

Chapter 96

On the top floor of the Lins Building.

Sylvia looked at the darkness in front of her. The vase that broke moments ago was enough to make her panic.

At nine o'clock in the evening, the sky had completely darkened, and the whole building was empty.

Sylvia didn't remember how long she had not worked overtime until this late. Although she was very enthusiastic in her work, she was not very interested in working overtime. The reason was simple. She was afraid of the dark!

She didn't know when she got this problem. The darkness would make her scared, and even when she slept, she would turn on the bedside lamp.

Today was an exception. The project of the four hospitals was of utmost importance to the Lins Group. When she was busy, she forgot the time. It was not until the office lights went out that she realized that it was already dark.

The sudden darkness made Sylvia panic. She pressed the switch a few times, and the originally bright chandelier did not respond at all. She then remembered that today secretary Lee told her that at nine o'clock in the evening, the whole CBD should be checked on the equipment, and all the power would be cut off.

The entire building was empty. Sylvia walked out, and her high heels clicked on the ground. The sound spread out and came back from the end of the corridor to, which made her heart beat faster.

The black corridor in front of hier seemed to have no end, and it led to the abyss.

14:17

Sylvia's heart beat fast. Her cell phone was completely out of power and was completely turned off, so it couldn't give her any light.

Sylvia held the wall with her little hands and walked slowly forward. The elevator was completely powered off, so she couldn't use it. She could only use the stairs.

When she opened the fire door of the stairs, a wet smell came to her face. The huge echo came to her ear, which scared her so much that her heart was about to jump out of her throat.

Even if she was a big man, she would be afraid when walking alone in the dark building, let alone mentioning a person, especially a woman who was afraid of the dark.

She looked at the dark stairs in front of her. Her legs seemed to be filled with lead and she did not dare to go down. In the darkness, it seemed that something terrible would appear at any time.

Sylvia took several deep breaths, plucked up her courage and walked toward the stairs.

Suddenly, a loud noise came from behind her.

She screamed and suddenly looked back. It turned out that the fire door she just opened was closed. Sylvia felt that her heart was going to jump out of her throat.

It was dark all around. Her body was trembling unconsciously. The humid environment and the high heels under her feet made her feel insecure.

Sylvia held the stairs with her little hands and walked down step by step. A cool breeze came from behind her, which made her shiver. If she could see clearly, she would find that her face was pale. She was really scared and dared not look back. She could only let the cold wind blow on her back. She felt that she was going to break down in the darkness. Every time the high-heeled shoes under her feet touched the ground, they would make a "squeaky" sound, echoing in the corridor.

The broom at the foot of the wall, like a strange villain, waved his hands at Sylvia.

Her eyes were wet unconsciously, and her heart was in her throat all the time. She never felt helpless like she was now.

All of a sudden, a beam of light appeared in front of her eyes, and the black shadow extended from the light and disappeared into the darkness again.

Sylvia screamed again, turned her head and ran upstairs.

"President Lin?" Henry's magnetic voice rang out.

His voice, like the light shining with a yellow halo in the Lonely Sea, surrounded Sylvia like a warm ball.

"Hen... Henry?" Sylvia stopped, and her voice was full of surprise.

14:17

"It's me." Henry turned on the flashlight on his mobile phone and walked up the stairs. His figure gradually became clear in Sylvia's sight.

The moment she saw Henry, she had an impulse to throw herself into his arms and burst into tears.

Sylvia reached her hand, wiped her tears and asked in low voice, "Why are you here?"

Henry smiled and said, "You haven't come home so late, so I came to see you. Is there a blackout in this building?"

"Well, power outages." Sylvia nodded, and the corners of her mouth naturally relaxed. At the moment when Henry appeared, all the fear in her heart disappeared.

"All right, now I know why the building is dark. I'll go to the front and light it up for you." Henry used the phone in his hand, and the light shone on the corridor. He walked downstairs with his back to Sylvia.

Looking at the light in front of her, Sylvia suddenly felt a trace of sweetness in her heart.

The door of the Lins Building could be opened from the inside, and Sylvia naturally ignored the question of how Henry came in.

Anna's car was parked in the parking lot. When she saw Sylvia and Henry coming out together, she was not surprised and greeted them as usual.

Sylvia sat in the car with her little red face. What happened just now was her secret.

When a person had a good impression of a man, it was always inadvertently, inadvertently, touched over and over again. It was condensed into emotions.

The night passed quietly.

