. Zachary hoped to be married to Serenity for all of his future lives.

However, a person only lived one life. Being married for this lifetime was enough.

“Nana also wanted the psychic to look at the geomancy of our house, but he said that looking at energy isn't his specialty. He told us to look for another diviner.”

The York family was unable to give birth to a daughter. Zachary mentioned to his nana that it could be a problem with the energy in their living spaces.

That was why his nana invited the psychic over.

The psychic was quite accurate in telling people's fortunes, but he did not specialize in reading energies. A diviner was invited to Wildridge Manor to see if there were any problems, but none were found.

However, the psychic told Grandma May that when he looked into Zachary and Serenity's fortunes, he saw that they were destined to have a son and a daughter.

Zachary remembered how his nana grinned happily when telling him this.

Who would not want a son and a daughter?

Without a doubt, he wanted them.

"What's on your mind?" Serenity sensed his changing thoughts and asked curiously. She left his embrace to look at him.

Sonny learned from his aunt and also looked up at Zachary.

The psychic said that we're destined to have a son and a daughter, so you should stop worrying about children, Seren. If we're destined to have children, they'll come eventually. If something is meant to happen, it will."

Serenity was silent for a long time before sighing. "Okay, I'll stop thinking about a child."

No matter whether the psychic was only saying words pleasant to the ears, or he genuinely knew how to tell fortunes and saw the children Zachary and she would have, she did not want to put pressure on herself anymore.

"Are you sleepy, Sonny? Lean on me and sleep a little."

Zachary bowed his head and gently coaxed Sonny.

Sonny nestled in his arms and said, "I don't dare sleep, Uncle Zack. It's scary."

He kept dreaming of his mother covered in blood.

Zachary hugged him tightly. "Don't be scared. You don't have to be scared of anything with Uncle Zack around. Your aunt will wake you up to eat when we reach home, and then we'll continue to sleep. We'll go stay with your mom at night, okay?"

Sonny nodded obediently.

He felt safe in his Uncle Zack's arms.

Sonny said he was scared and did not dare sleep, but he fell asleep quickly.

He did not sleep well the past two days. He was still a three-year-old kid after all, so he was at his limit.

However, he continued to have nightmares and woke up several times on the way back to Wildridge Manor. He awakened in tears each time, breaking Serenity's and Zachary's hearts every time.

Zachary told the driver to speed up, wanting to return to the manor immediately.

They would let the psychic look at Sonny.

Chapter 1423

In the meantime, after leaving the hospital, Callum did not send Camryn back to Spring Blossoms but went to Willspoon Hotel instead. He said, "I accompanied you to the hospital, so lunch is your treat."

Camryn, who was thinking about something else, was instantly speechless.

He always made her buy him meals!

She looked at Callum and asked calmly, "Where do you want to eat?"

"I think..."

His cell phone rang before he could finish, interrupting what he was about to say.

There was no caller ID saved to the number, but he recognized it. It was from Mr. Newman.

"Your uncle is calling," Callum said to Camryn.

Camryn frowned and then said calmly, "I think he's anxious and wants you to help."

Mr. Newman was indeed feeling uneasy. He was also fearful.

His wife and he were tied to the same boat. Although most of it was obviously his wife's doing, he could not escape being scrutinized and investigated. He would not be able to get away if the police investigated deeper.

His wife and he worked so hard to get to where they were today, but they had a feeling that everything would go down the drain. How could he not be anxious?

In his heart, he resented his wife for not listening to him.

He advised his wife countless times not to fight with Zachary and Serenity. Even if they had billions worth in assets, they were no match against the York family.

If Carrie was sentenced to jail, then so be it. As long as they were still alive and free, they could arrange a good path for their daughter when she was released from prison.

Carrie hired thugs to harm Serenity but failed. It was a vicious scheme, but Serenity knew self-defense and there were bodyguards from the York family secretly protecting her, so the consequences were not horrible. Otherwise, Carrie would be heavily sentenced.

