Married at First Sight Chapter 1599—With orders barking from Camryn's eldest cousin, his brothers and cousins immediately took action.

They pushed over her flower pots that were placed on the racks.

"What are you guys doing?" Camryn got up and questioned them sternly.

Mr. Chandler walked over furiously. "What are we doing? Blind woman, don't blame us for being inhumane when you were also unkind. Guys, continue smashing everything up!

"Are you still counting money? You're still counting your money after blocking our road to riches."

Upon seeing the bouquet of money flowers, Mr. Chandler stretched his hand to snatch the bouquet over without even thinking.

However, the bouquet was taken away again in the blink of an eye.

It was not Camryn who did it.

It was Callum.

The Chandlers and Joyners knew Mr. Callum fancied Camryn and was pursuing her passionately.

If it were not for Callum's identity and status, the Joyners and Chandlers would have joined hands and defeated Camryn to the extent she could not live in the Newmans' villa.

Mr. Chandler did not expect Callum to be here.

Did the car at the door belong to Mr. Callum?

They thought someone had parked their car there temporarily.

"Mr. Y—York?" Mr. Chandler stammered.

Callum had an apron around him to prevent his suit from getting dirty. He was in the middle of cutting vegetables, so he had not put down the knife. He had the knife in one hand and snatched the money flowers back with the other. His handsome face was dark and his gaze was frosty. He glared at Mr.

Chandler coldly.

“What are you guys doing?” Callum questioned icily.

Upon seeing the flower racks that were pushed over, his expression turned even colder. “Did you come here to destroy the shop?”

Mr. Chandler said, “Mr. York, we didn’t come to destroy the shop. They simply knocked into the rack, and it toppled over.”

When facing the cold and icy Mr. York, Mr. Chandler turned timid immediately. He lost the fiery arrogance. he had just now.

Other people were also stunned.

It turned out that Mr. York was there too.

Although they had several people and Callum was alone, they were still cowards before Callum. No one dared touch even a strand of his hair.

That would be equivalent to having a death wish.

“Do you think I’m deaf? I heard everything. You guys are here to destroy the shop. I heard all the words you said earlier. How dare you snatch the money bouquet I gave to my fiancée? Do you think you have too many hands to spare?”

Callum was not easily fooled—he heard everything.

Mr. Chandler smiled and said sheepishly, “Mr. Callum, I... I was wrong. Sorry, Camryn. I shouldn’t have snatched your money bouquet.”

Then, he turned to glare at his brothers and said fiercely, “What are you guys still standing here for? Faster help Camryn get the rack up. We’ll compensate all the broken flower pots based on their original prices.”

The other people snapped back to their senses. They quickly went forward and got the rack they pushed over back up.

However, they were at their wits’ end because the potted plants were damaged and scattered all over the floor, as their pots were destroyed.

After a short while, they started moving again.

There were many empty pots in Camryn’s store.

They moved small empty flower pots over and squatted down. They scooped the soil on the floor and placed them into the new pots. They continued repotting the scattered flowers with the new pots.

When the bodyguards and store assistants, who had been eating at the nearby fast food store, saw the commotion in the flower shop, they rushed back without finishing their food.

Upon seeing the bodyguards return, Callum said to them, "Watch them clean up. I'm going to continue cooking."

Married at First Sight Chapter 1600—After that, Callum placed the money bouquet he had snatched back into Camryn's arms. He said gently, "Camryn, you can continue counting the money. The food will be ready soon."

"You don't have to mind those people. I'm here. I'll even hold the sky up if it falls down."

After speaking, Callum glared at Mr. Chandler again. "Don't you know Camryn is my fiancée? You dared touch my fiancée. How bold of the Chandler family."

Those words were laced with threats.

Mr. Chandler's expression changed. He quickly said, "It's a misunderstanding, Mr. York. We... We realize our mistakes. We're Camryn's cousins. My mom's her aunt. We're relatives."

Callum let out a cold hmph. "My Camryn doesn't want either of your families."

Camryn had a close relationship with her youngest aunt. Her youngest aunt was the one who saved her life.

However, Callum did not have the chance to meet Aunt Evelyn, who had rescued Camryn, because she married someone who lived far away.

If he had the chance to meet her, he would surely treat her as his own aunt.

"Callum."

Camryn, who had not spoken all along, finally spoke.

She said to Callum, "I'll deal with them. You can continue cooking. I'm hungry."

"Okay. I'll get cooking now."

Callum could not be bothered to threaten Mr. Chandler further because his fiancée said she was hungry.

His fiancée would not be at a disadvantage anyway.

Callum returned to the simple kitchen to continue cooking with a knife in hand.

The Chandlers and Joyners were shocked.

The great Mr. Callum York was wearing an apron without even taking off his suit and necktie to cook for Camryn. He did not have the attitude of a wealthy man at all. Instead, he looked like an ordinary person.

How deeply did he like Camryn to be willing to do that?

Mr. Chandler thought he should remind his mother to take Mr. Callum's feelings for Camryn seriously.

Mr. Callum was being earnest.

He was not simply looking for amusement by dating a blind person.

The young masters of the York family did not seem to fool around with feelings in general. They would always make a move after narrowing down on a target. They were loyal lovers who would not change their targets.

Camryn said to her eldest cousin indifferently, "There are 60 potted plants in each rack. You guys pushed over four of my racks, which brings it to a total of 240 plants. 120 of them are small plants, and their price ranges from 30 to 50 dollars. I'll take the mean and charge you 40 each. The other 120 plants are medium-sized and are sold for 50 to 100 dollars. I'll charge you 80 dollars each.

"Each potted flower had its own pots, but they have been destroyed by you guys. You all used my new pots, and they require money too. I'll charge 20 and 50 dollars for small- and medium-sized pots, respectively. Edward said he'll compensate me according to the original prices.

"You may pay me a total of 22,800 dollars. I've also given you a discount because we're cousins."

Edward Chandler said, "Camryn, are you robbing a bank?"

They had to compensate more than twenty grand for just pushing over several racks.

"Is there a bank that's only worth this much? Robbing such a bank will be a great loss."

Edward was speechless.

“Are you guys going to pay up according to the cost prices? Or do you want to compensate me with more money after I’ve called the police to handle this?”

The cousins scolded Camryn inwardly for being evil.

At that moment, Callum walked out with a knife.

The store assistants and bodyguards kept staring at them too.

They turned into cowards again.

Edward said, “We’ll pay you back. How much was it again? I’ll pay you now.”

“22,800 dollars. You can scan my QR code, but I prefer cash.”

“Give her cash,” Callum requested.

His fiancée’s phone was an old model. If the payment were made through a QR code, the store assistant would receive the money and withdraw it as cash for Camryn. It would be troublesome.
