

Mission To Remarry Chapter 1005

At first, Roxanne thought the two of them would not be able to cope with all the work. Somehow, the children were very cooperative. Hence, she could not tell if it was because of the gifts she had prepared.

Both Roxanne and Jack treated the patients in an orderly fashion. Perhaps it was because the orphanage was in a city and had better facilities compared to the previous one.

Apart from some congenital disabilities, the children were mostly fine. As the number of children still waiting in line gradually reduced, Roxanne, too, gradually felt more relaxed.

When the last child in line entered the tent, Roxanne took out a stuffed bunny and gave it to him. Surprised, the boy looked up and thanked her politely, "Thank you, Ms. Jarvis!" He then carefully took the stuffed bunny from her.

Roxanne could not help but pat him on the head, beaming. Suddenly, she noticed he looked extremely pale, and the sight of that made her heart sink. She immediately asked him in concern, "Do you normally have any discomfort?"

Hearing that, the boy frowned and mulled briefly before answering with hesitance, "My heart feels uncomfortable sometimes."

His words brought a frown to Roxanne's face, and she pressed on, "Can you tell me in detail?"

but it goes

"Dear, could you lie on this bed?"

boy climbed onto the bed obediently. Then, Roxanne began

The boy was suffering from a severe case of arrhythmia. However,

they had discovered his out her acupuncture tools while comforting the boy, "This might hurt a little. Please bear with going to do, the stuffed bunny in his arms gave him a strange sense of courage, and he nodded in

head and began

could help reduce the symptoms of arrhythmia which was something about to insert the last needle, Jack's point might be

her movements, and she cast a confused glance at