

Medical Genius's Unspeakable Marriage

Chapter 637

In less than three days, the project in the villa area was restarted. The construction of said area was basically completed, and now there was some post construction work left. After the post construction work, they could start selling the villa area.

Matthew originally planned to let Tiger take charge of these things but after Liam became general manager, he took control of everything, wanting to personally oversee the remaining work. Matthew knew very well that Liam wanted to take advantage of this opportunity to make a fortune. However, he didn't bother calling him out. As long as Liam didn't cross the line, he would let him be. Of course, he also told Tiger not to get involved in this, in case Liam pushed responsibility to Tiger again if something happened in the future.

After the construction company's work got back on track, Matthew went back to the hospital. Meanwhile, Crystal also came back to work and Matthew couldn't help but feel a little embarrassed when the two met.

"Miss Harrison, is your face okay?"

Crystal glanced at Matthew while thinking, This guy is so bad at holding a conversation!

"Of course it's very painful!" Crystal pouted and said.

However, Matthew commented, "Are you certain? She only slapped you once. How can it hurt for so many days?"

"If you already know this, then why did you have to ask me such a redundant question?" Crystal retorted.

Matthew was speechless as he thought to himself, A woman's heart is truly elusive.

Crystal, on the other hand, couldn't help but feel even more annoyed when Matthew kept quiet. She stood up suddenly and announced loudly, "This time, I spared the Cunningham woman for your sake. Tell me; how will you repay me?"

Matthew was taken aback. "What do you want?"

Crystal sneered, "Why are you so afraid? Do you think that I'll devour you? Well, I'll give you a chance—treat me to lunch at noon."

Matthew was quite speechless. She was speaking as if he was desperate to treat her to a meal! However, Sasha was coincidentally busy that afternoon and couldn't have lunch with him.

"Fine. However, I prefer to eat simple meals. If it doesn't suit your taste..."

Crystal waved her hand. "I will eat whatever you eat. You'd better not look down on me. Do you really think that I'm a spoiled rich lady? Since I came here to be a nurse, I'm prepared to endure hardships!"

Upon hearing that, Matthew gave her a thumbs up. "I admire your aspirations. Then, let's go to eat sliced noodles together at noon."

Crystal was stunned for a moment. "W-What noodles?"

Jack Woods Sliced Noodle Restaurant was near the hospital. Back then, Matthew often came here to eat when he was busy at work. This place was cheap and affordable. Plus, their food was quite good. However, the cleanliness of such a small shop was naturally very mediocre.

When Crystal, who was wearing a long fairy-like dress, walked into this small shop, she seemed completely out of place with the shop's environment. Those who ate here were usually people who worked nearby. People sat together in groups of three to five, smoking and drinking beer while swearing. All in all, it was very noisy.

As Crystal walked in, the scene suddenly became silent. These people had never seen such a beautiful girl before. Moreover, Crystal came from a family of medical background and she gave off a noble air. Seeing her, these people at the scene felt ashamed of themselves and no one dared to make a sound anymore. Meanwhile, Crystal frowned, for she had never been to such a place!

Matthew, who was already familiar with this place, sat down directly at a table. "Mr. Woods, please give us two big bowls of sliced noodles. By the way, we want the beef sliced noodles to be fried. I'm treating my friend to a meal so please put in more beef for me."

The boss looked confused. His mouth opened wide and he couldn't recover from his shock for a long while. He couldn't understand how the cleaner, who used to clean toilets in the hospital, could possibly bring such a beautiful woman for a meal here.

The most important thing was that this beauty was by no means an ordinary person. Judging from her appearance, she was undoubtedly a rich lady. How could she be so blind to fall in love with Matthew?