Early the next morning, Sylvia got up an hour early. This was what she had decided to do yesterday morning. She had experienced so much with Henry. Now she would feel uncomfortable if she let him do those chores again.

Sylvia, dressed in a sky-blue loose nightgown, walked around the room, but did not see Henry. A trace of doubt appeared on her pretty face.

The sound of people yawning came from outside the room.

Sylvia slightly frowned and walked out. She found that Henry was waving his fists at a tree in the courtyard. Now he was wearing shorts, shirtless, and his skin had a bronze luster. Every time Henry punched, his back muscles would bulge.

This was the first time that Sylvia had seen Henry like this. When she got up every day, she only saw him crawling on the ground and wiping the floor. She didn't know that he had the habit of punching.

The ferocious scars on Henry's back attracted Sylvia's attention. She stood at the door and looked at the man standing in the yard quietly.

After a set of boxing, Henry took a deep breath, turned around and saw Sylvia standing at the door. He was surprised and asked, "President Lin, you are awake?"

"Mmm." Sylvia nodded, pointed at Henry's back with her slender finger, and asked, "What are those?"

"Those." Henry smiled and put on his tank top. "It's all because of my ignorance before. I liked to fight with others. Haha, I'm going to prepare some toiletries for you."

With this, Henry walked toward the house.

"No, I'll prepare it myself in the future." Sylvia subconsciously reached out and pulled Henry's arm. She could feel the warmth of the man's arm. "And... We'll do the housework together in the future."

14:17

"Hmm?" Henry looked at Sylvia's reddish cheeks and was stunned for a moment. Then he nodded and said, "Okay."

Chapter 97

This was the first time that Sylvia had done housework. She simply glanced at the floor and could feel how hard it was for Henry to wipe the floor with his hands every day.

After an hour, most of the housework was done by Henry. Sylvia had only helped a little, and she was tired.

This made her feel more guilty. She really felt that she had gone too far before. Henry had just married into the family, but she had asked him to do so many things. What had he done wrong?

On the way to the company, Sylvia didn't say a word. She looked at the man sitting next to her with a bright smile on her face.

She thought.

Why not try to watch a movie with him?

"Bah, bah, bah!" How could she have such an idea? Even if they were going to watch a movie, he had to make the proposal. "What would it look like for me, a girl, to propose it?"

"President Lin, we're here."

Anna parked the car downstairs. Although she was said to be a personal bodyguard, she was not the kind of bodyguard who stayed with Sylvia all the time. Most of the time, she acted as a driver. Such bodyguards were the least likely to be noticed by others.

Although Henry and Sylvia came together, they had two different routes when they arrived at the company.

One went to the top floor and president's office, every word she said was extremely important.

The other one went to the business department and sat at the corner of his table, looking at the company culture materials.

At about 10:30 am.

"Well, your name is Henry Zhang, isn't it?" A middle-aged woman walked to Henry's desk and asked with uncertainty.

"Yes." Henry nodded. "What's wrong, miss?"

"Where did you go yesterday?" asked the middle-aged woman.

"Oh, I went out to deal with some business." Henry told the truth.

"Deal with business?" A suspicious look appeared on the middle-aged woman's face. She thought to herself, "How could a new intern deal with a business?"

"Yes." Henry nodded.

The middle-aged woman thought for a moment and thought that Henry was lying. She showed a disdainful expression on the spot. She did not expose Henry and said, "Okay, the manager asked you to go to her office after you arrived."

"Okay." Henry put down the materials in his hand and walked toward the business manager's office.

Before he left, Henry's cell phone rang. It was Sylvia.

"What are you doing?" she asked directly on the phone.

"Working in business department."

Sylvia said in a somewhat anxious tone, "Why are you in the business department? Today we have made an appointment to meet President Ma of the Medical Association. He has been waiting for you for a long time. Hurry up!"

"Ah? I don't know?" Henry looked confused. "Where should we meet?"

"In the Chinese Medicine clinic. You were there when we talked about cooperation yesterday, weren't you?"

"Uh..." Henry looked a little embarrassed. "I didn't listen."

When they were talking about cooperation yesterday, Henry stood aside and listened for a while, but his mind was all on Sylvia. He didn't listen to anything about the cooperation.

"Alas." Sylvia sighed helplessly and did not blame Henry. "Go ahead now. I'll tell President Ma. Don't think that you can look down on President Ma because you have the confidence now."

"Well, I know." Henry hung up the phone, passed by the manager's office naturally, went out of the business department, and went straight to the clinic of traditional Chinese medicine.