Now, she was convicted to only serve a few years in prison.

Carrie was young and would still be in her twenties after serving jail time. Although it was not honorable to have gone to jail, their daughter broke the law and they had no way of getting Serenity to drop charges, so they could only accept the legal sanctions.

Mr. Newman always tried very hard to convince his wife to let go of her grudge.

However, Mrs. Newman's most beloved child was Carrie. Although she also loved her son, she felt that her son was unlike her because he helped Camryn. Her love for her son could not be compared to her love for Carrie.

She could not accept that her daughter would be imprisoned for several years. She hated Serenity! She wanted to get revenge on Serenity. She wanted Serenity to suffer a fate worse than death and repent!

However, she did not expect to have failed to grab Sonny even after mobilizing so many men. In a turn of events, she and her forces were captured. Mrs. Newman only comprehended the situation the moment she was taken away by the police.

The police already cast out a large net for her and were just waiting for her to throw herself into the net.

It was also at that moment that Mrs. Newman regretted not listening to her husband's advice.

She thought she did not have to fear Zachary with her forces...

However, as strong as a person was, there would always be someone stronger. Zachary happened to be more powerful than she was.

Mr. Newman knew that his wife would be sentenced severely after getting captured. His wife was involved in the underworld. Not only did she commit a heinous crime, but she also harmed someone.

Mr. Newman could not see his wife now.

Only her lawyer had the right to see her whereas he could not visit her until she was sentenced.

He felt like the Newman family collapsed overnight.

Mr. Newman was completely overwhelmed.

"I'm driving now, so it's not convenient for me to answer the phone. You can answer it for me."

Callum spoke to Camryn. He swiped the answer icon before Camryn could respond and shoved the phone to her.

"Hurry up and take the phone unless you want us to die together in an accident."

Camryn had no choice but to take the phone from him.

Mr. Newman called out pleasingly from the phone, "Mr. Callum, are you free? I'd like to treat you to lunch."

Camryn brought the phone to her ear. When she heard her stepfather's question, she said softly, "Mr. Callum is driving now, Uncle. He can't answer the phone."

"Camryn? You're with Mr. Callum? Okay, tell him that I'd like to invite him to lunch and ask if he's available. You can come with him too." Mr. Newman's tone was gentle when he heard his niece's voice and realized that she was with Callum.

"Mr. Callum, my uncle said he wants to invite you to lunch. He asked if you're available."

“Sure, I am. We’re going to lunch right now, aren’t we? Tell Mr. Newman that we’ll wait for him at Wiltspoon Hotel. Tell him to come quickly.”

He could not make Camryn take out her wallet today.

Either way, he could try again another day. He had a lifetime left to leech off her.

It was not easy for Camryn to earn money. Every time she treated him to a meal, she always looked regretful at spending money. However, it was that regret that amused Callum. He liked making her pay for their meals and watching her pretend to be generous despite being in pain.

If Camryn could hear his thoughts, she would say, “I don’t want to spend my lifetime with you...”

“Uncle, did you hear what Mr. Callum said?”

Mr. Newman answered, “Okay, I’ll go to Wiltspoon Hotel now.”

Then, he quickly hung up the phone.

Camryn returned the phone to Callum.

Callum teased her while driving, “Your uncle came to me for my help. He most likely wants to ask me to be responsible for you and marry you off to me. Would you be willing?”

Camryn was silent.

“Old Mr. Marshall already sent that b*stard who tried to molest you to jail. Your mom found him after considering the Marshall family’s reputation in Wiltspoon. Even Zachary has to show respect to the Marshalls.

“The main family of the Marshalls is very decent but has no friendship with your mother, so she had no choice but to find a very distant relative to give you away as a plaything.”

This was the result of Callum’s investigation.

Back then, he beat the man up black and blue without knowing who the man was. It was only after investigating that he found out that the man was from the Marshall family.

Old Mr. Marshall even thanked him for helping to uncover the scum in the family.

