

Chapter 129: My Genes Evolve Infinitely

: EXPLAIN SOME QUESTIONS

After reading some readers' questions, I remember I wrote about it earlier, right?

The first one is that after the protagonist evolves, the tempering degree is reduced to zero, and he is tempered from the beginning, and the previous spirit crystals are wasted.

I never seem to write about starting from scratch? Where did you see it? What I wrote is that the degree of tempering will decrease after evolution. After all, the genetic level is higher, so if you want to continue tempering, you can't let the spirit crystal that is required to refine an elite gene to 100% be the same as an ordinary gene, right?

The second one is that the protagonist will not evolve after the evolution cube is fully charged.

Did I explain this too? The protagonist showed only one gene outside. He didn't break through his cultivation base, and his genetic combat skills suddenly changed. Is this a problem that everyone can see? Is this suppressing the protagonist?

The third one is also about suppressing the protagonist, saying that the protagonist's genes are not strong enough, but Ye Ye's genes are strong.

Did I explain this too? The protagonist was just an ordinary person before, and the burned genes are also burned on his own genetic chain. You let an ordinary person directly evolve the god-level genes, can his genetic chain bear it? Is this suppression? People like Yeye have inherited the genes of their ancestors, and they are different from ordinary people.

When the protagonist breaks through to the first level, he has evolved the boss gene. This is already the third level. Is this suppressed? I really feel suppressed. Why don't readers who say this look at the opening and it's directly invincible?

Fourth, the author's rhythm is a bit slow in the early stage. It is indeed the author's problem. I haven't written it for a long time. It's a bit rusty. In addition, I need to explain some world settings. It is really not written, but dozens of chapters have not evolved. This is too much. Right? After the first gene is obtained, it evolves directly, okay?

There is also a dissatisfaction with the evolution of the evolution cube. If you evolve the elite gene to the boss gene, it is equivalent to evolving from the second stage of the gene to the third stage. Isn't it right that you need to consume more spirit crystals? Are they all tens of thousands of order zero spirit crystals? This is not logical, right?

Regarding these issues, the author will continue with the codewords, and will write well.

Finally ask for monthly pass for subscription