

MEDICAL GOD CHAPTER 656

Treating children was not very different from treating adults. The more challenging part was getting the children to cooperate.

A sick child would tend to cry, throw a tantrum, or was afraid of injections.

Usually, acupuncture would not cause pain or discomfort. The patients might feel nothing more than a mosquito bite if the treatment was carried out by some experienced senior physicians.

It was, however, different with children, as their fear of needles was instinctive. The moment they saw the needles, they would panic and refuse to cooperate.

The child gave Dr. Zhong a hard time by crying and rolling on the ground. He did not know how to deal with her anymore.

It was so painful to watch that Director Gao decided to step in, "Dr. Zhong, shall we ask Dr. Qin for help?"

Dr. Zhong sighed, "Alright."

He gave up and moved to the side, feeling defeated.

Qin Jun walked up to the girl, took a look at her, and checked her pulse.

It was not easy for Qin Jun to deal with this little girl either. Just like what happened earlier, she just refused to cooperate.

“Her pulse is weak. She should be fine after receiving acupuncture and taking Ephedra sinica.”

“Someone in the past must have diagnosed the child’s illness as a fever, right?”

The father nodded repeatedly.

“Yes, yes. A mediocre doctor said my daughter had a fever. After receiving his treatment, her condition became even worse than before!”

Qin Jun nodded. Her problem would have just been a minor one if she were not misdiagnosed earlier.

With the advent of new medical technologies, treating any diseases should not be as difficult as before.

Yet, problems would arise when a doctor misdiagnosed a particular disease and prescribed the wrong medicine. The wrong treatment would only further aggravate the patient’s health condition.

Her aggressive behavior was not only caused by her illness but also by the heat accumulated in her liver.

Whether they were adults or children, anyone with a heaty liver would get aggressive easily.

Dr. Zhong shook his head repeatedly, “There’s nothing much we can do. We need to use acupuncture on her, but since she refuses to cooperate, what else can we do?”

The child was so young. The parent would definitely not agree to sedate her.

Of course, doctors would not easily administer a tranquilizer to a child as it was not good for their health.

Qin Jun said, "It's fine. Let me try."

He then took out his needles. The child immediately burst out crying after seeing the needles, "No! No! Go away!"

Qin Jun approached her with a grin, "Don't be afraid, okay? Uncle will not give you any injection, I promise. Why don't you poke me with this needle?"

The child finally stopped crying and responded with a smile, "Okay!"

Children were playful, after all. She immediately became excited when she was told she could poke someone with a needle.

Qin Jun continued, "But before that, you'll have to remove your clothes first."

The girl hesitated for a bit and then nodded her head, "Alright..."

Right after taking off her shirt, she grabbed a needle and stuck it right into his arm.

While she was doing that, Qin Jun cautiously grabbed a needle and positioned it on her back.

Just when she poked his arm with the needle, Qin Jun acted as if he was in a lot of pain.

"Ouch..."

When the little girl got distracted by his acting, he stuck the needle into the back of her neck.

She did not feel anything at all as she was having so much fun pricking Qin Jun's arm.

Dr. Zhong suddenly stood up, and the other three specialists were astonished.

The intuitive technique of acupuncture!