“Thank you, Mr. Callum.”

Camryn could do nothing else but expressed her gratitude.

“Keep track of how many meals you owe me and cook for me every day when your eyes are cured.”

Camryn was speechless. “Are you... hiring me as a chef?”

“Don’t you need to marry me? I don’t need a chef. I need a wife. Isn’t it normal for wives to cook. for their husbands?”

“If you don’t know how to cook, it’s fine. I’ll cook instead. Thanks to my nana, all my cousins and I can cook. Our skills are first–class.”

No matter how mild–tempered Camryn was, her expression could not help but darken.

“Mr. York, I never said I would marry you!”

They were not even dating!

Callum smiled and said, “Your uncle told me to marry you and bear the responsibility of you.”

“He has no say in my marriage!”

Callum looked at her and asked, “Do you refuse to marry me because you think I’m ugly?”

Camryn held back her anger and said, “I don’t know what you look like, Mr. Callum. How could I dislike you for being ugly?”

“Marriage is an important event, Mr. Callum. We’re not playing house. We’re just friends at best and not even a couple. How can you talk about marriage?”

Callum did not answer immediately. Just when Camryn thought that she persuaded him, he said gently, “You don’t have to be a couple to get married. Zachary saw Serenity for the first time when they got their marriage license, and they’re doing great now. They’re so sweet to each other that I’m envious.”

Camryn was speechless.

Zachary got married to Serenity all of a sudden, but were all the men of the York family going to follow in his footsteps?

Or did they want to learn from Zachary because they were too busy and could not be bothered to date?

Callum said, "If you want to be a couple first, that's easy. I'll be your boyfriend. We're a couple now."

Camryn was speechless. "Don't you have to ask for my permission, Mr. Callum?"

"Okay. Do you agree?"

"I'm not worthy of you. Please stop teasing me."

From the first time they met, Camryn felt that Callum was deliberately approaching her.

However, she could not understand why.

She considered the possibility of Callum liking her, but she denied it herself.

She was blind, and Callum was a man from the Yorks. No matter how open-minded their elders were, how could they accept a blind person?

"Why aren't you worthy of me? I'll change so that we're well-matched."

From the moment Callum got Camryn's photo, he knew that no matter how much he disliked it, he would still marry her in the end as his nana wished.

Since he could not escape, he treated Camryn as his wife.

"I'm blind."

Callum laughed. "Oh, that? I can't poke my eyes out to make myself blind as well, but I can ask the best doctors to cure your eyes. That's not a problem. What other problems are there?"

"Mr. Callum, I don't exist in my family. You won't get any benefits from marrying me."

"So what if you don't exist in your family? You won't be staying with them after marrying me. You'll be staying with me instead. As long as you exist, I won't let you be neglected."

"What benefits do I need from my wife? If you're talking about benefits, you can give me plenty. Isn't it a benefit to have a wife and children warm my house when it's cold?"

Camryn was speechless.

She was truly at a loss for words.

“Do you have your documents with you?”

“Why?” Camryn asked defensively.

Callum said seriously, “If you have your documents, and your uncle asks me to be responsible for you again, we can get a marriage license at any moment.”

“Mr. Callum, I didn’t say I want to marry you. I don’t like getting married out of the blue. If you want a marriage like that, you can stop the car and pick any other girl on the streets.”

Camryn’s face was tense. She was going to lose to Callum.

“Then we’ll just take our time dating first. We’ll take it one step at a time.”

Camryn corrected him, “Mr. Callum, we’re not dating either.”

Callum said, “You often send me flowers. Aren’t we dating? Oh, right, I haven’t given you a gift before. What do you like? I’ll get you anything you want.”

Camryn wanted to jump out of the car.

She did not want to discuss dating Callum with Callum.

Callum looked at her and laughed. “Okay, let’s put that aside for now. Camryn, I’ve grown to like you more each day. There’s nothing about you that I dislike.”

