

MEDICAL GOD CHAPTER 758

As Qin Jun tried to sit up and push the woman away, waking her.

She took off her sleep mask and glared at him coldly, “What are you trying to do, you pervert?”

“Excuse me. Mind if you take another look and see who’s the pervert here?” Qin Jun felt speechless by her accusation.

The woman blushed and hurriedly drew herself away when she realized she was the one hugging him tightly.

Qin Jun shook his head in exasperation. Such an impertinent lady!

As she removed her masks, he could finally get a clear look of her face.

Chen Yuan had big almond-shaped eyes, a straight nose, and long eyelashes; features that suggested her Xinjiang ethnicity. In short, she was very beautiful.

She continued glaring at him. “You didn’t push me away when you know perfectly well that I’m sleeping makes you a pervert!”

Qin Jun was so angry that he almost coughed up blood. He had never met such an unreasonable person before!

He closed his eyes in surrender as he did not know how to defend himself anymore.

The lady intended to reprimand him again, but seeing that he was feigning sleep, she stopped.

All of a sudden, a woman and a child from the compartment next to them screamed.

“My child! Oh, my child! Help! Someone, please save my child! Is there a doctor here?”

Qin Jun, Ye Wan’er, and Chen Yuan opened their eyes at the instant.

As doctors, they held their values by the Hippocratic Oath. Whenever there were patients in need of help, they would offer a helping hand willingly, requiring no form of repayment.

Chen Yuan stood up immediately.

“I’m a doctor!”

She was about to leave for the compartment when Qin Jun grabbed her hand.

“Don’t go.”

Her furrowed brows revealed annoyance and disdain as she glowered at him while wrestling her hand out of his grip.

“What are you doing? I am a doctor! The child needs help!”

Qin Jun glanced at the child and said indifferently, “I assure you it’s best if you don’t poke your nose in it.”

She frowned again, this time feeling outrageous, "Poke my nose in it? How can you say something like that? It's my duty to save lives!"

Exasperated, Qin Jun shook his head and kept quiet as Chen Yuan walked toward the child without heeding his advice.

Ye Wan'er was puzzled by the situation. What's wrong with Jun?

Despite being clueless about his advice, she did not follow Chen Yuan to the child's aid. She knew he must have had his reasons for suggesting that to the doctor.

As Chen Yuan approached the mother, the child in her lap was already turning blue.

Recognizing the condition, she exclaimed, "He's suffocating! Give him to me!"

The child was around three years old and he looked healthy. There was no reason for him to suffocate when there was no apparent danger around them.

The passengers gave up their seats for Chen Yuan to lay the child on his back. She found nothing in his throat when she examined his mouth with the flashlight from her phone. That's weird. He's not choking on anything.

She asked, "How did it happen?"

The mother shook her head tearfully. "I don't know... He was perfectly fine before it..."

Chen Yuan frowned. She neither knew the cause of the child's suffocation nor did she have the equipment to do a thorough check on him.

She had no choice but to proceed with the first aid treatment.

Her best chance of saving the kid was doing CPR.

As she laid the child flat and repeated the steps, he remained unresponsive.

The mother cried out loud when her child did not wake up.

“Oh, my darling!”
