

Mission To Remarry Chapter 783

Upon hearing that, Aubree pushed her guilt aside and snapped, "What are you saying, Lucian? My dad is still angry right now. How can I go back?"

How can I leave so easily when it took me so much effort to move into the manor?

Unfazed, Lucian looked at her emotionlessly. "Then go to a hotel. The entire manor has only been disinfected one time. I don't know if there are more bacteria hiding around, but what I do know is that if I let you stay here despite knowing you might get infected, I wouldn't know what to tell the elders."

Although what he said were words of concern, he sounded apathetic. A chill ran down Aubree's spine. She wasn't stupid, for she knew that it was just an excuse from Lucian to chase her out.

Sadly, she didn't have any valid reasons to insist on staying.

At that realization, she started hating Estella for recovering so fast. I should've let her suffer more!

"I'll wait for you in the car." Lucian didn't plan to give Aubree a chance to speak. He left the mansion right after he finished his sentence.

Aubree gritted her teeth in anger as she watched him leave. I did all this because I wanted to teach that little b*tch a lesson, yet I was hoisted by my own petard and gave Lucian a valid reason to chase me away! Looks like I have no other choice but to leave.

a long while before she went upstairs unwillingly to pack had swapped back last night, she clenched her planned to get rid of the thing in the morning until Lucian denied her of the chance the risk and leave the building with

Aubree intentionally packed some time and asked politely, "Do you need my help, Ms.

her departure any longer, so he had sent Catalina knew what Catalina's presence meant. She closed the luggage with a luggage downstairs with even alight from the car. It was a housekeeper who helped her show it on her face. All she could do was walk to the passenger to pull the door open, she pulling the handle twice, she still couldn't open the door. Dumbstruck, she stared at the

about the details and definitely wouldn't have done something so