In the office of the business manager, Gina Lok, who was wearing a gray business suit and had a beautiful face, sat in front of the office and waited for a long time, but she did not see any man.

"Sister Hong!" Gina called.

Soon, the middle-aged woman who just called Henry ran into the office.

"Manager Lok, are you looking for me?"

"Where is the man named Henry Zhang?"

"Ah? He didn't come over?" Sister Hong looked surprised. "I informed him."

Gina looked impatient. She had never seen such a bold employee. On the first day of work, he skipped work for half a day. She asked someone to find him, but he just ignored her.

"Call again!"

"Okay." Sister Hong nodded and walked out of the office.

A few minutes later, Sister Hong knocked on the door and entered the office.

"Where is he?" asked Gina.

"I can't find him..."

"What?" Gina was so angry that her face turned pale.

As the person involved, Henry naturally did not know that he had already pissed off the manager of the department and was swaying towards the clinic of traditional Chinese medicine.

In the Chinese Medicine clinic, five physicians headed by President Ma were fiercely negotiating with the elite team that came yesterday.

President Ma said that there were one-fifth of the doctors in their Medical Association who could come to the newly established hospital of Lins Group. They would had a fixed time to work in the hospital every month. They hoped that Lins Group could let the Chinese Medicine training be held twice a week.

The elite team of the Lins Group said that this Chinese medicine training would be held once every week, and they hoped that more than 10 doctors from the Medical Association would come to work in the hospital held by the Lins Group every week.

Because of these two questions, the two sides had been discussing for more than half an hour and had been arguing non-stop. The medical association did not give in at all, and the elite team of Lins Group was also fighting for the most benefits.

Seeing that the cooperation negotiations were in a stalemate, the elites of the Lins Group made some private discussions, and finally decided to take a step back. The training would be held twice a week, and the number of medical staff could be reduced to eight.

Just as the people of the Lins Group were about to set their bottom line, Henry came.

"Oh, it's quite lively here."

Henry put his hands in his pockets and walked into the clinic. Outside the clinic, he heard a fierce discussion from inside.

When the elites of the Lins Group saw Henry, they all smiled at him to show their kindness.

"Brother Zhang, you're here." The leader bowed his head and greeted him.

Just yesterday, they learned that this Brother Zhang did not ask for any commission after negotiating such a big project. He gave all of it to them, which made them particularly grateful to Henry.

"Yeah." Henry nodded and made a gesture to them. "Be casual. What do you want to talk about? Let me hear it."

Henry pulled a stool and sat down at the negotiation table.

When President Ma and the other five doctors saw Henry, they all gave him a friendly smile.

"Well..." The leader of the Lins was silent for a moment and said, "Brother Zhang, we think that we should hold a medical training once a week in the future. We hope that the Medical Association will select ten experienced doctors and they would work in our hospital twice a week."

"This is a little inappropriate, isn't it?" Henry frowned. "As far as I know, now there is a shortage of medical resources. Some experienced doctors have their schedule full couple of days in advance. It's not realistic for you to make them come to our hospital and and work twice a week."

Chapter 98

"Yes, yes, the young master is right." President Ma nodded repeatedly. "There is indeed a shortage of medical resources now. It is difficult to do it once a week, let alone twice a week."

"Erm..." The leader of the Lins hesitated for a moment and said nothing. He really didn't expect that Brother Zhang would speak for him as soon as he came here. In fact, he was a little unhappy because he knew that the reason why Brother Zhang could talk about the list of the hospital was not because of his level of negotiation, but his medical skills. In terms of negotiation, he was the most professional one.

"Isn't this brother's arrival a bad thing?"

Team members looked back and forth, with a bitter smile on their faces.

"Brother Zhang, what do you think, is  This team leader asked Henry's opinion. It was not good for him to embarrass Henry.

"I'm thinking..." Henry leaned against the chair, stretched out three fingers, and kept hitting the table. "President Ma's words just now are very reasonable. Not to mention coming to our hospital twice a week, even once, time is a little tight. At that time, everyone will be in a bad mood."

"Yes, yes." President Ma nodded repeatedly.

"Well, that's what I mean. In that case, why do the people of the Medical Association come to hospital?" Henry replied, "How about this? After the hospital is finished, half of the Ning Province Medical Association will come to work at our Lins hospital full-time. At the same time, the training will be once every month. The specific details will be set by me. If the people of the other provincial medical association want to attend, they must agree to work at our Lins hospital. That's all I want." Henry replied.

"This..."

