

Mission To Remarry Chapter 976

Thirty minutes later, Sonya's car slowly came to a halt at the entrance of the Farwell residence. By then, Estella, who was sitting in the back seat, had gone quiet.

Sonya heaved a sigh of relief inwardly because she thought Estella was finally done crying after crying throughout the journey home. To her surprise, she saw that Estella's face was still covered in tears when she opened the car door.

Estella had gotten tired from all the crying, but she was still crying silently. Upon seeing Sonya opening the door, Estella didn't even bother turning her head toward Sonya.

Sonya's heart ached when she saw her granddaughter sobbing silently. She reached out to lift Estella into her arms and consoled helplessly, "Why are you still crying? Do you really like Roxanne that much? Do I not treat you well enough?"

Estella shook her head. Sonya's heart sank when she saw that. Is Essie turning rebellious because of Roxanne? This little girl doesn't even want me anymore.

Her anger toward Roxanne intensified. Right when Sonya was about to say something, Estella suddenly wrapped her arms around Sonya's neck.

She was using her actions to show Sonya that she was still fond of her. Noticing the gesture, Sonya felt better, and her expression softened.

wiping the tears off Estella's cheeks, Sonya said, "Listen to me, okay? Since she doesn't to abandon Estella had always been a thorn in Sonya's know what Sonya was talking about. She thought that moment, Sonya felt utterly helpless and frustrated. All she could do was she saw them walking in. She had she finished her sentence, she

Quick!" Sonya then patted Estella's head and coaxed in a gentle tone, "What would you like to eat, Essie? I'll get

Estella toward the

Estella suddenly called out and let Sonya was stunned.

second, she heard a set of heavy footsteps

heard her son saying unhappily, "Didn't you say you