She was the wife that his nana chose for him.

Camryn was silent.

It was his first time saying that he liked her.

Callum looked at her again but said nothing.

He felt that he should ask Josh for advice on how to please his fiancée and make her grow. impatient to marry him.

When they arrived at Wiltspoon Hotel, Callum parked the car, got out, and quickly went around to reach the passenger seat. He waited for Camryn to get out of the car before standing in front of her.

“Mr. Calbum?”

Camryn raised her head to face him.

He was close enough that she could easily smell the familiar scent of his body.

Callum suddenly took her hand.

Then, he raised it high and pressed her hand against his face.

“Touch my face, Camryn. Although you can’t see what I look like now, you can feel it with your hands. I know you can imagine what I look like. You’re a very smart girl.”

Camryn quietly faced him.

After a long time, her hand moved.

Callum let go of her hand.

He let her hands roam his face gently with a hint of tenderness.

Her long and soft fingers felt rough as they brushed all over his features.

That was because her palms were full of thick calluses.

Her hands were actually very soft and beautiful.

Camryn imagined Callum’s appearance in her mind by feeling his face with her hands. After touching his face for a while, she noticed that Callum was getting closer. She snapped back to her senses and hurriedly retracted her hand.

Callum stared deeply at her red lips.

She was a beautiful girl with delicate features. Her lips were red and plump, and as he stared at close range, he wanted to kiss her and taste whether her lips were as soft as he imagined.

However, it was just a thought. He did not dare act on it.

She built tall walls around her heart. He had not even climbed half of it yet, so he could not be too impulsive lest she kicked him in the face and he fell back to square one.

“Has my uncle arrived?”

Camryn broke the silent but the ambiguous atmosphere remained between them.

“I’m not sure. Let’s go in first.”

Callum held out his hand to her. “Shall I lead you in?”

“No, thanks.”

Camryn had a white cane and could walk in by herself.

Callum did not force her and accompanied her to walk inside slowly.

Mr. Newman was waiting in the lobby on the first floor and immediately greeted them when he saw them enter.

He glanced at his stepdaughter twice before looking at Callum.

“Sorry to keep you waiting, Mr. Newman.”

“No, I just arrived too.”

Mr. Newman invited Callum to follow him into the private room he had booked.

Along the way, he saw how patient and considerate Callum was to Camryn. Mr. Newman felt incredibly displeased.

How did his blind niece attract the attention of the Yorks’ second young master?

This girl...

She was just like his younger brother. They both held a certain affinity.

Although Mr. Newman was the older one, their parents loved his younger brother more. Everyone else fancied his younger brother too. Regardless of when, his brother was always the focus of the crowd.

His late brother was mild-tempered, very intelligent, and had great respect for him. He never wanted to compete for the family fortune, but their parents still wanted to give everything to their younger son. Even the woman he loved the most became his sister-in-law!

Mr. Newman and his wife were already in love, but both their parents turned a blind eye to it. Instead, they let his brother marry the woman he loved the most.

He could not accept it!

“Camryn, why were you with Mr. Callum?” Mr. Newman asked.

Camryn said faintly, “I went to the hospital to visit Liberty and bumped into Mr. Callum, who was kind enough to send me home. He received your call while we were on the way.”

Mr. Newman was silent before asking with concern, “How is Ms. Hunt?”

“Her life is no longer in danger.”

Camryn said, “I went to apologize to her on Mom’s behalf.”

“Camryn, it might not be your mother who was behind it. Don’t say that your mother did it until she’s convicted,” Mr. Newman said crossly.

“The police wouldn’t take Mom away unless they had evidence. No one involved that day managed to run away. Even if you just came back, you should have heard about it too. I believe the police wouldn’t falsely accuse Mom.”

In fact, Camryn did not know why the police arrested her mother.

They took her away swiftly.

Well, the truth would come to light sooner or later.

Her mother always thought she was powerful with her underworld forces, but she did not know. that evil would never prevail.

