Spoiled by Mr. Russell Chapter 1065

'That's why I said it's my duty as a grandmother to help you prepare for the wedding. It's not a bother at all. Even if it's troublesome, I'm happy to help." Margaret was still smiling, but her smile used to look a lot more benevolent.

She seemed to have anticipated Alexander's refusal and continued, "Of course, it makes sense for Lily to get more rest since she's pregnant, but she can't stay home all day either. It's not good for the baby. Lily, you must occasionally walk around to get some fresh air.

"Alex, you have been with your grandfather since you were a child and didn't spend much time with me. Then you became busier when you grew up. Since it's so rare for me to be with you, you should spend some time with me now.

"Can you do that for me? I'm getting older, and I don't have much time left. I thought, why not just enjoy our time while I'm still around?" There were tears in Margaret's eyes as she spoke, and she looked sad.

Alexander and Lily sat there in silence. They typically fell for soft words rather than a tough argument. They thought it was best if Margaret showed her tough side, but she used a different tactic this time. She even mentioned Hugo, which would give Alexander a more challenging time refusing his grandmother's offer.

meant," Alexander said, "I that you might get too tired," Lily interjected and continued," It's not that we don't appreciate your kindness, but we're afraid you might get too stressed. Still, you're right. I should occasionally a bit too sensitive. Since we're on the same page, accompany me while I go

Lily said. She wiped the tears from the the elderly, Lily. Since your wife has agreed, what do

I know you've been bored at changed their clothes while Margaret scanned the house. The house was so big, and she did not know where Alexander would hide the handbook. She did all she could, and when the couple came down the stairs. She casually stuffed the ring she removed from her finger into car, and the car drove off.