

Chapter 855

After hearing Henry's words, Alvin's eyes gradually lit up. Looking at Alvin's appearance, Henry shook his head secretly.

Henry was right that the core of the world was money, and money was the most important thing. However, if put in a broader way, money had no value. Henry really didn't want to stimulate Alvin from this direction, because it would be easy to make a person go to the extreme.

Only, Henry discovered that Alvin had an inferiority complex.

When he first applied for the job, Alvin had been ridiculed by his classmates. Yesterday, he was ridiculed by his girlfriend, and today, he was looked down upon by a group of security companies. Alvin's ability to bear was limited. In particular, if it were someone else who just came out of school like Alvin, he would not have been able to bear all of that.

Alvin lacked self-confidence, so Henry could only use this extreme idea to expand Alvin's confidence. No matter from which aspect, it should be known that a self-abased person was more dangerous than a person who thought highly of himself.

Regarding money, Henry had told Alvin more than once that money is not an issue. And every time the effect of Henry's words was more obvious.

One could see that when Alvin's thoughts slowly began to change, the inferiority on his face slowly began to fade away, and the look in his eyes had also returned to normal.

The dinner was mainly about the commission and task distribution. Although these security companies looked disdainful and said that the task was easy, they all understood that it was not easy to go to the desert. There were more than a dozen people at a table. Except for the first toast, they didn't drink at all for the rest of the time. They only drank half a bottle of wine at each table and then all left.

In the middle of the night, Henry turned on his mobile phone and had a video chat with Sylvia for a long time before he fell asleep contentedly.

At three o'clock in the evening, the whole hotel, even the staff had fallen asleep. Delsean had booked the entire hotel. For the staff who were on the night shift, it was also a chance to relax. The people of the major security companies also made themselves sleep. They wanted to preserve their strength. After arriving in the desert, it would not be easy to sleep peacefully again.

At eight o'clock in the morning the next day, the sky was not yet bright, and the workers did not get up. Henry and others had already woke up, washed up, and got on the vehicles at the entrance of the hotel.

There were a total of 39 off-road vehicles parked in front of the hotel entrance. All the vehicles were white. The trunks were filled with supplies. There were five people arranged for each vehicle. A total of 195 people were arranged to set off!

There were thirty-nine vehicles, which looked so powerful when lined up in a long line on the road.

There was a distance of about 900 kilometres between Wulu City and Loulan. Fortunately, Xin province was sparsely populated. If it was a first-tier city, these thirty-nine vehicles, less than five kilometres away from the city, would have to separate, and wouldn't be able to form a team to move forward.

It was absolutely impossible to see the scenery of Xin province from the air. Driving all the way across the province could be regarded as a kind of enjoyment.

After getting out of Wulu City, they went on a broad road. The scenery on both sides of the road gave people a feeling of relaxation. It was completely different from the congested feeling of a first-tier or second-tier city. Here, it was as if they were hugging each other and the whole world belonged to them.

Looking at the scenery on the side of the road, Henry also had the urge to drive a car. Sitting in the car and listening to the birds gave Henry a different feeling.

In each vehicle, there was a walkie-talkie. There were many unoccupied areas in Xin province. Along the way, there were many places without signal. The walkie-talkies were to prevent cars from getting lost. After all, it was impossible to keep the fleet intact for 900 kilometers.

After more than two hundred kilometres, Henry changed his position with Alvin, allowing Alvin to drive the car. Listening to music, Henry placed one hand on the window and tapped in the rhythm on his legs with the other hand. This road gave people a very relaxed feeling and they were not worried about traffic jams at all.

Just as Henry was enjoying this feeling of relaxation, a cross-country vehicle of the same motorcade suddenly accelerated and drove from the back of Henry's car at fast speed. After it passed half of Henry's car, it suddenly hit Henry from the side.

Seeing that the other side's rear end was about to hit the front of his car, Alvin, who was driving, subconsciously took a turn.

