

Spoiled by Mr. Russell Chapter 1069

Ralph ran straight to the first floor. He did not know which room was Alexander's bedroom, but as he observed the rooms along the corridor, one door to a room was tightly shut. There was obviously something in the room.

He walked toward the bedroom, and as he was about to turn the knob, he stopped. If this was Alexander's bedroom and the book was in there, he would not be able to enter that easily. Ralph was sure that this room would be filled with traps.

Alexander was a cautious person. He had ensured that his house was well- equipped with the latest security measures. It was impossible that he would leave this room unsecured.

With this in mind, Ralph carefully turned the doorknob, and he was surprised to find that the room was unlocked. This was very suspicious.

was already here. He took out a piece of wood from his pocket and pushed the door open with it. He investigated the slightly ajar door and saw a huge did not rush into the room abruptly either. He made of overlapping laser beams appeared in the vast bedroom. Ralph smirked in satisfaction as he applauded himself for being well-prepared! If he had would either be him suffering from injuries or, worse, having to explain to Alexander why he crawling toward the safe. A few times, was drenched entirely in sweat. It was not an easy task, as he had to ensure that he did not touch any of the laser beams while not making a sound to take the risk as he thought about the company shares he was about to obtain and the riches that would come with them. He crouched and looked at the safe in detail.