

Spoiled by Mr. Russell Chapter 1056

It was unclear whether she was considered lucky after that, but after avoiding several crises, she appeared to be able to live normally at last. However, from that day on, she lost herself. She was no longer herself but rather the shadow of her elder sister, Heather.

Heather would only appear if needed. Otherwise, she was nowhere to be found.

She was content at the time because she could at least live in peace and stability. On the island, the scope of her activities was quite limited, so the effect of being restrained was not very big.

She was never completely satisfied, and as she grew older and made contact with more people and places, the more she yearned for. She wanted to be able to dance on the street in skirts like other girls, to fall in love, and to eat cream and cakes without fear of getting fat, but in the end, she could not do any of those things.

those, then Hannah could not either. Hannah was not herself probably a legend. No one knows if it's true. Will it ruin mother. Don't you understand? This is the life of the Riggs family. You're still alive now, and you can still stand here and talk to me about how ruined your life is. However, you're only here because I let you be my shadow, so

two sisters could stay, and definitely the Heather did not know that much when she was younger, she felt Hannah should be grateful to her for being alive. If it were not for Heather, Hannah would probably be dead about fairness and wanting to be herself? What sounded like a wake-up call,