

Mission To Remarry Chapter 723

Chapter 723 Shocking News

Although he was initially surprised by Roxanne's words, Jack quickly found it reasonable after giving it some thought.

After all, from the first day he met her, he knew that she wasn't someone to shy away from a challenge.

With that thought in mind, he gave the lady sitting in the backseat a look of admiration through the rearview mirror.

When he saw the resolve written all over Roxanne's face, Jack couldn't help but feel moved by it.

Finally, they made their way through the heavy traffic and managed to arrive at the restaurant right on the dot.

They expected Jessica to have arrived; however, the latter was nowhere to be seen.

As the empty table caused both of them to exchange glances, a sense of dread descended upon the two of them concurrently.

"I'll call and check," Jack suggested with a cocked brow once they took their seats.

could feel an inexplicable sense of

"Jack, have you arrived?"

voice rang out the

the phone on speaker, Jack grunted in response that moment, Jessica—sitting languidly in the café next door—replied with an apologetic tone, “I’m really sorry. Please wait a few more minutes for me, as I’m currently each other. Although they were skeptical about it, they couldn’t find any fault with the excuse since it was did hold them back for result, Jessica would naturally take longer since Hightower residence was even further Jack replied grimly, “All right then. There’s no need to rush. Just across Jessica’s eyes, she didn’t let it affect her cordial tone. “As I’ll probably be stuck here for a while, there’s no need to wait for me. I’ll get the Jack wanted to decline, the waiter arrived with the food. Having no other choice but to accept the

and Roxanne assumed that she

the food in front of them with neither

both of them felt