In the end, she got caught.

Of course, Camryn was not sympathetic or worried about her mother at all, let alone think of ways. to save her mother. She only felt that it was her mother’s own fault.

Mr. Newman choked.

He had nothing to say.

After a long time, he hurriedly handed the menu to Callum and let him order.

“I don’t need the menu.”

As one of the Yorks, he knew all about the delicious specialties of his own hotel like the back of his hand.

Since it was Mr. Newman’s treat, Callum did not hold back and ordered many signature dishes from the hotel. Unfortunately, he could not order wine. If he could, he would order a few bottles of good wine and blow a hole into Mr. Newman’s wallet.

After ordering the dishes, Callum said, “You can go straight to the point, Mr. Newman. I don’t like to beat around the bush, let alone play guessing games.”

“You’re a very straightforward man, Mr. Callum. I like that about you.”

Mr. Newman smiled and said, “In that case, I’ll go straight to the point. Mr. Callum, you saved Camryn before and saw her exposed body. I’ve also asked you to take responsibility for her.”

“Uncle, my body wasn’t exposed!”

Camryn immediately corrected her uncle’s statement.

Even if he wanted to give her to Callum, he could not use such an excuse. He was humiliating her in front of Callum.

Callum and Mr. Newman looked at her.

There was a smile in Callum’s eyes as he said meaningfully, “The dress you wore that night was very beautiful.”

Camryn, who had always had a calm expression, blushed at his words.

Then, Callum said to Mr. Newman, “I saved your niece out of the kindness of my heart, but your reliance on me is chilling my heart. For instance, I helped an old man cross the road, but then people started telling me to take care of that man for the rest of his life— it’s putting me off from wanting to be a good person.

“If I see something like that happen in the future, should I save the girl or not? If I save a few more girls and their parents ask me to bear the responsibility of them, won’t I end up having to marry multiple wives? Polygamy isn’t allowed in our country.”

Mr. Newman looked at his niece and said, "Mr. Callum, my niece is different from others. She can't see. If you don't take responsibility for seeing her exposed, she'll never be able to get married."

"Uncle!"

Camryn said solemnly, "I won't marry, and I don't need Mr. Callum to be responsible for me. I didn't suffer any losses. I wasn't taken advantage of by that man that night, so there's no need for Mr. Callum to take responsibility."

Mr. Newman was not her real father, but he was her elder.

He was also her stepfather.

Mr. Newman making such a request to Callum made Camryn feel so humiliated that she wanted to bury herself in the ground.

"Camryn, I promised your dad that I would raise you into an adult and find a good husband for you. I didn't take care of you and caused you to lose your sight. I'm already feeling guilty about it. If I don't help you find a suitable husband, I won't have the face to see your father when I die."

Mr. Newman was actually doing this to ruin Camryn's image in Callum's eyes. He wanted Callum and the York family to look down on Camryn,

If he knew that Old Mrs. York had decided to make his niece her second granddaughter-in-law, he would probably have spit blood.

"Mr. Callum, look..."

Callum looked at Camryn and said, "You mean to say that if I don't marry Ms. Camryn, she'd be single for the rest of her life. How can I bear to let that happen to her? Ms. Newman..."

"Mr. Callum!"

Camryn interrupted Callum's words with a tense face.

"Mr. Callum, I don't need you to be responsible for me." She turned to Mr. Newman and said again, seriously, "Uncle, stop forcing Mr. Callum to marry me. I don't need it! Marrying me off isn't even your real goal. Why don't you just tell Mr. Callum what you want? Why are you using me as a bargaining chip?"

“Mr. Callum, what my uncle really wants is for you to step in and help mediate so that your -law’s sister can compromise and help my mother get a lighter sentence.”

Mr. Newman’s expression darkened.

Fine, it was good that Camryn spelled out his true thoughts.

That was indeed his real intention.

