

Chapter 897

Henry thought that Alvin would say that he should not be so impulsive, but he did not expect that Alvin actually said that.

This time Alvin was not in that desperate environment and had also been seeing a psychologist for a few days. The choice he made now was the result of his deep thought.

"Why did you suddenly say that?" Henry asked curiously.

"In fact, when you said that you wanted me to kill them, I was really scared and felt that it was too cruel. But I've been thinking for the past few days. If they hadn't forced me to do that, how could I have the idea of killing them? In the final analysis, I made the wrong choice at that time. It was my fault that I didn't have the courage." At this time, Alvin's eyes flashed with a hint of fierceness. "If I had another chance, I could have wielded my knife anyhow."

When Henry heard Alvin's words, he suddenly understood what the psychologist meant.

The psychologist had been giving him directions because she hoped that what happened in the desert would not affect Alvin. But she never thought that Alvin wanted to go back to the desert again and gather up the courage he lacked at that time.

"No chance." Henry shook his head. "Everyone can make their choice at the beginning. Everyone makes mistakes and everyone has some regrets. What you have to do is to do it well next time, understand?"

"Yes." Alvin nodded.

"Well, take a good rest these two days. I will arrange a new position for you in a few days. Before that, I have to confirm one thing with you." Henry looked at Alvin seriously.

Alvin nodded and said, "Mr. Zhang, go ahead."

"After this incident in the desert, do you still want to become stronger? I have to tell you beforehand that if you choose to do so, the things that you have to do next will be much crueller than that time."

"I want to be stronger!" Alvin replied without hesitation.

"You don't need to answer me that fast." Henry shook his head. "These two days, you can rest and think about it at the same time. Someone will contact you in a few days. Remember, it is very important to make a good choice."

After Henry said that, he patted Alvin on the shoulder and then turned away.

Alvin took a deep breath, and his eyes shone with determination.

After leaving the hospital, Henry looked at the time. It was over nine o'clock in the morning. He tightened his open collar. Although the cold wind could not affect him, Henry still subconsciously did this.

Henry came to the Lins Group, and the beautiful girl at the front desk greeted him respectfully.

Henry heard the crisp and sweet greeting and suddenly remembered that when he first came to the Lins Group, his relationship with Sylvia was not so harmonious as it was now. He still remembered that when he first came, Amity was standing at the front desk. It had only been a few months, but it made Henry feel it had been a long time. Just because there were too many things in the past few months.

Henry walked past the front desk and was about to walk towards the elevator. When he passed the reception room on the first floor, he heard quarrels from inside.

"I don't care what you say. Now you have to take this land back. Even if you don't want, you have to. Do you understand?" A middle-aged man's voice came from the reception room.

"Mr. Frazer, there's no reason for us to take it back." Secretary Lee's voice sounded awkward.

"Haha, our contract clearly states that this piece of land covers 51,300 square meters, but now there are 63 square metres more. You people from the Lins Group have cheated on us, so what's wrong with me asking you to take it back?" The middle-aged man's voice rang out again.

Henry, who was passing by, heard the voice and stopped. Then he turned around, pushed the door open and walked into the living room. He saw a man about fifty years old holding a few documents and beating on the table.

Cathy, the secretary, was standing in front of him with an anxious look on her face.

"What's the matter? What land?" Henry asked as soon as he entered the door.

"Who are you?" The middle-aged man glanced at Henry and said, "Ask President Lin to come."

"This is Mr. Zhang, President Lin's husband," Cathy explained.

Upon hearing Henry's identity, the middle-aged man withdrew his disdainful look and immediately said, "Ok, let's talk. When Lins Group was selling this piece of land, the size was 51300 square meters, but now there are 60 square meters more, which is inconsistent with the contract. You must take this land back!"

Hearing this, Henry had a strange look on his face. He had seen people who went to court because there were a few square meters less, but he had never seen people who wanted to go to court because there were more square metres. Was it not good to get something for free?

"Which land?" Henry looked at Secretary Lee.

Cathy, the secretary, replied, "Mr. Zhang, President Lin bought the land around the old welfare home and sold the land that was a bit further away."

When Henry heard this, he suddenly understood.

The official rules were clear. One company's land could not exceed a certain size. After those events happened in the old welfare home, Sylvia bought all the land around in order not to cause any accidents, which led to the fact that some lands in the surrounding area had to be sold by the Lins.

As for the land sold by the Lins Group, it was bought immediately, because many people saw that the Lins had bought a large piece of land and gathered together. It was likely that they were doing business development. In this way, the price of the land around them would soar.

Cathy, the secretary, continued, "Yesterday, the official tender was held and we also participated in it. And we won the bid successfully. But we didn't use the pieces of land in the old district as the centre, so..."

Before the secretary finished her words, Henry understood what she meant. It was just that Mr. Frazer in front of him didn't intend to use that land, and the land around him wouldn't be developed further, so he wanted the Lins to take the land back.

After all, when the Lins were selling the land, many people thought that it might increase their value, so they had to pay a higher price than the market price. Now, they realized that Lin's project was not connected to that piece of land, so it was impossible for them to sell it at the buying price. Therefore, they had made a lot of efforts and finally used the larger area of land as an excuse to give it back. This was really hard for them.

Henry looked at the middle-aged man and said, "Mr. Frazer, right? About this land, our Lins Group can't buy it for the time being. After all, our land in this area is full, and it will be troublesome to do more formalities, and this land will definitely..."

"I don't want to listen to these bullsh*t. Now it's different from what is written on the contract. You must take it back!" Mr. Frazer said toughly.