

MEDICAL GOD CHAPTER 456

Lin Yueyao rolled her eyes. “What’s the point of you even looking? You’re a TCM practitioner!”

Qin Jun smiled, “Exactly. That’s why you need my help.”

Western medicine had a very clear and precise framework. Doctors specialized in their own fields and had their own scope of work. Thus, dentists could only address problems in the oral cavity. They weren’t really equipped with the skills and knowledge of dealing with problems in other parts of the body.

However, this was certainly not the case with TCM. TCM required a complete understanding of the entire body.

In fact, Qin Jun was extremely adept in all the subjects of Western medicine, even gynecology.

This amalgamation of skills was certainly not something Lin Yueyao could even dream of matching.

After they entered the operating theatre, Director Zhong and the other doctors were still standing around the patient at a loss for what to do.

Qin Jun announced, “Can anyone not involved please make room?”

Director Zhong’s brows contorted into a frown. “Who are you?”

Fresh out of ideas, Lin Yueyao could only bite the bullet.

“He’s my cousin. He works in a TCM medical center.”

Director Zhong snorted derisively, “How dare you let someone operating a clinic into our hospital? Dr. Lin, are you not going to take this seriously? You’re going to get some TCM practitioner from outside just because you don’t know what else to do? If anything happens, do you even know what the repercussions are?”

Lin Yueyao’s expression hardened. “If anything happens, it’s on me. You have nothing to worry about, Director Zhong!”

Lin Yueyao rolled her eyes into the back of her head. How is such a coward even fit to be a doctor? What a joke!

Director Zhong sneered, “If that’s the case, then we’ll leave him to you. We certainly don’t want to be implicated by you two! Let’s go!”

Dr. Zhong rounded up his doctors and left the operating theatre. Now that they weren’t present, they naturally could not be held accountable for anything that happened.

Soon, the entire room cleared out, leaving only Lin Yueyao and Qin Jun behind with the patient.

Looking at the dying patient, Lin Yueyao could feel the tears starting to roll down her cheeks uncontrollably.

She was really upset that she couldn’t save the patient. And it definitely had nothing to do with the backlash that she would have to face.

Qin Jun comforted her, “There, there, don’t cry. Help me prepare the surgery equipment.”

Wiping the tears off her face, Lin Yueyao replied, “Are you out of your mind? At this point, nobody can save him. I’ll just take the blame for this one.”

At that moment, Lin Yueyao suddenly thought of Master Qin. If only Master Qin could turn up now. He might be able to actually save this patient.

But she was certainly unable to contact Master Qin in such a short span of time. Furthermore, the patient didn't look like he had much time left.

Qin Jun assured her, "Trust me. I know a rather obscure remedy. I can save him."

Qin Jun's words gave Lin Yueyao a glimmer of hope. After all, TCM had long and deep roots. There were many obscure remedies throughout the land that could be very effective to incurable ailments. This was something Western medicine couldn't even dream of matching.

For all she knew, Qin Jun might really know of an obscure remedy. She decided to give him a go since they were completely stumped.

Thus, Lin Yueyao became the assistant to his surgery.

Since there was no one else around other than Lin Yueyao, Qin Jun didn't hold back.

After giving the patient a pulse diagnosis, Qin Jun proceeded to pull back his eyelids and open his mouth to see his tongue. After a thorough examination, Qin Jun had now ascertained the root cause.

This was how TCM worked. A practitioner had to be proficient in dealing with all kinds of ailments throughout the body. Thus, the oral cavity was no exception.

Although others might not have had the confidence in conducting a surgery, Qin Jun certainly harbored no such reservations.

Since the root cause was in the oral cavity, Qin Jun naturally had to conduct the surgery in the patient's mouth.

Qin Jun then proceeded to lift the patient up forty five degrees. He then inserted two needles on the corners of his mouth.

The patients mouth was instantly locked in an open position and unable to move at all.