Callum deliberately let out a hum. “It’s not because he genuinely wants me to marry you? Mr. Newman, to be honest, I’m willing to do so. She’s beautiful and pleasing to the eye, so it doesn’t matter to me that she can’t see. Her blindness just makes it more convenient for me to bully her and pick on her.”

Camryn’s expression was calm.

Mr. Newman looked thoughtful.

“Mr. Callum, my wife is Camryn’s mother. If you marry Camryn, my wife will be your mother-in-law. Are you willing to stand by idly as your mother-in-law goes to jail?”

Since Camryn had pointed out his real intention, he shamelessly said what was in his heart.

“Liberty is your sister-in-law’s sister, so you should plead for your mother-in-law. We’ll all be relatives in the future and will cross paths regularly. Can you forgive your mother-in-law this one time? I guarantee that she won’t do anything to Liberty and Serenity again after she comes out.”

Callum picked up the teacup, took an elegant sip of tea before placing the cup back down and said with a smile, “Mr. Newman, don’t be so quick to call yourselves my in-laws. Your niece said I don’t have to marry her, so our families are not related yet.

“If you have difficulties in your business, I may be able to help for the sake of your niece. However, I won’t help you in this case. It doesn’t matter whether your wife is my mother-in-law. Even if she was, she committed a crime and should be punished. I won’t intercede for her.

“You should give up on that, Mr. Newman. Liberty and her sister won’t agree to a settlement!”

Callum stood up when he was done speaking and pulled Camryn up as well. He said to Mr. Newman, “I won’t continue eating this meal. You can come to me if it’s about taking responsibility for Ms. Newman, but don’t come looking for anything else. I can’t help you.”

He pulled Camryn out of the room.

Mr. Newman was left there sitting alone, his expression turned dark and his face paled.

After exiting the room, Callum took Camryn to another room, ordered food again, and told her to continue to treat him to lunch.

He said righteously, "Your uncle tried to force me to marry you. I suffered grievances, so you should buy me lunch."

Camryn felt amused and exasperated. "I didn't say I wouldn't. You don't have to make excuses."

"I'll send you home after lunch. Pack up and move out of that house. I'm worried your uncle will do something to you."

"Where am I supposed to move to?"

"My place, of course. I have a house near your place. Move into my house and I'll ask someone to take care of you. Don't worry, I won't live in the same house, lest others say that we're cohabiting before getting married."

Camryn paused. "Mr. Callum, stop talking about marriage. I won't follow my uncle's arrangement. I'll ask my assistant to help me tidy up the small room inside my store later. I can stay there for now. It's much more convenient that way too."

She would move back home when her uncle also got arrested.

In the meantime, it was indeed safer for her to move out.

Who knew if her uncle would kill her out of desperation?

Back then, her uncle and mother wanted to kill her, but she saved herself at the cost of her eyes.

"Sounds good."

Callum did not force her to move into his villa.

The sun set and darkness came, depicting another day coming to an end.

Zachary and Serenity took Sonny to the hospital.

They did not know if it was because of the psychic or because Sonny saw his mother wake up, but he slept well in the afternoon. His mental state was back to normal now.

However, Serenity was not well. She had a headache after sleeping badly for two days.

Before going out to the hospital, she took a painkiller behind Zachary's back. She had always taken this painkiller, but the side effects were quite strong. Unless she was in severe pain, She would not have taken it.

Zachary snipped a large number of flowers from her garden and wrapped them into a bouquet, then let Sonny carry it into the ward,

"Mom," Sonny called out while trotting to the hospital bed.

He handed the bouquet to Liberty as if he was offering up treasure. His black eyes twinkled as he said childishly, "Mom, you'll get better soon If you get flowers."

Liberty smiled. "As long as you're by Mom's side, Mom will get better soon."

"Sonny, just put the bouquet next to your mom's pillow." Serenity walked over and helped her nephew place the bouquet next to her sister's pillow. She said with a smile, "Liberty, Zachary only helped to cut and wrap the flowers. Sonny was the one who picked the flowers."

