

Master Odell's Secret Ex-wife Chapter 20

Chapter 20 Half an hour later, at the Carters', a black car appeared and pulled up in front of the entrance. A bodyguard pushed the door open, revealing Odell who stepped out of the car with Isabel in his arms.

The child's eyes and nose were glowing red, and her cheeks were puffed up like a ball. She crossed her arms in front of her chest and turned to look away from Odell.

She remained in that position the entire time, so all Odell saw was the back of her head. Odell only frowned wordlessly and carried her firmly in his arms as he strode past the entrance.

Soon, they arrived at Liam's room.

Liam was sitting on the bed holding his phone in an absent state of mind. When he saw Odell carrying Isabel in, his dull, lifeless eyes suddenly turned vibrant again. Madam Carter who was accompanying him was similarly stunned. "Isabel?"

Odell put the little girl down. Immediately, Isabel raised her foot and proceeded to deliberately stomp on his shoe mercilessly. Odell hardly reacted at all. He did not even blink.

After that, Isabel took off and ran toward Liam.

"Brother!" She climbed into Liam's bed.

Liam immediately took her into his arms and made her sit on the inner side of the bed.

Them, the two children glared at Odell together. Odell pursed his lips. Madam Carter was puzzled by this scene. "Liam, did you send for Isabel?" Odell looked at the two children and muttered a short answer, "Hmm."

Madam Carter turned to Isabel again. She could tell that Isabel had been crying for some time judging by how red her nose and eyes were. She continued pursuing the topic, "How did you bring her here? Did her family even agree to this?"

Odell's eyes flickered slightly as he answered, "Sylvia is her mother."

"What?" Madam Carter widened her eyes, believing that she must have heard wrong, "Can you repeat that? Who did you say her mother was?"

"Sylvia Ross," Odell repeated stoically.

Madam Carter immediately turned to look at Isabel who was seated next to Liam. With the two children sitting side by side, it was easy to make a quick comparison of their faces.

"No wonder... No wonder..." The more she studied them, the more emotional she became, and she stood up from the head of the bed.

This explained why Liam liked to visit Isabel, and why he got along so well with her to the point of spending tens of thousands on presents for her.

Her chubby face resembled Liam's, and there was even some slight likeness to Odell. She had to be Liam's twin!

Madam Carter was so excited that she almost lost her balance. Odell stepped forward and steadied her. "Grandma, I had someone conduct a paternity test, and the results will be sent here tomorrow." He was already fairly certain that Isabel was his daughter.

Madam Carter smiled and sat back on the bed. She turned to the lovely Isabel and asked tenderly, "Isabel, how's your Mommy doing?" Isabel glared at Odell and complained, "The stinky uncle picked on my Mommy, so she's obviously not doing well at all!" Odell zipped his lips.

Madam Carter wagered that this meant that Odell had taken Isabel away from Sylvia by force. She swiped a cautious glance at him. "Odell, why don't you head out first? I'll stay with them."

Odell looked at Isabel, but she looked away, so he could only see the back of her head again. He then looked at Liam this time. Liam's face was full of indifference, but he could tell he was still remarkably upset. "Okay," Odell responded, then he spun around and left.

After the door was closed, the children felt significantly better. Madam Carter sighed tiredly, then asked Isabel, "Isabel, have you had dinner yet?" Isabel shook her head.

"How about I ask them to prepare something nice for you two to eat?" Madam Carter suggested.

Isabel rubbed her belly and looked at Liam expectantly. "Grandma, my sister loves eating anything sweet. Tell them to bake a cake for her, and I'll just have porridge myself," Liam said. "Alright, consider it done!" Madam Carter answered in delight.
