

Mission To Remarry Chapter 726

Chapter 726 I Cannot Forgive You

The next morning, while Roxanne was having breakfast with the children before sending them to school, the doorbell suddenly rang. The ring caused Roxanne and the boys to exchange glances as the same thought popped into their minds—Lucian and Estella were there.

After all, both of them usually dropped by at that hour. Without a second thought, Roxanne got up and opened the door. She was subsequently greeted by the sight of her best friend looking all anxious.

“Did something happen?” A sinking feeling crept into her heart. The frowning Madilyn stretched her head to look at the children—who were busy eating—before pulling Roxanne out the door.

Cognizant that it was something the children weren’t supposed to know, Roxanne followed the former to the yard. “What’s wrong?”

“Did you see the news in the morning?” Madilyn sounded exceptionally grim. Hearing that, Roxanne shook her head in response as she was clueless.

As Lysa was held back by something at home and couldn’t come to work for the week, she had woken up early in the morning to prepare breakfast and watch the children eat.

Consequently, she didn’t have time to read the morning news at all.

Nevertheless, Roxanne could tell from Madilyn’s expression that something grave had happened.

brows, Madilyn didn’t even know how to happened?" Madilyn's reaction told Roxanne that it was something related to her. She repeated with a frown, "If around to go back

They accuse both of you of being close and suspect that greatly resented the news—spoke in spite of that, Roxanne face darkened, as

My date with Jack...

came to mind was the

were three of us. How did it end of racking her brain, an image suddenly flashed

for a long time even though both of

would be swarmed by reporters there. Also,

well aware of the gravity of the

she was certain of her innocence, the media wasn't going to