

MEDICAL GOD CHAPTER 762

Ye Wan'er was very excited.

“The Resurrection Needles!”

From her recent reading experience, she knew that there was a needling technique called the Resurrection Needles, which, according to its name, could revive someone from the dead miraculously.

The effects of the technique were exaggerated. The Resurrection Needles could only activate a person's hidden vital signs; if the patient were dead, no method would work.

Blood rushed to the child's face.

Although he did not resume his breathing or heartbeat, the change of his skin color shocked everyone.

The passengers who were making sarcastic remarks previously became silent as they watched the child.

However, nothing absolute could be proved then.

As a patient lost his vital signs and his heart stopped beating, his blood circulation would eventually come to a standstill.

In a few minutes, it was impossible for anyone to save him once his blood started clotting.

Qin Jun lit the alcohol cotton swabs with fire and rubbed it around the boy's navel.

At the instance, the child's body flared up and a blue flame streaked across his navel to his throat.

Then Qin Jun proceeded with fire cupping.

He moved the cup from the kid's throat to his navel, extinguishing the flame at once.

As he brought the cup to a stop on the boy's stomach, something unusual happened.

The theory of fire cupping was to suction up the patient's belly when the pressure within the cup lowered after the flame consumed the air.

However, what happened was the exact opposite of it!

A dent of the shape of a basin formed on the boy's navel, as if an invisible force were pressing on it.

"The Counter Cupping Therapy!" Ye Wan'er exclaimed again.

Many ancient medical books described the method.

The normal fire cupping therapy was for removing cold and hot Qi from the body, while the Counter Cupping Therapy was the complete opposite of the original therapy.

It was used to channel the surrounding Qi into the patient's body, just as the Heat-producing Needling Method did.

The only difference was the Counter Cupping Therapy was far too strong for most people. It was similar to those who had a nosebleed when they ate too much ginseng. Not everyone could take such replenishment.

However, the method was perfectly fine for this patient because he was already dead.

After using the special technique on him, the child miraculously resumed his breath and heartbeat. Although he was breathing shallowly, he was definitely alive!

Chen Yuan was astonished.

“He’s alive!”

He’s breathing and I can feel his heartbeat! Oh my god!

As Qin Jun removed the cup and needles, he said to her, “Can you handle the rest?”

“Sure, leave it to me!”

She began CPR on the boy.

It wasn’t a difficult feat for the specialist to save the boy, now that the hardest part of reviving him was done by Qin Jun.

After a few minutes, the child finally regained consciousness and could breathe steadily. Other than the fear in his eyes, he was fine.

He started to sob.

As soon as the passengers heard the cry, the compartment erupted with loud applause.

Relieved, they exclaimed, "A genius healer indeed!"

"The both of you are so incredible! And good-looking too! You are indeed Romeo and Juliet in the medical field, minus the death and poison, of course!"

"Haha! You should totally be together and marry each other! It will be wonderful for all of us to benefit from such a union!"