On such a wide road, the speed of the car was maintained at a speed of 100 kilometres per hour. In addition, the chassis of the off-road vehicle was high. Even if Alvin had pressed the brake, which made the vehicle slow down before it changed direction, it still made the body tilt to a certain degree, which made Alvin break out in a cold sweat.

Alvin looked forward and saw the driver's window of the car in front of him, reaching out a hand and showing his middle finger. Then the front car suddenly slowed down, and Alvin once again subconsciously stepped hard on the brake, causing the people in the car to fall forward due to inertia. The whole car suddenly stopped on the road. This kind of rapid brake would make people feel sick and uncomfortable.

When Alvin came to his senses, the car was already far away.

"Hey, turtle pulled over." Another car roared past, and there was a burst of laughter in the car. Then, the front car suddenly threw out a glass bottle and fell heavily on the front of Alvin's car. The bottle was blown up, and glass fragments were scattered everywhere. A piece of red liquid splashed on the head of the car, and even on the windshield.

Alvin turned on the window cleaners, only to find that the liquid couldn't be wiped clean at all. Taking a closer look, he found that the red liquid turned out to be some kind of paint. He had to get out of the car and use a cloth to wipe it off. The paint had been wiped out, but the glass was very dirty. If he wanted to clean it thoroughly, he had to wait until the next service station. And the whole car, from the outside, was also a mess.

Alvin opened the door and sat back in the car. He said, "Mr. Zhang, it's the staff of Blessing Security."

"Yes, I saw it." Henry nodded.

"Mr. Zhang, they've gone too far." Alvin clenched his fists.

"Yes, they've gone too far." Henry adjusted a comfortable position. "I'll give you a chance. What do you want to do? To catch up with them and retaliate in the same way, to block them and teach them a good lesson?"

"No, we can't use the same method." Alvin shook his head. "That's too dangerous. I'll go and discuss it with them later!"

Alvin said as he started the car again.

Henry squinted out of the window with a smile on his face.

Discuss? If discussing was useful, the underground world wouldn't exist anymore!

Chapter 856

Alvin controlled his mood and looked back, finding that the three security members, who were sitting in back seats, were still chatting happily as if nothing had happened. Henry was also leaning leisurely there, continuing to listen to the music and follow the beat with his hands.

Alvin started the car, but because of the windshield, he couldn't drive fast all the way. From time to time, he saw cars coming from behind. When the people from Blessing Security and Vigour Security caught up with Henry's car, they would laugh at it. This kind of mocking sound, in the ears of Alvin, made him feel particularly wronged. The hand holding the steering wheel gradually increased its strength, and his palms were sweaty.

Henry saw all this and did not say anything.

In this way, they drove for dozens of kilometres. After tens of kilometres, Alvin finally saw a gas station where there was a place to wash the car.

Alvin directly drove the car to the cleaning area without adding petrol. As a result, when he arrived at the cleaning area, he found that there were three parked cars in front of the area blocking the entrance.

There were three washed cars, two of which belonged to Blessing Security, and one of belonged to Vigour Security.

The people from the three cars were all sitting on one side, holding some food, boasting and eating.

"Can you move the car?" Alvin parked the car in front of the people and asked.

"Move the car? Why?" The man from Blessing Security looked confused.

Alvin took a deep breath, pressed down the anger in his heart, pointed to the three cars in front of the entrance, and said, "Have you finished washing the three cars? Let us wash our car after you finish."

"Oh." The man nodded and looked at the entrance of the cleaning area. Then he said, "I haven't washed it yet. It's still early."

After that, the guard from Blessing Security continued to sit there and eat.

"You!" Alvin pinched the steering wheel hard.

"What?" A person from Vigour Security suddenly stood up and glared at Alvin. "What are you talking about? What's wrong? Do you want to fight? Come on, get off the car!"

As the person from Vigour Security said so, he rushed straight up and tried to pull Alvin's car door.

Alvin closed the car door subconsciously and closed the window at the same time.

