

MEDICAL GOD CHAPTER 732

Everyone in the room were shocked when the box was opened.

It was clear by then that the ruby was from Qin Jun; otherwise, he could not have opened the box with his fingerprint!

John felt as if he was slapped directly across the face as his shameless act of posing as the owner of the ruby was exposed.

Qin Jun took out the ruby necklace from the box and walked towards Zhu Linlin. He put the necklace on for her.

Her face blushed with surprise as she admired the ruby laying on her chest.

“Is this for me, Jun?”

Qin Jun nodded, “Yes. Actually, it’s a gift from someone else so I hope you don’t mind.”

“Of course, I don’t mind as long as it’s from you!” Zhu Linlin smiled happily.

“From someone else? Who is it?” Jiang Nana asked hastily when she heard that Qin Jun didn’t buy the necklace.

She was absolutely dumbfounded by all this, for she was quite sure about her check on Qin Jun’s background. How could he ever afford an expensive ruby?

The explanation was directed to Zhu Linlin as well.

Only then did Nana feel a sense of relief. She pursed her lips and snorted coldly.

“To think that a doctor can get jewels from such favors! It’s not really a feat when you don’t pay anything for it.”

In her opinion, John was far better for Linlin than Qin Jun and she was not wrong about that.

A doctor shall always remain a doctor. He may not be living a poor life, but he will never be one of the wealthiest.

However, things may be different with businessmen. They’ll always have the chance to get rich overnight in some investment. Hence, John has a much better future than this wimp here, and I’ll bet on anything that he will be the next Bill Gates.

The expression on Wang Yun’s face hardened as it never occurred to her that the ruby could be from Qin Jun.

He may be lucky to get such an expensive gift for healing a rich person, but fortunes like this never last.

“Don’t you have a client to meet, Linlin? You should get going now.” Wang Yun broke the silence sulkily.

“Ya, you shouldn’t be late. The client that agreed to meet you today is a big client. You shall be able to solve the cash flow problem easily with his help.” Nana chimed in.

“Okay, let’s go now. I hope he’s not waiting already.” Linlin agreed.

Qin Jun was slightly taken aback by the conversation. “What’s going on, Linlin?”

“There’s some problem with the international market as one of our shipments is detained by the customs. If the goods remain detained for any longer, the capital flow will be disrupted. I am in quite a tough position as I desperately need turnover cash,” explained Zhu Linlin.

“How much do you need?”

Jiang Nana rolled her eyes when she heard Qin Jun asking the question solemnly.

“What’s the point of you asking? You won’t be able to lend her that much money anyway. Just stop bothering her!”

“Would you like to come with me?” Linlin hoped that he would stay a little longer since they hadn’t met for a while.

“Sure.”

With that, Qin Jun, Linlin, and Nana left for the meeting.

John took the chance to bid his farewell after the embarrassing incident just now.

Jiang Nana whispered in Linlin’s ear, “Why are you bringing him to meet Mr. Yuan? It’s going to be so awkward!”