Liberty's smile grew sweeter.

"Aunt Audrey and Elisa, leave my sister to us. You two go home and rest for now. Aunt Audrey, worry too much. My sister will get better soon."

Serenity and Zachary took over Audrey and Eliza to keep watch over Liberty for the night.

Audrey watched over Liberty for half a day. She was slightly relieved when she saw that Liberty's mental state was better than in the morning.

As long as she was still alive, her injuries would heal!

There was only a rainbow after the rain.

"All right, we'll take our leave. I'll come by tomorrow morning with some food for Liberty. The doctor said she can start eating liquid food tomorrow."

Audrey touched Liberty's still pale face tenderly and said, "Liberty, you have to get better soon. I'll make some good tonic for you in the future. Seeing you like this breaks my heart."

"I'll get better, Aunt Audrey. I already feel much better now than when I first woke up in the morning."

Her wound just hurt.

Liberty endured it and concealed it for fear that the people who were worried about her would feel even more distressed.

Elisa rubbed the top of Sonny's head. "Say bye-bye, Sonny."

Chapter 1430

"Bye-bye."

Sonny waved to Elisa and blew her a kiss, making everyone laugh.

Zachary personally escorted Audrey and Elisa out of the inpatient building.

"You've worked hard these days, Zachary."

Audrey said gratefully, "It's thanks to you that Seren and her sister could turn their fortunes around. You helped them a lot. Thank you."

Zachary said warmly, "Seren is my wife, and her sister is my sister. They're my family. It's only natural that I help them."

He helped Serenity and Liberty tremendously, but it was also because they got acquainted with him that they ended up being involved in trouble.

"You're a responsible man. I feel relieved leaving Serenity in your hands."

Audrey had always known that Zachary was one of the most outstanding young men in Wiltspoon. Her daughter had a good eye.

However, they were not destined to be together.

Instead, Zachary became her nephew-in-law. At least he did not fall into the hands of someone else.

Audrey and Elisa left.

Zachary walked them to their car before going back.

“Zachary.”

A familiar voice called out.

Zachary turned his head and saw Duncan with a fruit basket in one hand and a bouquet of flowers. in the other, walking toward him.

“Duncan, Liberty’s ward is already full of fruit baskets and bouquets.”

“Those are from other people.”

Duncan felt that he had to quietly fight for a place in Liberty’s ward.

“Why did you come again when it’s already nighttime? Are you going to compete with us for the night watch again? She won’t be able to rest if you stay to watch over her at night. It’ll affect her recuperation.”

Duncan could keep vigil last night because Liberty was still in a coma.

However, now that she was awake, Zachary was not in favor of his friend keeping guard again.

His sister-in-law still did not know that Duncan had feelings for her.

Duncan said, “I just came over to have a look. I feel uneasy if I don’t see her.”

“And your mom allowed you to come here?”

Mrs. Lewis had looked down on Liberty for a long time.

Duncan walked side by side with Zachary and made the latter help carry the fruit basket. “My mom can’t interfere with my affairs. She’s looking forward to my marriage, but she’s trying her best to stop me from getting together with the woman I like. I don’t know if she wants me to get married or remain a bachelor for the rest of my life.

“What’s wrong with me liking Liberty? She’s single, I’m single. We’re both free and have the right to love freely.”

Duncan did not care how unpleasant his mother's expression was when he left the house.

He could do whatever he wanted.

He was already in his thirties. He was not a mama's boy. Why would he need to follow his mother's arrangements?

"My sister-in-law doesn't think of you in that way!"

Zachary reminded his friend.

It was too early to talk about marriage now.

Liberty's relationship with Duncan was absolutely pure. To her, he was just a frequent customer of her store.

If one had to insist that there was a relationship between them, it would be a relationship between a landlord and tenant.

Duncan paused before saying, "Zachary, can you help me? Put in a few good words for me in front of Liberty. I think it's quite good if we went from best friends to being brothers-in-law."
