

Mission To Remarry Chapter 986

While that was happening, Sonny had also informed Sonya that Lucian was unwell. Although she had previously gotten into an argument with Lucian, she still decided to personally check in on her son upon learning of his condition.

“Mrs. Farwell.” When Catalina saw Sonya walking through the door, she could not help thinking about how the mother-son pair had quarreled the last time. She hesitated, wondering whether to let the latter go upstairs or not.

Naturally, Sonya paid no mind to her hesitation. “Is Lucian in his room?” Catalina nodded. “He’s not feeling well and is resting. How about—”

Before she could finish her sentence, Sonya interrupted impatiently, “My son has fallen ill. As his mother, of course I want to see him.”

With that, she strode upstairs.

Not daring to stop her, Catalina could only trail behind awkwardly.

Over in the bedroom, Lucian thought it was Catalina coming to check on him again when he heard a knock on the door.

“Come in,” he responded in a low voice.

ring out.

drew together sharply as he turned toward the

over to his bed, pulled also said something is bothering you. Is it because of Roxanne? What makes her worth your worry? Back then, that woman left without a word. She bothered to argue with her and merely replied, “You’re he ignored her and closed his

that he was trying to avoid the topic, and anger

I don’t care about your health. It’s just that the cause of your illness is completely unacceptable to her. “If you care

still felt like venting, but she suppressed the urge to do so when she seconds, then stood up expressionlessly. "I'll get Aubree to come and look after you. You'd better not send her spun on her heel

felt a sense of helplessness at the

had to hurry after her respectfully

Sonya leave, she turned around and well and Sonya had purposely come to