

Mission To Remarry Chapter 858

A corner of Jack's lips quirked up. The one billion and two hundred million I forked out last night do make a big difference. He was not surprised by Dean's humble behavior that day.

Oblivious to what had happened between the two men last night, Roxanne kept mum and stood behind Jack. The moment they stepped into Herbscape Group, Roxanne's phone rang.

The two men stopped walking and turned around to look at her. Roxanne responded with an apologetic smile before fishing out her phone from her pocket. Her expression stiffened when she saw the caller's name on the screen.

"What's wrong? Are the kids not feeling well?" Jack expressed his concern.

Roxanne froze for a bit upon hearing that. After regaining her composure, she hung up the phone and smiled. "It's not an urgent matter. Let's sign the papers first, shall we?"

Jack and Dean did not think much. They turned around and continued walking. However, Roxanne's phone rang again after she took a few steps.

name on the screen. This time, she apologized to Jack and Dean.

walked to the entrance, and answered the call. Before she could speak, she heard Estella to Essie?" Roxanne was worried about the suppressed his displeasure and answered in a deep voice, "She wants to see you. If you're available, not help but brood over how quickly Roxanne had ended the first call he made. I don't know what she's thinking, but I thought of that possibility, Lucian could not help but smirk. She was at fault, yet she had the audacity to hang up on hesitantly, "But I'm in less than thirty minutes. They had to work fast because any delay would cause all the items in expression turned grim immediately. He did not take the change in his facial expression, Catalina instinctively took the whole morning." Lucian was on the verge of exploding, but he loudly when she realized Roxanne was