

The Mightiest Little Peasant Chapter 709

“How... how is that possible?”

The plump man’s face was filled with disbelief.

That kid spent only a couple of minutes picking his stones, and he got four pieces of high-quality jade and one masterpiece. That was unbelievable!

Could it be... that the kid was really an expert?

He looked at Tang Hao. It was difficult for him to associate that young man with the identity of a master of appraisal.

“So, are you willing to admit defeat yet? Pay up!”

Qin Gang could not stop grinning.

The plump man gritted his teeth, and he glared at Qin Gang savagely.

“What? Are you not willing to admit defeat?” Qin Gang sneered. As he spoke, he waved the contract in his hand.

Tang Hao stepped forward and said, “It’s fine if you don’t want to pay. I’m interested in your ring. Give that to me, and we’ll call it even.”

Qin Gang looked at the plump man’s finger, and his eyes lit up. “Oh my, that’s imperial jade!”

The plump man seemed visibly alarmed, and he hid his right hand. "I can't give you the ring. It's only five hundred million yuan, right? I'll give it to you. Do you have a Swiss bank account? I'll transfer it to you!"

After the transfer was done, he paid the money for the stones and left resentfully.

Everyone in the stone-gambling store cheered.

"You're too awesome, Master Tang! You've made Huaxia proud!"

"That's right! Let's see if that Nanyang guy dares to be so arrogant!"

Tang Hao frowned slightly.

He wanted the ring, but unexpectedly, that guy would rather pay five hundred million than part with it.

He was also curious about the plump man's change in expression earlier.

It seemed that the guy knew that the ring was special.

"I'll seek him out again tonight!"

Tang Hao made up his mind.

"Brother-in-law, teach me how you do it!"

Qin Gang came over and said courteously.

Tang Hao rolled his eyes and said, "It's not something that you can learn!"

Qin Gang immediately seemed resentful.

"I'll take the glass type, and the rest is yours. OK?" Tang Hao said helplessly.

"You're so nice, Brother-in-law!" Qin Gang immediately beamed with joy.

After having lunch together, Tang Hao went home.

At about seven o'clock in the evening, he was ready to go out. He went to the basement parking lot and just as he sat in the car, his phone rang. It was a call from Sun Yi.

Tang Hao was stunned. Sun Yi was Qin Gang's secretary.

Did something happen?

An ominous premonition arose in Tang Hao's heart.

As a cultivator, he was usually right with his premonitions.

When he answered the call, Sun Yi's extremely panicked voice could be heard. "Lil Tang, he... he's in an accident..." She sounded as though she was crying.

Tang Hao's expression changed slightly, and he asked softly, "What happened?"

“He got caught in a car accident. Just now, I was on the phone with him, but suddenly, he cried out in panic, and the call was cut off. I couldn’t get through to him anymore.”

Tang Hao heaved a sigh of relief. Qin Gang had one of the jade pendants. A car accident would not harm him.

“Don’t panic! Where is he?” Tang Hao asked.

“Well... I don’t know either. I only know that he’s at the east side of the city.”

“Where are you?”

“I’m at home!”

“Then I’ll get someone to check on it and come pick you up!”

“OK!” She responded and began to sob. “It’s all my fault. I knew that he was driving, but I called him anyway.”

“He’ll be fine. Don’t worry!” Tang Hao said.

After the call ended, Tang Hao called Zhao Wuyang and asked him if he knew about any car accidents on the east side of the city.

It had been a few minutes since the car accident. Someone must have called the police.

Soon, Zhao Wuyang came back with the information he wanted.

Tang Hao rushed out and went to pick up Sun Yi before driving to the location of the accident.

A crowd had already surrounded the accident scene. Ambulances, the traffic police, and even the fire department had arrived.

“Tsk tsk, how curious! The crash was so terrible, but the driver is fine. He didn’t even lose any limbs. How lucky!”

Everyone looked inside and whispered among themselves.

Tang Hao and Sun Yi squeezed through the crowd.

They saw the car that was deformed from the crash. It was quite a tragic scene.

Several firefighters were trying to pry open the deformed car door and get to the driver inside.

“Hang in there!” A firefighter shouted into the car.

Sun Yi rushed in that direction, but the traffic police stopped her.

“That’s my boss. Is he OK?” Sun Yi asked anxiously.

“He’s conscious, but he’s stuck inside,” the traffic police replied. “We’re trying to rescue him. Hey! What are you doing? Come back here!”

While he talked to Sun Yi, he caught sight of someone walking past him.

The police officer wanted to stop him, but that person went to the car and said to the firefighters, "Excuse me!"

The firefighters were stunned.

"You shouldn't be here. Go away!" One of the firefighters waved his hand at Tang Hao.

Tang Hao did not say a word. He took another step forward, grabbed the car door, and pulled.

Under the terrified gazes of the firefighters, he removed the car door with his bare hands.

"What the hell!" They blurted.

They looked at Tang Hao as though they were looking at a monster.

The traffic police and the onlookers were all stunned.

Tang Hao threw the car door aside, dusted his hands, and said with a smile, "I happen to be quite strong!"

'What the hell?

'That's not 'strong,' that's inhuman!'

The firefighters almost rolled their eyes.

They thought about it and could only come up with one explanation. What could it be if not for innate super-strength? He could not be a monster!

Then, they came to their senses and hurriedly pulled out the person inside.

Qin Gang's face was pale, and he looked a little dazed. He was still in shock.

Blood was flowing out from a cut on his forehead.

Other than that, there were no other injuries.

“Boss!”

Sun Yi rushed forward and hugged him. She was so happy that she almost cried.

Qin Gang eventually calmed down. When he saw Sun Yi's face clearly, he became a little agitated. He hugged her tightly and said, “Let's get married!”

“Huh?”

Sun Yi was stunned.

Even Tang Hao was stunned.

“Let’s get married! We must get married! Earlier, when I thought I was going to die, all I could think of was you!”

As he said that, he kneeled on one knee and grabbed Sun Yi’s hand.

“I don’t have a diamond ring now or anything else, but I’ll make it up to you. I’ll give you a big diamond ring, OK?”

Sun Yi was stunned. She did not know how to react.

She had dreamed of that many times, but she had never expected it to come so suddenly.

Looking at the car wreck behind him, she wanted to laugh and cry at the same time.

“Are you serious? At this place?”

She felt resentful, but happy tears poured out of her eyes.

The EMTs who wanted to examine Qin Gang, as well as the crowd of onlookers, were shocked by the scene.

‘Wait a minute, what’s going on?’

“A proposal! This is a proposal!”

“Wow! He’s an opportunist!”

The crowd burst into laughter.

“Marry him! Marry him!” Following that, they cheered.

Qin Gang grabbed Sun Yi’s hand and looked at her lovingly.

Sun Yi stood there, sobbing and tears rolling down her face.

Suddenly, she laughed again. “Alright! Stop it! I’ll agree to it! Go get yourself examined and treat that wound on your head! You look ghastly.”

“Really?”

“Really!” Sun Yi glared at him.

Qin Gang cheered, stood up, hugged her, and kissed her.

The crowd burst into laughter again.

“How reckless. That guy just survived a car crash, and he immediately proposes to his girlfriend!”

Tang Hao stood at the side and smiled, feeling somewhat gratified.

That was good news!