Vigour Security guard rushed up and kicked hard on the door, making a "dong" sound. Through the window, he reached out and pointed to Alvin. He kept cursing, which was particularly unpleasant. He cursed all the members of Alvin's family.

Alvin was sitting in the car, and the sound outside came into his ears faintly, which made him so angry that he was shaking.

Alvin subconsciously looked at Henry, who was sitting next to him. He found that Henry was still lying there comfortably with his eyes closed, as if he had fallen asleep. The three people in the back seat were still chatting, as if the things outside had nothing to do with them at all.

Alvin stared at the burly man outside the car. His hand was on the buckle several times, but he didn't have the courage to open the door.

Seeing Alvin and others hide in the car, the man outside the car raised his middle finger. The man of Blessing Security took out two bottles of paint from the car. He painted on Alvin's car. After he finished, he returned to his car leisurely, lit a cigarette, and laid down for more than half an hour before he slowly drove the car away, leaving an empty entrance in front of Alvin.

Alvin looked at the three cars going far away, opened the door, got out of the car, and saw that many bad words were written on the car. Alvin had never heard of these vicious words before, and there were many vivid images drawn on the car to express these abuse words.

Alvin took a deep breath, returned to the car, drove the car to the cleaning area, and turned the water gun to wash. But the paint had already dried on the car, so it was extremely difficult to wash it. Alvin could only wipe the paint bit by bit with a rag.

When Alvin wiped away the paint, the words of abuse were once again engraved in his mind. He couldn't help it even if he didn't want to.

It took two hours for Alvin to wipe off the paint. In the process, Henry had been sitting in the car and looking at Alvin.

Two hours later, Alvin got back to the car. He didn't say a word. After starting the engine, he drove on the road.

Henry sat in the passenger seat and looked at the silent Alvin. Henry understood that at this moment, the seed of hatred had sprouted in Alvin's heart, but it was not enough.

Alvin felt inferior, which was more serious than Henry had thought. This kind of cowardice would make it difficult for Alvin to vent his anger, but once it did, it would be very terrible.

Some people had said that they would either die in silence, or explode in silence.

Usually, it would take nine hours to pass a distance of 900 kilometres, excluding all the accidents that happened on the road. Even on such an empty road without cars, it took more than ten hours in total. In addition, there were a few road signs there. Sometimes, when they entered the uninhabited area, they would be in danger of losing their way. The 900 kilometres of travel was divided into two days by Delsean.

Today, everyone would gather in Ku City.

Ku City was located in the southern part of Mount Tian Shan. On the south, there was the Takla Makan desert, the second largest desert in the world. It was the most important part of the Silk Road in the past. Ku City was also famous all over the country because it was in the centre of Xin province. People who came to Xin province to travel would choose to visit this city. Over time, Ku City had also become a tourist attraction, and there were a lot of hotels and hostels.

Before Delsean came, he had already booked a hotel. Everyone would stay here for a short time. After a night's rest, they would leave early the next morning.

When Alvin and others arrived, it was already a little late, and people from major security companies had already got their rooms.

Those Reapers who had arrived early had also received Henry's order. They didn't wait for them and went to bed early. They didn't even stay for dinner.

Alvin drove to the front entrance of the hotel. It looked empty, giving people a feeling of extreme desolation, which would make people seriously lack a sense of security.

"Mr. Zhang, we're here." Alvin stopped the car, and his words were full of apologies.

"Then go to bed early. We're going to the desert tomorrow." Henry didn't say anything more. He opened the door, got out of the car, and went to the hotel. From beginning to end, he didn't look at Alvin at all.

Henry's attitude made Alvin feel bitter in his heart. He also understood that he really didn't behave properly today.

Just as Alvin was thinking that he must drive carefully tomorrow to give Blessing Security no chance to take advantage of them, a stone suddenly fell from above, hit heavily on the windshield of Alvin's car, and cracked the whole windshield.
