Chap 363 I'll Help you Guys Say It

Yicheng: [After Su Youlan confirmed that she signed a contract with C.U., there were rumors that C.U. is working with Jiang Xun. The rumors seemed to be true. Once C.U. makes an official announcement and people find out that the spokesperson is Su Youlan and not Jiang Xun, they would think that Jiang Xun had deliberately released the news to try and win the endorsement but failed to do so. At that time, Jiang Xun would inevitably be ridiculed by the crowd. She can also take revenge for losing to Jiang Xun in the audition.]

Xin'an: [This person never stops! Jiang Jiang has never treated her as an enemy, but she has been staring at Jiang Jiang.]

Xin'an pouted. [Su Youlan's so petty. If she knew that Jiang Jiang never took her seriously, wouldn't she go crazy?]

While they were complaining, Jiang Xun personally posted a clarification on Weibo.

Jiang Xun Jiang V: [I haven't discussed the endorsement with C.U.]

Eating Jiang: [I like it when Jiang Jiang personally rebukes all rumors. She doesn't need her fans to guess.]

Spicy JJ: [Jiang Jiang is a straightforward person. She doesn't hide anything.]

Jiang Xun's fans also quickly reposted Jiang Xun's Weibo post to refute the rumors.

This caused the popularity of the marketing account that was originally thought to be quite good to not rise at all.

In the marketing group.

Gossip Expert: [What's wrong with this Jiang Xun? Can't she follow the unspoken rules of the entertainment industry?]

Entertainment Circle: [Everyone else is silent. But why is it so difficult to make her remain silent?]

Not No. 1 Fangirl: [We're back to life again, my friends. Su Youlan's side has given us new words.]

Not long after, another marketing account posted the same content on Weibo.

Nibbling Gossip: [In the beginning, C.U. did contact the influencer team and wanted to hire them to endorse their products. However, not long ago, the influencer was involved in a scandal that wasn't too good to look at. Although it was clarified in the end, the brand felt that the influencer's reputation was unstable and that there would be bad things happening every two to three days. Even if the influencer finally clarified, it would still affect the brand's image during the period of time when the matter was fermenting. That's why they didn't continue to talk to the influencer.]

Jiang Xun saw the posts from the marketing accounts and asked Yicheng, "Brother Wang, can you get Su Youlan's contact information?"

"What's wrong? You're going to find Su Youlan personally?" Yicheng was shocked. "Jiang Jiang, there's no need to look for her. Even if you confront her, she won't admit that she did it."

"I know, I just want to hear what she has to say," Jiang Xun said. "She doesn't have to admit it. We'll know if she did it by listening to her answer. I don't want to wrong anyone."

"Why don't I contact them?" Yicheng said, "If you contact them personally, you're giving them face."

"Alright," she said. Jiang Xun did not refuse Yicheng's good intentions.

Yicheng immediately contacted Youlan's manager, Sister Ran.

"CEO Wang." Sister Ran put on a surprised expression. "This really surprised me. What made you contact me? I don't think our two artistes have had any collaboration recently, right?"

Yicheng chuckled and said, "Have you seen the exposé on Weibo today? First, it was revealed that C.U. wanted to work with our artiste, Jiang Xun. After Jiang Xun personally denied it, it was followed by news that C. U had previously contacted to work with us, but later decided not to use Jiang Xun and had someone else work with them."

"Oh, I've also briefly looked into this matter. I didn't pay much attention to it," Sister Ran said.

"Sister Ran, let's not beat around the bush. I'm just here to ask you if you were the ones who exposed these two pieces of news," Yicheng asked.

"How could it be us?" Sister Ran naturally denied it.

"Su Youlan is the only artist I can think of that's related to C.U." Yicheng said. "No one else has a reason to do this."

"Yo, CEO Wang, you don't have any evidence to back up your words," Sister Ran said. "Jiang Xun has offended many people. How can you say that we were the ones who did it? She has offended so many people, so maybe her secret was leaked by one of her enemies."

"Her enemy exposed the C.U. incident and stepped on Jiang Xun, increasing your popularity. Who would be so stupid? Can you give me an example?" Yicheng said impolitely.

Sister Ran sneered and stopped pretending. "CEO Wang, I know that you and Jiang Xun like recording very much. Now that people in the industry are talking to you, who isn't on guard? Didn't you call me just to get some recording evidence?"

"I'm telling you, this has nothing to do with us. No matter what, it has nothing to do with us," Sister Ran said in a deep voice. "Go ahead and record my voice, but don't think of using it to blackmail me."

"Alright, I understand." Yicheng sneered. The other party had already said so much, what else could he not hear?

“They were the ones who did it,” Yicheng snorted coldly. He was so angry that he was about to explode. “I’ve been the general manager of Shanpin Media for so many years, and I’ve seen a lot of people and things. I can really see through her easily.”

“It’s fine as long as they were the ones who did it. Brother Wang, I’m hanging up.” Jiang Xun hung up after saying that.

She had been too polite to people recently.

She was being pushed to her nose.

“Hello? Hey, hey? Jiang Jiang?” Yicheng was stunned. He didn’t expect Jiang Xun to hang up so easily. He didn’t even have time to react.

Immediately after, Yicheng saw Jiang Xun post on Weibo again: [Yesterday, C.U. looked for my manager and wanted to talk to me about the endorsement deal. I went to a C.U. store in the afternoon and decided not to take it on when I came back. Oh right, C.U.’s new spokesperson is Su Youlan. The marketing accounts don’t have to squeeze out the toothpaste. I’ll help you guys say it, and I won’t charge any marketing fees. So don’t use my name anymore.]

[As we all know, Jiang Jiang will personally inspect the products before accepting any endorsements. Jiang Jiang said that she won’t accept this endorsement. I won’t say anything else. Everyone can experience it for themselves.]

[Alright, you marketing accounts should disperse. It’s better for Jiang Jiang to be happy than for you to gossip.]

A passer-by netizen also said, [I’m going to follow Jiang Xun because of this. Isn’t it more reliable to gossip with her than to look at the marketing accounts?]

When Youlan and her manager, Sister Ran, saw this Weibo post, they were dumbfounded.

“Why did Jiang Xun make an official announcement for us?” Youlan couldn’t believe it. She even felt like going back in time. She looked at Sister Ran in confusion. “Why should she make an official announcement for me?”

C.U. was not a small brand.

The official announcement of the brand would require a lot of preparation.

From warming up in advance, to a fixed official announcement, and then releasing links of similar activities of celebrities, etc.

If the brand was more generous, they would even buy spots on the hot search to promote it.

With C.U.’s power and Youlan’s endorsement, they definitely had to buy the advertisement spots on the trending searches for publicity.

Who knew that Jiang Xun would suddenly expose it and completely disrupt her plans with the brand.

“We had originally planned to wait for the official announcement of the brand before pulling Jiang Xun out to release a statement to mock her for not being successful in getting the endorsement.” Sister

Ran's face darkened, and her breathing became rough and unstable. "In the end, she actually did this. Bitch!"