As soon as Henry finished his words, both President Ma and the members of Lins Group opened their mouths wide.

Compared with Henry's current conditions, what they had been arguing about for half a day was not even a option.

President Ma gave a flattering smile. "Young master, look at this, aren't we..."

"There's no need to discuss it." Henry interrupted before President Ma could finish his words. "I'll still say the same thing. If your Province Medical Association disagrees, our Lins Group will go to other provinces to find partners."

Henry's expression was very firm, and he was not joking at all.

President Ma and others looked back and forth, with bitter smiles on their faces.

Could they give up the cooperation? No.  he gave up the chance to learn excellent medical skills like the shaking needles, he would regret it forever.

"Ah." President Ma sighed. "Young master, you really put us in a difficult position. I'll discuss your proposal in a meeting today."

"Whatever," Henry said indifferently, "That's my condition. The result of your meeting has nothing to do with me. As said, if you don't agree with my condition, our Lins Group will cooperate with other medical association. That's it."

After Henry finished speaking, he stood up and left directly, not giving President Ma and others a chance to speak again.

The medical department fell into silence for several minutes.

In the end, Lin's leader broke the silence and said, "President Ma, you mean..."

"What else can I say?" President Ma rolled his eyes. "Let's sign the contract according to the little master's words."

Seeing President Ma's attitude, the elite team of Lin's group, though superficially, did not speak, but in their hearts, they admired Henry more than a little.

"You're so awesome, Brother Zhang!"

After dealing with the matter here, Henry returned to the company. It was already lunch time, and he just had a meal in the canteen. When he went to work in the afternoon, Henry entered the gate of the business department again.

As soon as he entered the department, Henry remembered that it seemed that the business manager was looking for him in the morning.

He walked toward the manager's office and knocked on the door, but no one responded for a long time.

"Henry, where did you go in the morning?"

Sister Hong appeared in front of him with a face of blame and questioned him.

"I went to finish some business," Henry answered matter-of-factly.

Sister Hong's face turned black, and she was completely disappointed with Henry. A new worker who had just come to work yesterday ran around at work, and he was still lying. This kind of person was really hopeless.

"The manager has gone out. You can go back to your seat." Sister Hong waved her hand impatiently.

Henry wondered why this woman suddenly had such a big problem with him, but he was too lazy to pay attention to it. He had read most of the company's policies yesterday, and this morning he read them more thoroughly from the beginning to the end.

Henry didn't have much to do this afternoon. He simply turned on computer and watched some Chinese medicine teaching videos on the Internet. He was not learning medical skills, but learning how to teach his students.

Before, Henry had taught some students, but they were all world-famous famous doctors and had a good foundation. When Henry taught, they could understand what he said.

The people he was about to teach now, for Henry, were just a group of beginners. Naturally, he couldn't teach them as casually as before.

Henry thought about it before watching the video. He thought that he was not doing private things at work, after all, he was doing it for work.

When Sister Hong saw that Henry did not read the rules, she looked at the computer video with interest. She took a small video on the spot and sent it to Gina with an attached sentence.

"Manager Luo, this person is back, but I asked him to read the rules. He didn't do it. He watched the video all afternoon. We can't let such a person stay here."

After finishing all this, Sister Hong sent a message to another person on the phone.

"Son, there should be no big problem for you to enter the Lins Group. I've been preparing for these two days. You should have a good look at the questions I told you last time."

Sister Hong sent a message, with a sneer on her face.

At about 4:30 p.m., Henry closed the webpage after watching the teaching video for the whole afternoon. It was quite boring. He packed up the things on the table and was ready to get off work.

A woman in her twenties with a hot figure clapped her hands and said loudly, "Come on, put down your work and listen!"

Everyone's eyes were on this woman.

"Manager Luo just called to explain that everyone should work overtime today. Now all the people in the department should go to Glory Hotel and have a big client to accompany. Miss Sun, you are responsible for the reservation. There are six people there, all of whom are French. Let's see how many of us are going. Today is a big project. Everyone has to go, including the newcomer. Your name is Henry, right? You have no problem with drinking, right?"

"Uh... No." Henry shook his head.

"Okay, let's get ready. The deal is going to be done today. Everyone in the department will get at least 1,000 yuan as a reward for each person. Be serious and good luck."

After the woman finished, the department fell into cheers. Everyone began to collect what was on the table. Then groups of people went downstairs, but no one took the initiative to greet Henry.

"Hey, brother, why did you transfer the business here?" A clear voice sounded behind Henry.
